BUSY FIGHTING, STALIN SHUNS QUEBEC PARLEY

Sends Regrets to F. D. R., Churchill.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Sept. 11.—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill arrived with customary drama today for their second Quebec conference, and promptly offered assurance that Premier Josef Stalin hadn't snubbed them by staying home.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early made public a message from Stalin expressing the dictator's regrets, and the announcement was so timed that it appeared Stalin's communication had arrived after Roosevelt and Churchill came, altho nobody said it had.

Stalin's message said: "At the present time, when the soviet armies are fighting battles on such a broad front, developing their offensive increasingly, I am deprived of the possibility of traveling outside the soviet union and of leaving the direction of the soviet army for the shortest period. All my colleagues agree this is quite impossible."

Stalin Would Be Welcome.

Early said the President and prime minister wanted it known that they would have been "delighted to have Stalin here," and that they "thoroly understood he was properly absent on the field of duty."

In view of reports that the President and prime minister were gravely concerned over Stalin's territorial aims in Europe, and the previous official silence on the Russians' failure to arrange for representation at the conference, many saw considerable significance in the chronology of proceedings today.

Finds Stalin Message.

Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill arrived in Quebec this morning on separate trains. They met and came together to the Citadel, where the conference is being held. Early then held a press conference to dispel some of the secrecy surrounding the meeting. He said nothing about a message from Stalin, altho reporters had expected that some effort would be made to indicate harmony with Stalin.

Sometime later, Early called a second and unscheduled press conference. He explained that he had been to the Citadel and discovered a message from Stalin, which he had brought for the press. There was no explanation as to whether or not it had been addressed to the conference, or when it came.

"Eleanor Is Here"—F. D. R.

Mr. Roosevelt's train arrived at the secluded Wolfe's Cove station. It waited for 20 minutes, until Churchill's train came alongside.

"Hello, I'm glad to see you," Mr. Roosevelt called out, smiling, as Churchill walked up. "Eleanor is here. Did you have a nice trip?"

"Well, we had three beautiful

G. O. P. Buries Maine CIO in Landslide

Horace A. Hildreth.

Portland, Me., Sept. 11 [Special].—Republicans captured all top offices in Maine's general election today in a landslide victory which nearly complete returns indicated had exceeded substantial Republican margins for the same offices in the 1942 and 1940 elections.

In the first and second congressional districts, the Republicans turned back direct challenges by the CIO's political action committee to bury the PAC candidates under avalanches of votes which gave the Republican nominees 3 to 1 leads.

Rep. Robert Hale [R., Me.], seeking his second term as the representative of the 1st district, piled up 41,128 votes in 136 out of 152 precincts against 14,581 for Andrew A. Pettis, president of the Portland local of the CIO shipyard workers' union.

Betters 1942 Margin.

Hale's one-sided triumph in this district was regarded as especially significant in view of the fact the Democrats in 1942 mustered 28,759 votes against his 38,128. Pettis was backed by the united labor committee, Maine affiliate of Sidney Hillman's PAC, which campaigned actively for him.

In the 2d district, Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith [R.] had an even easier time defeating David H. Staples, 71, retired locomotive engineer. Seeking her third full term in the house of representatives, Mrs. Smith, who succeeded her late husband, Clyde H. Smith, in 1940, received 36,394 votes to 11,903 for Staples in 189 of 209 precincts. Staples ran with the United Labor committee endorsement.

Mrs. Smith had a margin slightly over 2 to 1 in 1942 when she defeated her Democratic opponent, 42,062 to 20,164.

Hildreth New Governor.

Rep. Frank Fellows [R.] received 34,984 votes in 241 out of 255 precincts in the 3d district against 10,077 votes for the Democratic nominee, Ralph E. Graham, a railroad office worker.

Horace Hildreth, Republican president of the state senate, was swept into the governorship by the Republican tide, exceeding by far the 49,000 vote margin by which Gov. Sumner Sewall [R.] defeated G. W. Lane Jr. in 1942.

Hildreth received 113,082 votes in 559 of 627 precincts to 35,625 votes for Paul J. Jullien, a past state commander of the American Legion, the Democratic nominee.

TRAP CONVOY IN FIRST SEA RAID ON PHILIPPINES

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Sept. 11 (AP).—In the first sea based action against the Philippines, a United States carrier task force destroyed an entire enemy convoy of 52 vessels, blasted five air fields and wiped out 68 Japanese planes in widespread raids against Mindanao last Friday.

The total of ships sunk, probably sunk, damaged and set afire as announced in the navy's bulletin was 90. Many were small cargo ships and sampans.

The blazing action marked an advance of approximately 500 miles beyond the westermost previously reported positions of carrier-based aircraft, and was coupled with new heavy attacks on Parsmushiro and the Volcano Islands far to the north.

60 Planes Knocked Out.

The navy's bulletin said:

"The air fields at Del Monte, Valencia, Cagayan, Busuyan, and Davao were bombed and strafed. In these attacks two enemy aircraft were encountered near our carriers, five were encountered over Cagayan, and one over Davao. All were shot down. Approximately 60 enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground.

"A convoy was discovered off Hinatuan bay, consisting of 32 loaded coastal cargo ships and 20 sampans. This convoy was brought under attack by Pacific fleet cruisers, destroyers, and carrier aircraft, and all of the enemy ships were destroyed."

Barracks, warehouses, and hangars were hit at the airdromes attacked. Enemy watefront installations at Matina, Cagayan, and Surigao were also bombed, the announcement said.

16 Ships Set Afire.

The warships found enemy shipping in other vulnerable spots and opened up. In attacks in Saragani bay, Davao gulf, near Cagayan and Surigao, 16 small cargo ships, one medium vessel, one patrol craft, and many sampans were sunk or probably sunk. They set fire to two small cargo ships and at least 17 sampans.

Attacks on the Palau Islands continued Saturday. Numerous rockets were fired also by carrier aircraft.

Paramushiro Island, in the Kuriles, Iwo in the Volcano Islands, Ponape in the Carolines, Pagan and Rota in the Marianas, and positions in the Marshalls were hit by land based bombers and fighters.

Japs Raid Biak Isle.

GENERAL HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 12 [Tuesday]—(AP).—A Japanese attempt to raid American held Biak Island, off Dutch New Guinea, was frustrated Saturday when Black Widow night fighters shot down two of 10 assaulting planes, headquarters announced today.

Allied air patrols bombed and hit two 7,000 ton Japanese freighters off Zamboanga Saturday night. Liberators swept Halmahera Island, southern stepping stone to the Philippines, and other islands in the Moluccas Saturday and Sunday.

Tailored Seacooks Put Navy Officers in a Broth

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 11 (AP).—So many merchant marine cooks dress like navy officers that the United States maritime commission has started to do something about it. It called a meeting of tailors, dealers in uniforms and insignia, maritime service representatives and maritime union leaders, to open a 30 day campaign to eliminate the practice.

U. S. FLYERS BAG 175 NAZI PLANES

Big Bomber Escort Sets Trap for Enemy.

LONDON, Sept. 12 [Tuesday]—(AP).—United States 8th air force fighters and heavy bombers trapped and beat the German air force yesterday, destroying 175 Nazi planes in one of the fiercest air battles ever fought over Europe.

Last night, R. A. F. heavy bombers attacked Darmstadt, industrial and railway town in the upper Rhineland, and Mosquitos raided Berlin for the second successive night, the British announced.

Of the Germans destroyed, American fighters shot down 116, the greatest number ever shot down by fighters alone in a single day, while the heavy bombers knocked down another 17, and 42 were destroyed on their airdromes.

Forty-eight of the American heavy bombers and 29 fighters failed to return.

Attacked Over Germany.

En route to their targets at Merseburg, Litzkendorf and Misburg flyers saw few Nazi planes. But just before they reached central Germany the enemy sprang up, often in formations of 150 or more, and bore in stubbornly over the targets and far along the route home.

Staff Sgt. Vernon Longhurst, 2125 W. 183d st., Homewood, Ill., a tail gunner, said: "Just over the German border an ack-ack battery opened up. One of our ships was blown up by a direct hit. We saw four jerries. They brought down one of our planes."

Intelligence officers, anticipating that the luftwaffe would come out from its four months hiding, sent with the bombers the heaviest fighter escort of any time since July. There were more than 800 Lightnings, Thunderbolts, and Mustangs.

For more than two hours combats raged with enemy planes.

Fourth Day of Attacks.

It was the fourth consecutive day in which 1,000 or more American bombers attacked Germany. On Sunday American fighters destroyed 125 German planes—119 of them on the ground—bringing the two day total to 300. Lt. Robert Bosworth, Oskaloosa, Ia., destroyed four Nazi planes on the ground.

36 Nazi Attacks in 60 Hours, but Yanks Hold Bridgehead

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY ON THE MOSELLE RIVER, Sept. 11.—He stood in the middle of what used to be a little chapel and is now a first aid station, a tall, slightly stooped G. I. in his late 20's. A medical corps major regarded him silently for a moment.

"How are you feeling?" the officer asked.

"Kinda droopy," the soldier replied. "My stomach was very upset."

"Did you cry?" the major said unexpectedly.

"Some," the G. I. said. "I couldn't help it, sir."

"I know you couldn't; I'm not criticizing you." The major's voice was very gentle. "What did you see over there? I mean right around you?"

The G. I. suddenly turned his face away. An aid man caught his shoulders as he seemed about to fall and led him to a bench where he sat weeping. The major said something to him in a low voice, then walked away.

"He probably saw his best friend killed right near him over there," the major said. "We've had them tell us, 'I was talking to a man right next to me when a shell burst. I turned back to say something and just part of him was lying there.' Or there would be shelling in the middle of the night and a man would shake his buddy to wake him up, then find he was dead."

"One man came in this morning who couldn't talk," said the aid man. "The words wouldn't come."

It was midafternoon and the sun was shining brightly outside, but many men among the unshaven, weary looking ones outside were sound asleep, so dead to the world that the roar of heavy guns nearby did not even make them stir.

60 Sleepless, Fighting Hours.

Across the river they had earned the right to sleep. They were just back from 60 sleepless hours holding a bridgehead against German fury. They had been mercilessly pounded with almost unending mortar and artillery fire while confined to a wooded area perhaps 300 yards wide by 400 yards long.

Their flow of reënforcements had been cut off for the first 24 hours before they received anti-tank guns or a medical station was set up. For many hours the wounded could not be evacuated because German artillery prevented boats from crossing. Nazi SS [elite guard] troops, supported by Tiger tanks and machine guns, made 36 counter-attacks.

But the defiant holders of the little bridgehead hung on. They fought Tiger tanks with bazookas. They augmented their meager water supply with river water. They lived most of the time on a single meal of K rations daily. Many of their officers were killed or wounded and their number of effectives gradually grew smaller until finally the bridgehead began contracting. Still they fought savagely on until the order finally came thru for withdrawal.

Each Gets His Man, and More.

By that time they had killed more of Hitler's finest troops than there were Americans in the whole bridgehead. And they had held on long enough to enable a stronger bridgehead to be pushed across below them.

M. P. TELLS CHURCHILL U. S. CORNER ON GOLD BROUGHT DEPRESSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 11.—In a message to Prime Minister Churchill, William Craven-Ellis, Nationalist member of parliament from Southampton, has blamed "America's almost complete cornering of gold since 1929" as the cause of the depression and worldwide unemployment. He urged Churchill to "influence" President Roosevelt not to support the Bretton Woods international financial agreement which, as he put it, is being imposed upon the allied nations.

If Churchill is successful in prevailing upon the American President to oppose the Bretton Woods' proposals it will be to the interest of future world peace and the welfare of the people, Craven-Ellis contended.

"We went to hell on the gold standard in 1931 and don't want to repeat the journey," said the M. P. His message was sent on the eve of the prime minister's trip to Canada to confer with Mr. Roosevelt. He concluded with, "wishing you every success in your discussions and safe return."

HODGES DRIVES 5 MILES INTO REICH NEAR TRIER

ROME, Sept. 11 (AP).—The United States 3d and 7th armies completed a junction today in eastern France, sealing off German troops in the central region, including possibly 20,000 in the Dijon area.

The vanguards of the two armies met at a point described officially here as "an undesignated spot" 28 days after Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's 7th army invaded southern France.

[A field dispatch from Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d army said the junction was made in the vicinity of Sombernon, 15 miles west of Dijon.]

French Occupy Dijon.

While units of the two American armies were joining hands, French forces occupied the important highway center of Dijon and other American troops pushed within 15 miles of the vital Belfort gap, gateway to southern Germany.

The meeting of the southern and northern armies came dramatically with an officer from each unit coming forward to shake hands. This formality culminated the thrust begun by the 7th army in landings on the Riviera coast Aug. 15 and the Normandy invasion from the north on June 6.

For more than 300 miles, the sprawling lines of the allies now were joined almost solidly—from Holland south thru Belgium, into Luxemburg and on into France—since the United States 1st army earlier met the British in northern Belgium. There remains only a small gap between the United States 1st and 3d armies, probably no more than 15 miles.

Yanks Drive to Vesoul.

French troops seized Dijon after a 24 hour battle in the city's outskirts and sealed off a great network of roads which had been serving the Nazi retreat from all southern and western France. Dijon is a city of 96,000 population.

American doughboys slashed across the Doubs valley to the outskirts of the highway town of Vesoul, 20 miles north of Besancon.

On the eastern end of the 7th army's 125 mile front the Americans and French closed in steadily on Belfort gap despite dogged German resistance.

Push Along Swiss Frontier.

Pushing along the Swiss frontier, French troops advanced yard by yard in bitter fighting in the vicinity of Blamont, just north of the town of St. Hippolyte, which was cleared completely of Germans in the past 24 hours. American forces driving up the Ognon river from the vicinity of Besancon reached Rougemont, 25 miles west and slightly south of Belfort.

[An Associated Press dispatch from the French-Swiss frontier said the Nazis moved SS elite guard reenforcements into the Belfort fortifications on Sunday under steady pounding by American planes. Allied armored patrols slipped into the gap last Thursday and Friday, the dispatch said, but were forced to withdraw by enemy artillery fire.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 12 (Tuesday)—(AP).—The United States 1st army burst into Adolf Hitler's inner fortress of Germany yesterday and plowed ahead for five miles, meeting the enemy on his home soil north of the frontier town of Trier—55 miles from the Rhine and the great industrial city of Koblenz.

An artillery barrage first blasted the German positions and then in "reasonable strength"—that was the official language—the doughboys crossed over.

Well Into Siegfried Line.

To the south, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's United States 3d army seized a great part of the old French Maginot line intact, and was breaking the last German line of defense on French soil—the Moselle river positions.

The British 2d army broke across the frontier of Holland and headed for the weakest link in the 400 miles of the Westwall (Siegfried line)—the line of pillboxes, tank traps, and forts stretching south from the German city of Kleve to Aachen—across the shortest route to Berlin.

Fight Thru Mine Fields.

Other elements of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' United States 1st army already were fighting thru the mine fields of the Siegfried line south of the key city of Aachen, little more than eight miles from Germany's frontier, and were blasting fortifications inside the reich with heavy artillery.

Not since the days of Napoleon has Germany been entered in strength and the doughboys who accomplished this modern feat had fought clear across the little duchy of Luxemburg in one day, freeing its capital en route.

May Be Opening Wedge.

Since this was no mere patrol entry into Germany, such as the tentative thrusts of the French in 1939 and the American raid of last week, it may well be the opening wedge in a series of full scale attacks against Hitler's last prepared line of defense.

The 3d army, driving over Lorraine's hills, captured with guns intact the fortress of Aumetz. It was the first city incorporated into the reich by Hitler's decree to be liberated. Aumetz is 22 miles southwest of Metz.

There was heavy fighting 10 miles east of Liege and south of Aachen, where the 1st army consolidated its assault positions by occupying the town of Herve, northwest of Limbourg.

Last Stand in France.

The 1st army also was engaged in heavy fighting just west of the Luxemburg border at Bastogne and Arlon, and the Germans were resisting stoutly 10 miles north of the city of Luxemburg.

On the channel coast, British forces stormed Fontaine-le-Mallet, one and a half miles north of the big port of Le Havre, and now dominate the city altho they are under intense fire from the harbor's big guns.

The Germans have a garrison of 2,000 to 4,000 men there, and an estimated 35,000 more in the closely invested channel ports of Boulogne, Calais, and Dunkerque, including 10,000 at Dunkerque.

Canadians and Poles were engaged in severe fighting in expanding bridgeheads over the Gent canal at Oostkamp and the Leopold canal southeast of Brugge. The Poles took 1,300 prisoners.

Last Stand in France.

The fate of the last German stand in northern France was being decided by a battle six miles south of Nancy, where the 3d army captured the ancient fort Pont St. Vincent and then hammered across the Moselle river on a front of several miles.

In the drive to Aumetz, the 3d army overran much of the old French fortifications and were in a position to strike northeastward toward Germany and the Saar in concert with the 1st army.

Sweeping thru the Maginot line positions, the 3d army found the French 135 millimeter guns still pointing eastward, ready to fire except for ammunition, an Associated Press correspondent reported from the front.

Fort Dominates Countryside.

It was different on the 3d army front at Fort Pont St. Vincent, well to the south, which, altho an old timer from the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, had been remodeled to form the rear defenses of the Maginot line.

The Germans had stripped the fort of its guns and equipment, but its tunnels and concrete casements shed German shells and bombs.

Its positions on the heights dominate the countryside for 20 miles south of Nancy and the Germans tried to retake it Sunday night. They crossed the Moselle river, east of the fortress, and tried to scale the fortifications, but were chased back across the stream.

With the fort, once commanded by Marshal Foch, firmly in American hands, the doughboys then moved over to the Moselle and in assault boats stormed across the river at numerous points.

Crush Savage Nazi Stand.

The British 2d army knifed into Holland after crushing a savage German stand north of the Albert canal in the biggest slaughter since Normandy.

The British 2d army, presumably accompanied by a Dutch brigade coming back home after four years of exile, crossed the Netherlands frontier 14 miles north of the broken Albert canal line in a drive apparently aimed at the road and rail center of Eindhoven, 12 miles ahead. Kleve is 38 miles northeast of Eindhoven.

The British and Dutch moved over a battlefield heaped with the bodies of German troops, who had been rushed down from Denmark and Holland.

In three days of fighting around Bourg-Leopold and Hechtel, 35 to 40 miles east of Antwerp, the British took 12,000 prisoners, and killed 1,300 Germans in a single day.

May Ease Pressure on 3d.

Capture of the city of Luxemburg probably will ease the pressure on the 3d army's northern flank, for it was thru the duchy that the Germans last week launched their first big counter-attack.

Ten miles north of the capital the Americans were approaching the town of Mersch, moving thru the heart of the duchy on a 10 mile front. Eighteen miles east of the column driving on out of the city of Luxemburg was the German town of Saarburg.

In the fighting 22 miles northwest of Liege, the Americans joined forces with the British at the Belgian town of Hasselt, just south of the Albert canal.

Nine waves of Marauders and Havocs of the 9th United States air force renewed support of Gen. Patton's 3d army with heavy attacks on large caliber guns and emplacements on the Moselle river and on a German headquarters building and signal center in Metz.

Thunderbolts of the 9th air force in response to a request by an American column knocked out 11 Nazi Tiger tanks blocking a road two miles from Luxemburg, aiding in the liberation of the city which quickly followed.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Monday's German war bulletin, as broadcast by Berlin and recorded in New York by the Associated Press said:

"In the Brugge sector up to the area northwest of Hasselt, our fighting groups smashed all enemy attempts to enlarge his bridgeheads across the Albert canal. In the penetration area of Beeringen, parachute troops in a surprise thrust on the British flank destroyed two large and fully laden transport columns and blew up ammunition depots and fuel dumps. Fifty-two British tanks were destroyed in the last few days of fighting in this area, mostly by close range weapons. Heavy fighting is going on there against the enemy who is pushing farther to the north with tanks.

WOUNDED ILLINOISAN HELPS SAVE INJURED OFFICER IN FRANCE

A U. S. STATION HOSPITAL, England (AP).—Altho Pvt. Jean P. Lilly, Hull, Ill., was wounded by shrapnel in the Normandy fighting, he aided in saving his lieutenant's life by helping carry him to a patch of woods, marking the spot with a white handkerchief tied to a bush, and sending medical men to his rescue. He was near St. Lo when he was hit.

"My buddy, Pvt. Clarence Robbins of St. Louis, Mo., and our lieutenant were wounded by the same burst," Lilly said. The two started carrying the officer to a battalion aid station, but Robbins was hit by a sniper and Lilly went for help.

Lilly is recuperating in England. He received the Purple Heart medal.

learn what had befallen their friends. One said, "What happened to Lt. Smith?" [the name is incorrect] and got the reply, "He was drowned trying to get back."

First Sgt. Claude W. Hembree, Barbourville, Ky., was telling his men that there were special Catholic and Protestant church services nearby for those who wanted to attend.

"It was a rugged deal," he said, turning to us. Then he laughed as tho the nightmare he had just come thru already was beginning to grow dim. "It was hell all the time over there. No sleep at all; every man constantly on the alert. The first night we were there two Tiger tanks came down the road within 50 yards of my command post and four bazooka teams opened up, but didn't feaze them. When we opened up they stopped and fired back. One shot hit a tree at least two feet in diameter, cut it in two, and pinned one of my boys under it.

Nazi Infantry Tries Luck.

"Then the tanks went down the road and we had no more trouble from them that night. But I think they had infantry riding on the far side because infantry soon attacked several times from that direction. Then about 50 men tried to come down the road. We could see their silhouettes as we mowed them down."

Hembree said there was artillery fire thruout the day, with more shells following brief lulls. The Germans kept trying to sneak down toward the bridgehead from atop a hill to the east, but at one spot they had to move into the open and "when we used our heavies on them you could see them falling like flies."

On the second day Hembree requested that mines be sent from this side of the river and they were promised for 6 p. m. He sent a detail down to the river edge to pick them up, but they did not arrive. That night eight Tiger tanks attacked.

Yanks Cripple Two.

"My men fired bazookas and then ducked back into their foxholes," Hembree said. "They got at least three hits on each tank and crippled at least two, which limped away. Finally all withdrew into a valley, then four came back and ran pretty fast down the road parallel to the wood from machine guns.

"There was hot fighting all day yesterday, but we got word in the afternoon that we were to be withdrawn.

"I think the crossing would have been 100 per cent successful if the men had not become too eager to cross. The rope strung across would have worked well if three men at a time had used it.

"Lt. Stanley was trying to control them—there isn't a medal high enough for him—but they were all trying to use the ropes or boats at the same time. Order was soon restored. Lt. Stanley would call for a certain number and I would send them up."

3 JAP WARSHIPS AND 6 OTHER CRAFT SUNK BY U. S. SUBMARINES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—United States submarines have trimmed nine more ships, three of them fighting craft, from Japan's dwindling tonnage, the navy announced today.

The new tally brings the total of all types of Japanese ships sunk by United States submarines to 732, of which 61 are fighting ships and 671 cargo carriers and miscellaneous craft.

The navy listed the sunken ships as one destroyer, one escort vessel, one gunboat, two medium cargo vessels, one small cargo vessel, one medium cargo transport, and two small tankers.

DOUGHBOYS FIND MAGINOT LINE IN GOOD ORDER

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN THE MAGINOT LINE, Sept. 11 (AP).—American doughboys who captured a long segment of the Maginot line today found it intact. Its big, electrically operated, disappearing French guns were in perfect working order.

The Germans got out so fast they had no time to demolish the fortifications, which had been erected to stop any German invasion but were flanked and fell in the Nazis' blitz in 1940.

One of the key sections, known as block 565, stretches for more than three miles near Aumetz, with eight great fortresses connected by 90 foot deep passages containing an electric railway.

Even the Elevators Work.

A few hours after the American troops arrived, engineers had the Diesel operated power plant humming, with lights on and elevators working.

Potent looking, power operated French 135 millimeter guns pointing eastward and 47 millimeter ones were in place and well looked after. All they needed to start firing was ammunition.

Even panoramic drawings of the countryside, with range settings arranged in a circle about the turrets, had been untouched.

The only damage to the deep, winding underground fortifications with their countless ramifications had resulted from dampness, which had caused some rusting. The concrete floors in some places were covered with seepage water. However, the electric heating system started working when the generators were started up.

It's Like Chicago Subway.

A ride on the narrow gauge electric trolley railway was like spinning thru Chicago's subway. Red, yellow, and green lights winked on and off ahead as a young French guide took a group of American officers, GIs, and correspondents on a trip thru one section.

"If it wasn't so fancy it would be like a coal mine," said Sgt. Vincent Bedmar, St. Paul, Minn.

Maj. Robert B. Swatosh, Wheaton, Ill., said he hoped the Siegfried line would be as easy to take as this sector of the Maginot. His view was echoed by Pvt. Henry F. Kasal, Schuyler, Neb., and Pvt. Everett Jameson, Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Gun Records Tell a Story.

A chart on one of the 135 millimeter guns gave a record of the cleanings, beginning in 1932. The last French entry was on May 8, 1940, two days before the Germans began their great break-thru. The last entry was in German on Aug. 11, 1940. The gun had been coated with a preservative.

In a lavish bar on the bottom level, the walls of which were covered with paintings of nudes, there still were goblets on the table, but all the bottles were empty. The French guide said the Nazis took only such things as bedding from the troops' quarters.

FIND BABY FARM FOR SS TROOPS IN BELGIAN CASTLE

Infants Cared For in Nazi Luxury.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY NEAR THE GERMAN FRONTIER, Sept. 11.—American soldiers today found one of Hitler's baby farms, a beautiful old Belgian castle where the illegitimate children of the Waffen SS [Elite Guard] were born and where the mothers could remain to rest.

Altho its four towers date back to the 9th century, the interior of the chateau has been converted to modern luxury. Until a few days before the Americans arrived this maternity home was known as the "Lebensborn Ardenne," and had functioned with modern hospital equipment and tastefully decorated rooms.

Since the Germans took possession of the chateau Nov. 1, 1942, more than 200 babies have been born here, according to the Belgian caretaker. All the mothers but four or five were unmarried French, Belgian, Flemish, or Dutch women.

Could Keep Children.

The mothers, said the caretaker, had a choice of keeping the children or leaving them to the German state. He knew of only about 45 babies shipped to Germany. Five others had died and the remainder had been taken by their mothers who went to Germany to live with or without a promise of marriage from their seducers.

Near the town of Ayeneux, a few miles east of Liege, the chateau afforded the most perfect spot imaginable for mothers to have their babies. Count Oultremont, its owner, had ceded it to the Belgian state several years ago as a vacation home for workers who could come here with their children for only 20 francs daily.

The Belgians modernized the interior. Below rolling lawns filled with flower beds they built six little lakes for rowing among the woodlands. A swimming pool also was constructed.

Hitler's Picture on Wall.

When the SS general took it over for his troops he added a modern delivery room and a ward for newly born infants. There were diet kitchens, dumb waiters, individual bedrooms filled with easy chairs, a reading room, spotless laundries, ironers, and stacks of small white children's beds, cribs, and bassinettes of wicker. Most of the medical equipment had been taken away.

In the reading room are stacks of German books on the care and feeding of babies. Looking down over this scene of quiet, with the smile of a cat full of cream, is a picture of the SS boss, Himmler, and in the main hallway a great picture of Hitler.

For the use of this chateau, which could accommodate 100 babies and mothers without crowding, Gen. Jongclaus, the Gruppenfeuhrer, paid the province of Liege 6,000 francs a year rental, about $1,380 based on the new Belgian-United States exchange rate.

HITLER ORDERS 7 MORE HANGED IN PLOT ON HIS LIFE

Ex-Envoy to Mussolini Among Doomed.

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP).—Adolf Hitler, who recently hanged one of his field marshals, has ordered his former ambassador to Mussolini's Rome and six other Germans to the gallows as participants in the plot to kill him on July 20.

The Berlin radio announced that the seven had been convicted by a people's court, and named them as:

Count Wolf Hendrick von Helldorf, former Berlin police head who ranked second only to Julius Streicher in the heyday of Jewish persecution; Ulrich von Hassell, once Nazi ambassador to Rome; Dr. Karl F. Goerdeler, 60, former mayor of Leipzig and former German minister of economics; Trott zu Solz, one

"Surrender Plot" Charged.

Goerdeler, the Nazis charged, was slated to become chancellor in the government that would have succeeded Hitler, and would have surrendered Germany to her enemies. He was said to have "formed the bridge between the militarist traitors and political conspirators." Goerdeler was captured after a price of a million marks—about $400,000—had been placed on his head.

Count von Helldorf was represented as a liaison man between Goerdeler's political group and the military faction.

The German Transocean news agency said Leuschner had played with the idea of overthrowing Goerdeler, if the plot succeeded, and making himself reich's chancellor.

Von Hassell was reported to have confessed that he knew since the spring of 1943 that an attempt was to be made on Hitler's life.

Civilians Dig, Swiss Hear.

Swiss border reports told of unrest and confusion in southwestern Germany as the population in that heavily bombed area behind the battle front was mobilized to dig trenches. A broadcast to German troops, however, declared that civilians, including old men, women, and children, were enthusiastically digging ramparts.

The German press said that even ballet dancers from closed theaters were working in factories, and that actors were shouldering spades alongside elderly business men.

Younger and still younger boys were being trained for sniping and guerilla warfare, and Reich's Minister Goebbels injected a picturesque touch to this mobilization by ordering military hair cuts for all boys under 18.

A German broadcast told of "newly assembled divisions" featuring tank busting platoons. These were said to consist of volunteers of 17 to 19 trained in "close combat" suicidal anti-tank tactics.

Solomon Rules: Marjorie May Toss Sand at Police

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—It's legally impossible to commit disorderly conduct in a police station, Magistrate Charles Solomon ruled in Coney Island court today. Patrolman Henry R. Griffith accused Marjorie Passeau, 35, of Brooklyn of entering the Fort Hamilton police station in a boisterous manner, refusing to leave, and trying to heave a bucket of sand at him. Solomon said no breach of public peace was involved.

PARIS THEATERS SHUT NOW; OPEN UNDER GERMANS

3 Ballets Added to Opera Repertoire.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Tho the theaters of Paris are closed now because of restrictions on the use of electricity and the lack of transportation, they kept going—or most of them did—during the German occupation.

Indeed, the Paris Opera added three ballets to its repertoire and three operas, "Aida," "Romeo," and "Thais," received entirely new productions.

Popular with Germans.

Jacques Rouche, director of the Paris Opera, said German soldiers visited the opera every night, taking over various sections in turn, and paid the regular admission charges. The Opera-Comique reported a similar experience.

Rouche said operas were presented despite shortages of canvas for scenery, material for costumes, and ballet shoes, which normally came from Italy.

Also functioning thruout the war was an American institution — the American library in Paris. Countess Clara de Chambrun, the former Clara Longworth, who is a sister of Nicholas Longworth, late speaker of the American house of representatives, took over the library when the Germans occupied Paris. Count Rene de Chambrun, her brother-in-law, was in charge of the Office Francaise de Renseignements aux Etats Unis [French office of information on the United States]. He foresaw America's entry into the war and arranged for the library to be converted temporarily as a French concern.

Dorothy Reader, who had been in charge, turned over the directorship to Countess Chambrun when Miss Reader left for America. All went smoothly.

"The Germans were not working with us," the countess said. "We were allowed to send books to prisoners in France, Baden-Baden, and Vittel. Altogether about 3,000 books were packed, in lots of hundreds and fifties. We were protected technically and morally by an official who really cared for the library and learning.

"At times the Gestapo bothered us. They suspected us of all sorts of things, even illegal traffic. People would drop in, saying, 'I am an American citizen. Can you help me get to Spain?'"

There are still seven or eight members of the old staff working at the library.

STABBING VICTIM DIES.

Clarence Lee, 47, Negro, of 4851 Prairie av., died yesterday in County hospital of stab wounds suffered Sept. 3 in the home of Ulysses Nolan, also a Negro, 4705 Michigan av., who told police that he stabbed Lee when Lee took $20 from him.

FRENCH UNDERGROUND BUILDS HUGE PLANE UNDER GERMAN NOSES

PARIS, Sept. 11 (AP).—Underground industry, flourishing in France during the German occupation, produced a new six engine seaplane which is potential competition for the American Glenn Martin Mars, the air ministry disclosed today.

In secret laboratories in the Alps foothills and in forest shrouded workshops in southern France technicians under the noses of the Nazis designed a new model called "late 631" and by Liberation day had the principal parts ready for assembly.

Much work was done in aircraft factories supposedly under German control. Within four days of liberation a Goeland transport plane from one of these "invisible" workshops flew a mission for the allies.

PARIS SUBWAY OPENS; NO FREE RIDES FOR YANKS

BY ROBERT SAGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 11.—After being deprived of nearly all means of public transportation for five weeks, footweary Parisians today enjoyed the luxury of riding to work on subway trains. American soldiers found the trains to be slower than American subways but still the quickest means of getting anywhere in the city.

Many Parisians expressed indignation when they noticed that Americans in uniform were obliged to pay for their subway tickets. They protested that thruout four years German soldiers as well as most German civilians, walked thru the ticket gates without being asked to pay. Investigation disclosed, however, that the German army was handed a monthly bill for subway fares. Thousands of German civilians working in Paris were supplied with passes.

The Paris subway ceased operations at noon Aug. 12, and officials announced it would start up again the evening of Aug. 15. But by the latter date the situation in the city was growing critical and the subway remained closed. During the insurrection the Germans exploded mines along some sections of the track and blew up trains at terminals.

A shortage of electric power and the need for repairs on the whole network made it impossible to resume service immediately following the city's liberation. Renewal of service this morning was permitted by the discovery that hydroelectric plants in liberated districts of central France had not been damaged and that they could be connected to the subway.

Before the subway reopened, ancient, horsedrawn omnibuses and drays had slightly eased the transportation emergency.

Patrol in East Prussia; Report Warsaw Gain.

LONDON, Sept. 12 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Moscow announced today that a Russian army patrol had entered German East Prussia and, having gathered information, returned safely.

This crossing, made the same day that American doughboys invaded Germany from the west, was the first officially reported by Moscow, altho Russian troops have been massing on the border for days.

Moscow said the patrol crossed the Sesupe river west of Kaunas, Lithuania, and killed 16 Hitlerites in a skirmish in East Prussia.

Russian troops yesterday broke thru German lines to within two and a half miles of the big Narew river stronghold of Lomza, protecting the southern East Prussian border.

Reports from both Berlin and Moscow indicated that three Red armies were on the verge of unleashing offensives on a 300 mile front opposite East Prussia, extending from northern Poland up to the Baltic sea.

A Berlin broadcast said that a concentrated assault by other soviet forces had penetrated Nazi lines in the eastern suburbs of Warsaw, Polish capital.

Reds Advance in Romania.

In central Romania, the 2d Ukraine army captured 200 localities, Moscow announced, including Sighisoara, 25 miles southeast of the Hungarian stronghold of Targul-Mures, and Petroseni, 124 miles from the pre-war Hungarian frontier. Medias, 18 miles west of Sighisoara, also was seized.

With the seizure of Petroseni, the Russians had forced their way thru another Transylvanian Alps mountain route, the Vulcan pass, in their drive on Hungary.

Berlin said Hungary was threatened on the north by a fresh soviet offensive which toppled Krosno, a highway and rail town in southern Poland only 17 miles from Slovakia.

Four Day Fight for City.

Krosno fell after a four day battle in which the Germans surged back into the south Poland, town three times before finally giving up, Berlin said.

Moscow did not confirm Berlin's assertion that masses of soviet tanks and guns were attacking frontally toward Praga, Warsaw's big eastern suburb, but said that the 2d White Russian army had captured 30 localities in the drive on Lomza, only 20 miles from the East Prussian frontier. Among these was Konarzyce, 2½ miles southwest of Lomza.

A Polish bulletin said the Poles still were holding on in Warsaw.

Moscow did not mention either the Yugoslav frontier push or the status of Red army troops in capitulated Bulgaria, but a Berlin report said 3d Ukraine army units were within 25 miles northeast of Sofia.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.

Germany reported yesterday:

"In the southern and southeastern parts of Transylvania, German and Hungarian troops repulsed renewed soviet attacks in hard fighting. Heavy offensive and defensive actions were fought at Sanok and Krosno yesterday.

"In the Warsaw area, between the Vistula and Narew, the enemy resumed his attacks. His onslaught was frustrated.

OAK PARK ENSIGN IN 'FORGOTTEN CONVOY' IS BACK

Cigarets were used as money by several hundred American merchant seamen, members of a "forgotten convoy," in an eight month stay in the Arctic cold near Murmansk, Russia, while caviar, a rare delicacy back home, was just common food — if one liked it.

Ensign Fred Williams.

Ensign Fred Williams, 23, of 545 S. Taylor av., Oak Park, who went thru the long ordeal, recalled these experiences yesterday. The story of the "forgotten convoy" was disclosed Saturday by the war shipping administration. Chicagoans named then were Adam Dorsh, Stephen J. Ram, George Lekisch, Sebastian Frehr, and Joe Hughar. Ensign Williams was there, too, and also, he said, were two more Chicagoans, Alfred Haden and Melvin Kahn.

Six American ships of the convoy remained in port from February to November, 1943.

JAPS MARCH 25 MILES IN DRIVE INTO SO. CHINA

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 11 (AP).—Japanese forces pushing down the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad apparently have crossed the border into Kwangsi province and reached Chuanhsien, 67 miles from Kweilin, center of the South China defense systems, a report from Gen. Joseph H. Stilwell indicated tonight.

A bulletin from the Chinese high command made no mention of fighting in that area, but admitted fresh enemy advances in two other sectors.

Stilwell's headquarters reported United States planes had hit a ferry crossing at Chuanhsien, seven miles inside Kwangsi. Its capture would represent a 25 mile advance for the enemy from the Hunan province town of Tungan.

Reporting Japanese gains in other sectors, the high command said enemy units had penetrated the suburbs of the important port of Wenchow, in Chekiang province 225 miles south of Shanghai. The Japanese already had claimed capture of the port.

The high command also said the Japanese had opened a new drive northward from the Holhong peninsula in Kwangtung. Seven Japanese columns were reported pushing westward toward Paoching, 63 miles west of Hengyang.

LT. KEN CLAYTON OF TRIBUNE BACK FROM WAR DUTY

Lt. [j. g.] Ken Clayton of THE TRIBUNE editorial department, on military leave, visited Chicago yesterday after four months of duty in the South and Central Pacific.

Lt. [j. g.] K. Clayton.

Clayton traveled thousands of miles while attached to the navy's aviation training division. He spent one month on a carrier, and traveled over the Pacific the other three months by plane.

He was an observer with the task forces that attacked Saipan, Guam, and the Bonin Islands, and was in the battle of the Philippine sea June 19-20, where it was thought for a time that the Americans might catch the Jap fleet out of port.

On one of his combat bombing trips Clayton flew with Comdr. Norman M. [Bus] Miller of Winston-Salem, N. C., known as the one man air force. Miller has sunk 20 ships. He took Clayton on a mission over Saipan and Tinian.

BRITISH ACCUSED OF DECEIVING U.S. ON INDIA POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—The British ministry of information was assailed today by Sidar J. J. Singh of New York City, president of the India League of America and former member of the All India congress committee, for attempting to mislead the American public in connection with Ambassador William Phillips' criticism of Britain's India policy.

In a statement received by Rep. Calvin D. Johnson [R., Ill.], Singh attacked British arguments point by point and urged the creation of an arbitration board with United States, Russian, and Chinese representatives to "work out a program whereby India can become a free partner of the united nations."

British Claims Ridiculed.

Johnson is pressing for action on a resolution to curb British propaganda efforts in this country. He has charged that Ronald Campbell, British minister, and Girja Shanker Bajpai, British minister for India in Washington, have endeavored to influence the American press regarding India. He said that if they persist, they should be recalled.

Singh ridiculed British claims that the Burma front was the second largest in the war—700 miles—and that the British were contributing much to the defeat of Japan. Several hundred miles of the "front," he said, consists of mountains and jungle, and the British have undertaken only one offensive against the Japs, in 1942-1943, which was easily checked.

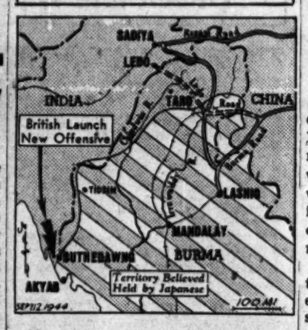
Americans Bear Brunt.

"It is the United States that is tightening the noose around the throat of Nippon," he asserted. "It was Gen. Stilwell who led American and American trained Chinese troops into the Mogaung valley to open the Ledo road to aid China. There were no British participants in these actions.

"It cannot be denied that the Indian army is 'purely mercenary.' The bodies and brains of Indian soldiers are in the battles they fight, but not their hearts. These are in the famine stricken villages where their families have died."

Phillips had reported that this country was getting little assistance from India in the war against Japan and that no more could be expected unless the British promised to grant India independence. British ire at these assertions reportedly led to his recall.

New Burma Drive



Burma-India war development.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., KANDY, Ceylon, Sept. 11 (AP).—British 14th army troops have opened an offensive against the Japanese in the long dormant Arakan sector in lower Burma, and heavy fighting is in progress, it was announced today.

The attack is against a strategic enemy position on a ridge in the Mayu range southwest of Buthidaung, 60 miles north of the Burma city of Akyab on the Bay of Bengal. Japanese losses in three days of fighting were said to be heavy.

The offensive, breaking the monsoon lull during which operations were limited to patrol action, was launched thru almost constant raincloud cover, screening the infantry charges but hampering aerial gunners. RAF bombers again attacked enemy shipping off the Tenasserim coast, leaving six cargo vessels and one gunboat beached southeast of Kalegauk Island. Later the bombers damaged another merchantman and a gunboat.

LONDON POLES AGAIN INVITE PACT WITH REDS

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Edward Raczynski, Polish ambassador to Great Britain, said today that his government, the London exiled group, was willing to come to an agreement with Russia on the dispute involving the fate of the rival Polish government at Lublin, Poland, and territorial questions.

The Polish cabinet will meet here tomorrow and it is expected to reexamine the political and military situation, with particular attention devoted to the status of Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, the Polish commander in chief. Sosnkowski aroused British ire recently when he accused Britain of failure to support the underground army's fight in Warsaw. Some quarters assumed Britain would demand his ouster as the price of continued support of the exiled government.

It is reported the cabinet will request the Polish president to remove Sosnkowski from office. The president has not indicated what he will do.

YOUR EGG EXPERT

Bud Bowman

AAAH, BEAUTIFUL, beautiful meringues! Ethereal clouds atop lemon cream pies . . . fluffing all over feather-light cakes . . . or crisp and sweet under ice cream . . . who'd think that egg whites could whip up into such glorious-looking, glorious-tasting concoctions!

DO TRY A MERINGUE, as they say, on the family. Our Home Economists (the most wonderful cooks—exceptin' maybe you) suggest that the eggs be separated, white from yolk, while they're real cold. Then let the whites stand at room temperature an hour or so before beating to "increase the volume." But of course—

THE BIGGER THE EGGS—Bowman Eggs!—the more meringue you get for these glamorous sweets. Fine, large, white-shelled Bowman Eggs have fresh, upstanding whites . . . and delicately flavored yolks . . . that contribute a lot to any cook's cookery.

IT TAKES SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH (ahem) and careful inspection all along the line to bring you eggs so extra-large and fine-tasting. Why, every egg is inspected by experts the day before delivery to your doorstep . . . for freshness and absolute perfection inside and out.

Ask your Bowman Milkman to bring you Bowman Eggs, too!

HOW AMG FIGHTS ITALY'S BLACK MARKET GANGS

Nazi Fostered Prices Cut Two-Thirds in Rome.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, Sept. 11.—Italian criminals have concentrated on one type of crime since the allied armies first stormed into Italy a few days more than a year ago—the black market.

Black market operations, which have flourished from Salerno to Rome during the last year, have made wealthy men of more than one successful criminal and have cost the allied armies untold hundreds of thousands of dollars in stolen military supplies. But the best days apparently are over.

Employ 100 Detectives.

The rise and impending fall of the system was described today by Lt. Harold Lipsius, former Philadelphia, Pa., attorney who now heads the black market control division. Lipsius directs a staff which includes Staff Sgt. Anthony Livoti, formerly assistant district attorney of Queens county, New York. A hundred Italian detectives also are assigned to the division which was under Lt. Mathias Correa, United State's attorney for the southern district of New York, until Lipsius took over.

"The black market system has operated to some extent from the day we hit Italy, but it was not until the allies reached Naples that it assumed such proportions that it demanded our attention," said Lipsius.

"The allied port masters had only one interest, to get the supplies ashore before the ship was bombed, and the criminals took advantage of this. Soon gangs were formed and truckloads of allied supplies began disappearing under our noses, truck and all. Our principal losses were foodstuffs—flour, sugar, coffee, canned meats and powdered eggs—but cigarets, soap, and clothing also were priced on the black market."

Tossed Supplies Overboard.

Every type of trick was employed to steal the supplies, Lipsius said. Stevedores unloading the ships had large, concealed pockets in their clothing. Other stevedores tossed tons of supplies overboard to be fished out by co-conspirators.

The really big losses were caused by organized gangs of 12 to 15 men, Lipsius said. Some gangs specialized in becoming friendly with the soldier truck drivers and entertained them with wine and women at houses along the warehouse routes. When the drivers returned to their trucks they found all their load gone.

Some indication of the profit in such thievery may be seen in the following figures. Lipsius explained that a 2½ ton truckload of flour brought anywhere from 500,000 to 1,000,000 lire [$5,000 to $10,000] on the black market in Naples. Coffee brought three times as much.

Made 5,000 Arrests.

The black market control division was organized in Naples in January. Its plain clothes Italian detectives and informers ferreted out dealers by posing as black marketeers themselves. Military police, with two-way radios, trailed truck convoys with orders to fire at would-be hijackers. From February to May 5,000 arrests were made.

Rome was not quite as bad, Lipsius found that the black market in foods here had been fostered by the Germans during the last three months of their occupation.

With the coöperation of the local police, Lipsius put checkers on every one of the 14 main roads into Rome. The checkers marked down every incoming food truck or wagon and then other police made sure that it reached the legal destination, the central market. As a result, food prices today are one-third what they were under the Germans.

AMERICANS MOP UP 2 TOWNS IN DRIVE TO MAIN GOTHIC DEFENSE

ROME, Sept. 11 (AP). — American troops, advancing swiftly north and northwest of Florence while the Germans were engaged in inconclusive fighting with the British 8th army near Rimini on the Adriatic, today came squarely against the enemy's main Gothic line defenses.

One Yank spearhead, stabbing north from Florence, reached Usella, within 35 miles of the industrial metropolis of Bologna in the Po valley. Others of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's forces farther west cleared out the cities of Prato and Pistoia and seized important high ground northeast of Pistoia.

Elements of the American 92d division broke into the village of Sezzera, 6½ miles above Lucca. Vecchiano, five miles north of Pisa, was occupied.

[The German high command, recording the general American advance, said that "detaching movements to the Apennine line were concluded according to plan and without enemy pressure."]

Fighting near the Adriatic was officially described as still "heavy and bitter, with casualties on both sides heavy." The British drove the enemy from one 600 foot peak south of Gemmano, a few miles inland from the coast, and Indian troops captured a hill 1,000 yards above Piano di Castello.

At the closest point British and Polish troops were dug in approximately four miles from Rimini.

HOW ROMANIA'S QUEEN USED GUN ON ANTONESCU

BY JOSEPH MORTON.

BUCHAREST, Romania, Sept. 7 [Delayed].—In the course of a 20 hour visit with King Michael of Romania and his mother, Queen Helen, divorced wife of ex-King Carol, I learned how the queen had drawn a pistol and threatened Ion Antonescu, the pro-German dictator premier who led Romania into war on the allies against the ruler's wishes.

Four years of pro-allied intrigue in the palace at Bucharest had angered Antonescu to the point where he became abusive of the king and the queen mother, and she told me how on one occasion his abuse aroused her more than usual. She stood up, fumbling in her handbag.

The premier, startled, stepped away from her as the queen found the pistol she had been seeking and pointed it at him. Then she, too, became startled at her own action and put it away.

"Played Dirty Tricks."

Antonescu was angry also when Michael mysteriously acquired an American jeep and insisted on driving it in public. He reprimanded the king, who said he wanted an entire fleet of them once the Germans were gone.

Other sore points were English magazines and American cigarets, which kept bobbing up at the palace. The latter came via Lisbon, the queen said, and were frightfully expensive, even for royalty.

"That man hated me," exclaimed King Michael. "I don't think he passed up a single chance to play me a dirty trick. He spied on me, lied to me, and I never have been happier than the night we kicked him out."

The 22 year old king spoke slowly, occasionally in French but usually in flawless English, which, at his mother's injunction, has been the official court language, despite Antonescu's German.

Live Very Simply.

I had been invited to visit the king at his villa many miles from Bucharest, and arrived there by plane with Baron Mocsonyi-Styrcea, marshal of the court.

Michael appeared a keen, friendly young man with wide shoulders and six feet of brawn.

"I am very glad you have come," he said.

Queen Mother Helen received us with a charming smile.

"We are living very simply here," she said. "I hope you will be comfortable."

Asks About Florence.

At dinner I found their majesties hungry for news. Queen Helen was anxious about Florence, the Italian city which had been her home during 11 years of exile. Had it been damaged?

The king was interested in American politics. What was Sen. Truman's background?

Both were curious about food rationing in America, about the B-29 Super Fortresses, about the newest American movies—"we miss them so very much"—and naturally about when the war would end. They asked many questions about the American prisoners evacuated from Romania—many of whom they had visited.

We retired at midnight, the baron to a couch in the drawing room and I to a daybed in the adjacent study.

Waits for King's Shave.

In the morning Styrcea handed me a blue dressing gown and said, "the king is shaving now, so you will have to wait a few minutes."

We sat at the breakfast table until noon, talking of life at the palace. Then we played table tennis on the front terrace, discussed airplanes, and romped with the king's dog, an animal he said he had "swiped" from the Gestapo.

Standing on the terrace, Michael described in detail his arrest of Antonescu, his long automobile dash thru the German lines, and other historic events of Aug. 23, so that I might record them accurately.

"You have a good story for Hollywood," the king chuckled.

305 U.S. INTERNEES FROM BULGARIA REACH TURKEY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 11 (AP). —Three hundred five American soldiers, including 135 officers, arrived today in Istanbul from Bulgaria, where they had been interned.

The group also included eight British officers and 21 British enlisted men. Other allied nationals made up the total.

Sixteen stretcher cases were hospitalized. The others were assigned to Istanbul hotels, pending their departure for the middle east.

FIGHTERS LACK FULL TRAINING, ALLEN CHARGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—Rep. Allen [R., Ill.] charged in the house today that young naval enlisted men are being sent into battle areas without adequate training.

He cited the cases of Seaman Edward C. Lutzens of Sterling, Ill., who he said was sent to the South Pacific three months after enlistment, and of Seaman John T. Neis of Amboy, Ill., 17 years old, who was sent with the Pacific fleet after only 62 days of service.

"For the last two years," Allen told the house, "the radio has asked youths of 17 to join the service, promising they would receive proper schooling and adequate training. The boys with their parents' consent patriotically enlisted, never believing that within two or three months they would be in war zones engaging veteran enemies, while prominent and mature athletes would remain year after year in this country because they happen to be good baseball players."

Allen, who enlisted in the army at 18 and served overseas in World War I., said he knew from experience that thoro training is needed for combat duty.

'FORT' RETURNS FROM RAID WITH LIVE SHELL IN IT

Technical Sgt. Orland Marchini, 24, of 2445 Greenview av., related last night that he and other members of his Flying Fortress crew walked as if on eggs after they returned from a raid over Poland.

A Nazi fighter, it seems, laid a .20 mm. shell in a reserve gasoline tank on the port wing. But it didn't blow up the ship. The pilot made a smooth landing and the crewmen tiptoed away. Ordnance men removed the shell and saved the "Fort."

Marchini, a graduate of Lane Technical High school, completed 32 missions and won the distinguished service cross. He is visiting his sister, Mrs. Josephine Wolos.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 11 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower conferred at Brest on Saturday with Maj. Gen. Troy Middleton, commanding the United States 8th army corps. Yesterday in Brussels, Belgium, he talked with Field Marshal Montgomery. These trips followed a visit to Paris on Friday.

BRITISH RESORTS ASK GOVERNMENT AID IN RESTORING HOTELS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 11. — The Eastbourne Hotels association is seeking government aid in the post-war reconstruction of its resort places. Hotels located on the English south coast are dependent entirely on the holiday trade, which has been curtailed because of war activity along the channel shore.

The Eastbourne association now is striving to secure an interest free loan from the government to enable its members to redecorate their establishments and refurnish them for resumption of holiday activity after the war. At a meeting in the town's chamber of commerce today it was disclosed that 70 per cent of the hotels would need financial assistance to get going again. Spokesmen said the government was unfair if it expects these proprietors to put their premises in order unassisted.

Councillor H. A. C. Dingle, member of the joint London committee on evacuation of distressed costal areas, announced a deputation is being sent to impress upon the government the need for immediate action, but added that he is not hopeful of "any great result."

FRENCH LEADER URGES FREEDOM OF WORLD PRESS

PARIS, Sept. 11 (AP).—A completely free world press as advocated by American journalistic leaders was urged today by Leon Rollin, France's liberation press leader, director of the French news agency.

In a front page editorial in his newspaper, Liberation, Rollin said the free exchange of information was the keystone of world peace. He recommended preparation as soon as possible of a press freedom agreement among the democracies and the eventual formation of a world press conference.

Rollin voiced approval of the proposal introduced in the American house of representatives by Rep. Fulbright of Arkansas calling for international agreements to permit the free circulation of news.

PARENTS ENLIST MAYOR'S AID IN TRANSFER FIGHT

Will Carry Protests to Board Tomorrow.

Mayor Kelly yesterday told a group of 25 parents from the Bryant school, 1355 S. Kedvale av., that he thought their complaints against revocation of school transfer permits this fall were justified and declared that city schools must be redistricted to correct the present muddle.

This, coupled with reports that Supt. William H. Johnson was in conference most of yesterday with the city's nine sectional superintendents and that details of parents' complaints are being prepared for study by board members today and tomorrow morning, indicated that some relief from the pupil scramble may be in sight.

Parents Will Attend.

Objecting parents will be on hand at the board meeting tomorrow at 228 N. La Salle st., spokesmen from all parts of the city promised as they continued to hold protest meetings. It was thought the board might ease the order tomorrow or at least promise a study toward easing it later.

Board members yesterday refused to take a stand on the question of whether the transfers, which allow a student to attend a school outside the district in which he lives, should be revoked. Several members who were contacted said they would wait until they had all the facts before they took a definite stand.

The mayor's declaration for redistricting was the most direct promise of relief yet announced. The mayor said he could promise no instant relief. Supt. Johnson remained firm yesterday on his assertion that no change would be made unless the board orders it.

Schools Refuse Pupils.

Many parents yesterday took their children to their old schools, but met polite rebuffs from principals, who said the children could not be admitted to classes.

More than 100 pupils tried for admittance to O'Toole school, refusing to go to Copernicus and Raster schools. Raster, which was reported to be closing rooms and losing teachers, was ready to receive them in exchange for the 10 shifted from Raster. Copernicus also waited in vain for new pupils.

At Ogden school on the near north side, 60 pupils refused to change schools. Pierce school on the north side also had a crowd of waiting pupils, who were not allowed in class.

Two hundred parents, who protested transfers of children in 20 schools in the Beverly Hills district voted last night to continue daily to accompany the pupils to their former schools and register their attendance in protest of the board's order against transfers.

School Order Transfers Children

(Story in adjoining column.)

Pupils of Ogden school sit on steps of that institution yesterday. They had been transferred to Sexton school, but returned to Ogden instead of reporting to the new classes. Left to right: Johnnie Casement, Edward Swanson, Bobby Peterson, Abigail Casement, Don Saddler, Lester Swanson, and Willie Casement. The Peterson boy had been transferred to the Ogden school from the Sexton school.

U. S. BIDS ALLIES TO MEETING ON WORLD AIRWAYS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—The United States tonight invited all the allied nations and virtually all the neutrals—about 50 in all—to a world aviation conference to be held in this country starting Nov. 1 to chart post-war world air routes.

In addition to laying out a provisional system of routes for international air transport, the invitation proposes that the conferring countries also take these two other steps at the meeting:

1. Establish an "interim council" to serve as a clearing house and a sort of advisory regulatory agency for the period necessary to bring about the creation of a permanent aeronautical body.

2. Agree "upon the principles" to be followed in setting up a permanent international aeronautical body "along with a permanent treaty" covering both the economic and technical aspects of international aviation.

Subjects Already Explored.

The subjects which the United States sets up for the conference have been explored by this government, in preliminary talks with British, Russian, Chinese, and other representatives.

Adolf Berle, assistant secretary of state who has directed the conversations for the United States, is known to be optimistic for early agreement on a route system which would prevent a scramble for international airways assignments at the close of the war.

The countries which have already talked over the subject informally are generally sold on the need for aviation agreements and for controled development of the air transport industry on an international scale.

May Follow Military Routes.

The problem of immediate post-war operation probably will be solved in two stages. The military transport lines set up during the war may continue to serve the European area, with increasing collaboration with private lines, until the aviation conference has worked out assigned routes and private operations can be started on a wide scale.

In the second place, private operations will take over under the supervision of their respective governments which in turn will depend upon the advice of the "interim council" to bring about orderly, profitable operations and eliminate any injustices resulting from the initial provisional system.

Want World Authority.

The governments which participated in the preliminary talks have agreed generally that international planes should have the right to fly over a foreign country as necessary and also to make nontraffic stops; that no two countries should agree to exclude all other countries from operating into their territories; that the traffic within a country and its directly controled political subdivisions should be exclusively for that country's own air lines except where the right to such operations is specifically given to an outsider; that rates and competitive practices should be controled and subsidies gradually curtailed; that there is urgent need to standardize operating and safety measures and navigation aids and communications facilities.

The ultimate objective of these tentative undertakings is the creation of a civil aviation authority for the world, but there is no agreement on exactly how much authority that body should have. Nor is there agreement on the extent to which competition should be curtailed.

CHICAGOAN SAYS MASS FOR YANKS IN CHUTE ROBES

A U. S. GENERAL HOSPITAL, England (AP).—Wearing a set of gothic vestments made from scraps of bullet-torn parachutes used in France on D-day, Chaplain Joseph T. Moos offered a mass for the repose of the souls of men who have died in the war.

Moos is a son of Joseph N. Moos, an organist-composer at Our Lady of Sorrows church, 6550 N. Maplewood av., Chicago.

Before a congregation made up of wounded men from the battle of France and hospital personnel, the chaplain said the mass on an altar decorated with wild flowers in vases converted from 37 mm. shell cases and lighted from candelabra made from scrap metal pieces. The sanctuary light was fashioned from a K-ration can, and a medicine bottle.

D-DAY VETERAN, 15, HAS A BUSY FIRST DAY HOME

Neighborhood interest centered in the William Haddon home at 4150 Harrison st. yesterday where their son, Seaman Gerald Haddon, 15, veteran of D-day landings, was spending his first day of leave.

Between posing for pictures, reading his fan mail and answering questions of envious boy friends, the hero, who served almost a year in the coast guard before his age was discovered, had a busy day.

Haddon took part in 13 landings on the Normandy beach during the first few days of the invasion. Then followed almost 40 days of amphibious assault which he described as "pretty rugged." He was on an LST boat which shuttled across the channel.

Tomorrow the youthful veteran will enroll at Austin High school for his sophomore year. His schooling was interrupted a year ago when he enlisted in the coast guard, giving his date of birth as 1925. He confessed he was worried about returning to school because his classmates would be "kids."

"After all," he explained, "a year in the navy made a man out of me."

NEW PARALYSIS CASES: 1 IN CITY, THREE IN COUNTY

One new case of infantile paralysis in Chicago and three in the county outside the city were reported in the 24 hour period ended at noon yesterday. The reports brought the totals for this year to 92 cases and three deaths in the city and 50 cases and two deaths in the county.

Last year 577 cases of the disease and 58 deaths had been reported to Sept. 11 in the city, and 153 cases and 16 deaths in the county. Thirteen deaths and 130 cases were reported in the city in the week ending Sept. 11, 1943, while 17 cases and one death were reported last week.

Dr. Edward A. Piszczek, county health director, said yesterday that the three new patients were a 9 year old Evanston boy who spent the summer in Massachusetts, where one of his relatives contracted the disease; a 34 year old man from Park Ridge who spent his vacation in Wisconsin; and a 42 year old man from Winnetka whose daughter was stricken in Wisconsin.

ARMY WILL DROP 1,200 OFFICERS IN CHICAGO AREA

Twelve hundred or more temporary army officers on the staff of the 6th service command will be back in civilian clothes by the end of the year, Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand told his headquarters staff and commanders of camps, posts, stations, and districts at his monthly conference in the Civic theater yesterday.

Because most of the temporary officers were commissioned for specialized jobs for which the need rapidly is disappearing, a retraining program will be started at once to prepare those retained for other tasks and to train regular army officers returning from overseas to take over jobs vacated by temporary holders.

Gen. Aurand said he expected to lose about 1,000 of the 16,000 civilians now employed in the command, but expressed hope that too many would not leave for other pursuits. He gave service awards to eight women and two men who have worked for the war department for 10 or more years.

Slightly more than half the 6,000 beds in four army general hospitals in the 6th service command are filled now, Gen. Aurand told his staff. He expects all beds to be filled by the end of the year.

LOSS OF RING REPORTED.

Mrs. Gertrude Boren, 5433 University av., told police yesterday that she had lost a diamond and ruby ring, valued at $880, between her home and Waldheim cemetery.

TEXANS REJECT COMPROMISE ON F. D. R. ELECTORS

Party to Face Showdown at Convention.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 11.—Groups in both anti-Roosevelt and pro-Roosevelt camps today rejected Gov. Stephenson's peace proposal on Texas Presidential electors, which is said to have been approved by President Roosevelt.

The governor said tonight he will present to the state Democratic convention tomorrow his plan to include on the ballot both rival slates of Democratic electors, anti-fourth term and pro-Roosevelt.

Sounds of political strife are in the air.

Tonight the state Democratic executive committee, which is predominantly anti-New Deal, approved the report of the credentials body, which has been busy since Friday on contests and the making of a temporary roll call. The net result of the decisions in the delegate contests was considerably to the advantage of the anti-Roosevelt bloc.

Both Sides Make Claims.

Tonight there is still doubt, however, as to which side, anti-Roosevelt or pro-Roosevelt, will control the convention. Both sides claim it. In general, the antis take the view that Gov. Stevenson, an anti-New Dealer, will be the dominant force. The executive committee approved a report from the resolutions committee approving the governor's efforts to reconcile the differences on the electoral vote.

Slating of a temporary chairman was postponed until the desires of the governor could be obtained. It was reported the committee on temporary officers is considering Robert Calvert, former speaker of the legislature, who is pro-Roosevelt. It was spoken of as a compromise.

Two Sets of Delegates.

One of the two rival sets of Democratic Presidential electors was nominated by the regular state convention in Austin May 23. It is instructed to vote for Democrats other than those on the national ticket. Fifteen of the 23 so named are against the Roosevelt-Truman ticket.

The other slate of 23 electors was named by a rump convention and it is pro-Roosevelt-Truman.

Anti-fourth termers take the view that if the November election is very close the anti-Roosevelt Democratic electors in Texas might have votes enough to keep either Roosevelt or Dewey from getting a majority of the electoral college.

A group of anti-Roosevelt leaders today sent a wire to Gov. Stevenson, voicing opposition to his proposal for two sets of electors. They held that the 23 electors named by the regular Democrats at Austin in May were the authentic nominees. As a counter-plan they proposed that the rump convention slate be placed on the ballot under a designation of its own and not in the Democratic column.

Taken to White House.

President Roosevelt, seeking to mend his political fences in Texas, recently met Gov. Stevenson at the White House. Stevenson was accompanied by Sen. Truman and Secretary of Commerce Jones of Houston. Washington reports at the time said the President, Truman, and Jones approved the governor's proposal.

Gov. Stevenson, an anti-New Dealer, argued his plan would put the decision up to the voters between the anti-Roosevelt and pro-Roosevelt electors.

Late today a group of pro-Roosevelt leaders came out with a statement against the two barreled slate proposal. Among the 13 signers were former Gov. James V. Allred and Herman Jones.

The statement called for the undoing of the work of the May convention, and the placing on the ballot for Democratic electors only those pledged to support the national ticket.

A few days ago Gov. Stevenson was reported as saying that the President and Democratic National Chairman Robert Hannegan both would advise the pro-Roosevelt forces that they favored his plan. As yet no word to that effect has been received according to some pro-Roosevelt men. Hannegan seems especially unpopular among the anti-fourth termers who blame him among other big city party bosses for the seating of the two rival sets of delegates in the convention in Chicago.

As one little sidelight on the party rumpus, it was reported today that the arrangements committee has put some professional wrestlers on the doors of the convention hall here.

Flays Burocrat Wage Boosts; UNRRA Pay Called Record

Assails Raises

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—High salaried New Deal administration executives were charged today in the house with taking overtime pay at a time when the New Deal was denying pay increases to working men on the pretext that such increases would cause inflation.

Fred M. Vinson.

Asserting that the New Deal has deceived the people about inflation, Rep. Landis [R., Ind.] listed instances of employes in the White House, the OPA, the office of economic stabilization, and other agencies receiving overtime pay of $628 a year without any apparent worries about inflation.

Overtime pay for government employes was voted by congress May 5, 1943, after efforts by Republicans to eliminate the high salaried groups from it had been defeated. Overtime is paid only on the first $2,900 of any individual's salary, but the percentage differs in various classifications. The smallest increase any one received was $300 a year.

Bargaining Bill Opposed.

Administration spokesmen in the house last June refused to permit the passage of a Republican sponsored amendment which provided that workers receiving less than $37.50 a week could bargain with their employers without consulting the war labor board, he said.

"They claimed that it would cause inflation," Landis asserted. "About the same time Fred M. Vinson, director of the office of economic stabilization, turned down the railroad men when they asked for an 8 cent an hour increase in wages. Yet Mr. Vinson has received a $2,500 increase in salary, making a total of $15,000 a year for him, plus another increase of $628.32 in overtime. His overtime alone is more than the base pay of a service man."

Hannegan Took Overtime.

Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic national committee, also took overtime pay when he was a collector of internal revenue at $10,000 a year, Landis said.

"Even William H. Davis, chairman of the war labor board, was fearful that the coal miners' raise would create inflation, but he accepted his salary of $10,000 plus the $628.32 overtime pay without a murmur," Landis continued.

"We also find that one of the chief manipulators of the fourth term, one of the 'palace guard' of the White House, David K. Niles, not only receives $10,000 a year from the taxpayers, but is not afraid of promoting inflation by accepting the overtime pay."

Many Top $5,000

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—The united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, which recently was given 450 million dollars to feed and clothe the orphans of war thruout the world, has established the richest scale of government administrative salaries ever known, Rep. Smith [R., O.] disclosed to the house today.

Rep F. C. Smith.

Smith revealed that the UNRRA has not started to distribute relief to Europe, but it has fixed rates of pay for officials and employes which make the usual burocratic salary small by comparison.

He said that in the headquarters office alone, the budget provides for one official at $15,000 a year, one at $14,000, five at $12,000, one at $11,500, and seven at $10,000. He said 65 other persons in the same office receive from $7,000 to $9,000 a year, 114 from $5,000 to $6,000, and 313 from $2,400 to $4,500.

World War Average $1,274.

During and after the World war, $1,274 was the average salary of paid employes in the Washington office of the United States food administrator, which supervised the relief of stricken Europe, Smith recalled.

The UNRRA salaries are equally large in the five other offices set up here and abroad, Smith reported. He said the budget for the "Balkan missions" shows 32 salaries ranging from $7,000 to $9,500 a year and 451 receiving from $2,400 to $6,000.

Smith said the UNRRA "bureau of areas" has 18 salaries set up, ranging from $7,000 to $12,000 a year and 80 others ranging between $2,000 and $6,000. The bureau of supply has 43 in the $7,000 to $12,000 yearly class and 151 from $2,000 to $6,000, he said. There are 14 "Italian mission observers" at $5,000 to $7,000 a year and an office of public information headed by a $10,000 director, 8 assistants at $5,300 to $7,200, and nine others at $2,260 to $3,900, Smith said.

Analyst Gets $8,000.

He said a chief administrative analyst receives $8,000 and a personnel division chief, a clothing division chief, and an industrial equipment chief are down for $8,000 with groups of assistants at $7,000 each.

Smith said he was unable to obtain the salary data from the UNRRA, which maintained it did not have to report on expenditures to congress because it is an international body. He said he obtained the information from reliable sources.

BAR CENSORSHIP OF WAR BALLOT, STATE DEMANDS

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Freedom from censorship of Illinois soldier ballots was demanded yesterday by Atty. Gen. Barrett in letters to Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, as a crew of extra workers at the Chicago election board completed the mailing of 45,000 ballots.

Many applications for ballots have been accompanied by inquiries as to whether the votes will be subjected to military censorship, Barrett was informed by a number of downstate state's attorneys. Barrett recalled reports that primary ballots mailed to the state of Washington bore stamps of army and navy censors despite the fact that the envelopes were clearly marked as containing only ballots.

Un-American, Barrett Asserts.

"Censorship of the ballot is un-American," Barrett wrote to Stimson and Forrestal. "Whenever the rights of free elections and secret ballots have been impaired a fertile field has existed for the rise of dictatorships, nazism, fascism, and all their attendant evils. Under such systems the election process has been an idle gesture.

"The citizens of our nation cannot and will not tolerate such a vicious practice as the censorship of ballots. The valiant men and women fighting to preserve freedom must not have their own freedom destroyed behind their backs."

Censorship Called Illegal.

Citing Illinois statutes and provisions of the soldier voting bill passed by congress, Barrett wrote that it was clearly not the intention that the overseas ballots should be opened by censors.

"I believe it imperative," he wrote, "that you clarify the position of the war and navy departments regarding the censorship of ballots and give your official expression such publicity at home and abroad that no elector in the armed forces will refrain from voting a state absentee ballot because of a belief that his ballot will be censored."

Third of Requests Met.

Under Chief Clerk John Rusch of the Chicago election board, 150 workers yesterday and last night shipped out 20,000 ballots. With the 25,000 previously mailed, this accounted for more than one-third of the 120,000 applications received. An additional 2,000 applications were received yesterday.

Toward the end of the week the election board staff will be able to send out ballots as soon as applications arrive. Mailing began Saturday, allowing 59 days for the round trip between here and overseas.

Ballots for the 1st senatorial district are being held up until the election board makes its decision on objections filed against the independent candidacy of Rep. Ernest A. Greene for the state legislature. John F. Tyrrell, counsel for the Republican organization, told the board yesterday that countless signatures in the petition are patent forgeries.

Friends to Honor Lawyer, 22 Months in Aleutians

A group of friends of Lt. Morton Schnad, Chicago lawyer, who is here on leave after 22 months with the army in the Aleutian Islands, will honor him with a luncheon today in the La Salle hotel. Schnad's home is at 1502 Pratt blvd. Among the guests will be John T. Dempsey, Republican candidate for state's attorney.

LUCAS BEGINS CAMPAIGN WITH DEWEY BLAST

Charges He Exploits Demobilization Plan.

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 11 (AP).—United States Sen. Lucas, Havana Democrat seeking reelection, opened his downstate campaign tonight with a declaration that the United States can be safeguarded only with a program of world security including establishment of an association of peace loving nations equipped to maintain world peace "by force, military, or otherwise."

In a speech at a political meeting in Decatur, Lucas accused the Republican Presidential nominee, Thomas E. Dewey, of having "exploited for political reasons" the subject of demobilization and asserted that if the New York governor is elected President "the wheels of progress in our great war effort would stand still."

Peace Greatest Issue.

Terming preservation of peace the greatest issue of the current campaign, Lucas said there will be "no destruction of our great sea and air armadas after this war" and that they will be the first line of defense in keeping the peace. He added:

"Let the tax payers remember that it will cost us less in one year to insure the peace by force, military, or otherwise, than to prosecute the war for one single afternoon.

"That we will have a world association of nations in which all the peace loving people will meet and act together on the basis of equality is a certainty. That we will maintain the peace of the world by force, military, or otherwise, is also a certainty, and in addition we will have a world court to settle disputes among these nations.

Hits Lyons' Views.

Lucas charged his Republican opponent, Richard J. Lyons, "represents the opposite viewpoint" and suggested such a policy had led to the present war.

Lucas appeared with Edward C. [Ted] Hunter, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor. They plan visits this week to Vandalia, Carbondale, Harrisburg, Shawneetown, West Frankfort, and Marion.

A second caravan of Democratic vote seekers, headed by Thomas J. Courtney for governor and Mrs. Emily Taft Douglas for congress at large, opens a speaking tour tomorrow night at Rockford and continues later in the week at Rock Island, Moline, Galesburg, and La Salle.

William J. Vicars for state auditor and Sveinbjorn Johnson for attorney general leave Bloomington Wednesday for a third Democratic tour.

$1,000 DAMAGE IN FIRE.

LYONS PLEDGES G. O. P. DRIVE TO GET VETS BACK

Lewistown, Ill., Sept. 11 [Special].—Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for United States senator, tonight pledged support to the G.O.P. contention that when the war ends no American fighting men should be kept on duty outside of the United States unless they have volunteered for such service.

Speaking here on one of his stops in his downstate campaign, Lyons fully indorsed the position taken by Gov. Dewey relative to bringing home the veterans and also to keep in congress the control of America's post-war contributions of money and goods to other nations.

"Spoke for Rank and File."

Lyons declared that Dewey, in his address at Louisville last Friday, clearly stated a program for American action to maintain a lasting world peace and added that the Republican candidate for President "spoke for the rank and file of his party and for the vast majority of the people of America."

"He pledged full coöperation with our victorious allies to punish the war criminals, to prevent Germany and Japan from rearming for another war, and to make the German and Japanese people realize once and for all that war does not pay," Lyons said. "He also pledged full and effective international justice and opportunity for all peoples as the only basis for an enduring peace."

Puts America First.

Citing Dewey's plan to give congress authority over post-war contributions to other nations, Lyons declared that he personally pledged the people of Illinois "that when I represent them in the United States senate I shall insist that the security, the welfare, and the prosperity of the plain people of America be the first consideration in all our post-war plans, and that only the congress of the United States shall determine the extent of the cash or goods which we shall sell, or lend, or give to other nations of the earth."

DEATH HELD SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide was returned yesterday at an inquest into the death of Laurence Obsarny, 56, who was found shot to death Sunday on the rear porch of his home at 1718 W. 51st st.

DEWEY CHARGES NEW DEAL FAILS IN WAR, PEACE

Sees Midwest Leaders in Des Moines.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 11. — Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, today cited the New Deal's delinquency in failing to prepare America for war before Pearl Harbor. In the same breath, he charged the Roosevelt administration is similarly delinquent today in failing to prepare the country for peace.

The 42 year old New Yorker arrived here on his special campaign train to devote the day to conferences with Gov. Hickenlooper and other farm leaders on the G. O. P. agricultural program. At a press interview he gave a few of his ideas on food production and distribution and also, jumping from subject to subject in response to questions, struck at White House incompetence in military as well as economic fields.

Jibes at Hillman.

The meeting with about 100 newspaper, magazine, and radio men was enlivened by Dewey's jibes at Sidney Hillman, CIO political leader, and, by indirection, at Marshall Field, publisher of the New York newspaper PM, often referred to as the uptown edition of the Communist Daily Worker.

Dewey was asked whether he had seen Joe Parrish's color cartoon on page one of today's CHICAGO TRIBUNE entitled "The Poodle that Joined the Wolf Pack" and "Reds for Roosevelt" and depicting a long haired little dog with a red bow tie, labeled "playboy publisher," running with two wolves, labeled Hillman and Browder.

"There was no name on the poodle but the face looked familiar," a reporter interjected.

Ignored Preparedness.

The candidate's statements regarding America's lack of preparedness for the war was interpreted as indicating that he is preparing to elaborate upon this theme in a formal address, possibly on the west coast.

"We have an administration seeking reëlection," said Dewey, "which was in office eight years while tremendous forces were rising toward war. Yet it did absolutely nothing to prepare the American people for this war which it now claims to have foreseen. At the end of those eight years, the domestic economy was limping and unproductive with 10 million unemployed. And we had an army of 75,000 men."

The candidate charged there is a parallel in the failure of the administration to prepare for post-war economic problems. He said Washington is at least seven and a half months tardy in planning for reconversion. His time estimate was based on his charge six weeks ago in Pittsburgh that reconversion plans were six months behind requirements if industry is to be ready to shift from war to peace production without a prolonged lag.

Comment on Willkie.

At the press conference, Dewey was asked for comment on a statement by Wendell Willkie in a current weekly magazine article that America must give up some of its sovereignty to participate in collective world security.

"That's a shibboleth," Dewey retorted. "Both parties have agreed that the sovereignty of 60 nations shall be respected in the international peace organization. I think every intelligent person understands that every time you sign an agreement with another nation, to the extent of that agreement, you have been giving up a little something."

Hillman's name was brought into the press conference by a request for comment on the radical New Dealer's criticism of the G. O. P. economic platform.

"Our feeling for each other is mutual," the candidate reported.

HOUSE TOLD PAC BRAZENLY SEEKS TO BUY ELECTION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] today said the national citizens political action committee wants "a purchasable, docile obedient congress."

"They made no secret of their intention, either by persuasion or by purchase, to elect a congress which will do their bidding," he told the house in a speech. "The CIO is compelling some of its members, in order to hold their jobs, to contribute a dollar each to its political slush fund.

"Here for the first time in our history is an open solicitation and collection of millions of dollars which it is publicly stated are to be used to elect a congress. Never was there a more open, brazen effort to purchase an election, buy a congress."

THE QUESTION.

What thoughts entered your mind as you waited to be interviewed for a position the first time?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Pvt. Bob Gordon, Milwaukee, Wis.—The first job I ever applied for was as a chemist in a grainery. I didn't know anything about chemistry and, with my knees knocking and my teeth chattering, I tried to figure out how I was going to get by. The boss took one look at me and told me in so many words to scram.

Jacky Lieberman, receptionist, 7653 Prairie av.—For one thing I was under age when I applied for a job selling silk stockings in a shoe store. I told them I was a senior in high school and I was afraid they would ask me if that was true or not. I got the position and worked for the store for several years.

Sgt. Robert Jacobs, Wood River, Ill.—It was my first year out of college and I felt too young to be a grown-up school teacher. As I sat in the reception room waiting for the principal to interview me for a job I thought, "Do I look too much like a school kid myself?" But I was hired. I was happy to get the job.

Sophie Joffe, school teacher, 6745 Cornell av.—I was curious to know what type of person the school board considered suitable for a teacher. I had to appear before the members and all their eyes were on me. They interviewed me and I left. Three weeks later I learned their decision. They gave me a contract.

Sgt. Joseph Sterk, Calumet, Mich.—What didn't run thru my mind? I kept wondering if I was good enough and whether I was old enough to work as a baker's helper. I had never worked in a bakery but my brother worked there and he gave me a lot of good tips. Then I started wondering if I could work as well as he did.

Cassie Roth, secretary, 6846 Clyde av.—Trying to look older than I was was my greatest concern. I was 16 and had never worn make-up before. I was afraid it didn't look right because no one had helped me apply it. Now I know how it looked, but at the time I thought I had done a pretty good job. They hired me, tho.

FEARS WASTING OF BILLIONS BY WPB UNDER KRUG

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—Rep. Jenkins [R., Ohio] questioned today the qualifications of Julius Krug to head the war production board. Jenkins in a house speech said Krug lacked business experience.

"His principal qualifications," Jenkins added, "are that he has been a New Dealer who takes orders from Frankfurter, Hopkins, and Lilienthal.

"He gives the impression that the administration of the WPB is an easy matter, indicating that congress need not worry further about disposition of a hundred billion dollars in surplus property controled by the government, for it will be disposed of in the typical New Deal manner. We are justified in believing it will be wasted and scattered."

HELD FOR SHOOTING WIFE.

James McGinnis, 48, of 3791 Archer av., was held to the grand jury on $4,500 bond yesterday by Judge William V. Daly in Felony court on three charges of assault to kill. McGinnis shot and wounded his wife, Jane, 52, Aug. 5 because she failed to have dinner ready when he returned home.

'ASK HILLMAN' STORY UNTRUE, HANNEGAN SAYS

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, denied yesterday that President Roosevelt told him to "clear everything with Sidney" Hillman, CIO leader, during the party convention in Chicago.

"The fact is that President Roosevelt, with whom I conferred alone, did not say that," Hannegan asserted while discussing the conversation he had with the President on a train that paused in Chicago on the way to the west coast. "Nor did he say anything else that could have been tortured to convey that meaning. That story is absolutely untrue.

"I don't know who invented it. I presume that Republican orators will keep repeating that favorite bit of fiction until election day in the forlorn hope that some people will believe it is true. I want to get the record straight and identify this one as fabricated out of whole cloth."

Says He Talked with Hillman.

"Would you say that Hillman had no part in shaping the policies of the Democratic convention?" he was asked.

"If he was a delegate he had a vote," was the Hannegan reply.

He was asked if it was true that Hillman had turned thumbs down on James F. Byrnes as a possible nominee for Vice President.

"I talked to Mr. Hillman once during the convention," said Hannegan. "He told me he was for Wallace. I told him I was for Truman."

"Were you the fellow who sidetracked Wallace?"

"It's on the record what happened. One man nominated Sen. Truman and there were four seconds."

Laws Handicap Fund Drive.

The Hannegan press conference highlighted the first of a three day meeting of party leaders from 23 midwest and southern states in the Blackstone and Stevens hotels. The conference is intent on ferreting out dollars for the campaign and discussing organization plans.

Edwin F. Pauley of California, Democratic national treasurer, said a little dolefully that he was about two and one-half millions short on the three million the party proposes to raise.

"It's raising money the hard way under the Hatch act and the Smith-Connally bill," he reported.

Mrs. Ralston One of Busiest.

One of the busier of those in attendance at the meeting was Mrs. Samuel Ralston, who at 83 drives her automobile over Indiana to discharge her duties as national committeewoman. Widow of an Indiana senator, she gave it as her opinion that no matter which party won both were certainly working hard, and added that she is not yet ready for the rocking chair.

Mayor Kelly, Paul Porter, national publicity man, and Gov. Kerr of Oklahoma attended a luncheon in the Blackstone at which Hannegan outlined the plan of procedure. He said that he would visit each state delegation and discuss possibilities with them and the matter will be summarized Wednesday.

EMBASSY AID'S MOTHER FIGHTS FOR HIS RETURN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—An effort to bring about the return to the United States of Tyler Kent, who was convicted in a British court of violating the British official war secrets act and sentenced to seven years in prison while a member of the American embassy staff in London, was begun today in the Supreme court by Kent's mother, Mrs. Ann H. P. Kent of Washington.

Announcing New Flagships

AMERICAN AIRLINES INC. has placed an order with the Douglas Aircraft Co. for 55 huge, four-motored Flagships.

Deliveries of 44-passenger DC-4 Flagships are scheduled to begin about June, 1945.

The DC-4 has been more thoroughly tested than any other plane ever put into service by an Airline—tested in more than one hundred million miles of war operations all over the world. Many millions of these war-miles, over oceans and foreign lands, have been flown in these proved planes by our own American crews, for the Army Air Transport Command. Never in the history of aviation has any other transport plane made such amazing records for fast, dependable and efficient performance under all conditions. American's DC-4 Flagships will cruise at 250 miles an hour on scheduled flights, and will provide unprecedented passenger comfort.

We also will receive a large fleet of 56-passenger DC-6 Flagships, as soon as available. These 8,400-horse power, 100 feet long, luxury airliners are the fastest transport planes available. They have transcontinental and trans-Atlantic non-stop range. We plan to operate DC-6's on regular schedules from coast to coast in approximately 8½ hours and on all of American's other national and international routes. The DC-6 will cruise at more than 5 miles a minute, "over weather." Pressurized cabins will assure maximum passenger comfort at all altitudes.

For the present, and even after we obtain the larger, four-motored Flagships, we expect to continue to operate the current 21-passenger DC-3 Flagships with which American, thanks to the public's patronage, has established its leadership. We aim to retain this position by continuing to deserve it. To that end, our program for new, fast equipment is part of our plans for even better service, for many more passengers and for shippers of Air Express and Airfreight.

SUPREME COURT REFLECTS F. D. R. AIMS, BAR TOLD

Losing People's Respect, Parley Here Hears.

BY ROY GIBBONS.

Charges that the United States Supreme court reflects the political purposes of the Roosevelt administration, that it has created uncertainty in interpretations of the law and that it is losing respect of the people are contained in a resolution offered for consideration yesterday before the American Bar association.

The association is holding its 67th annual convention with 3,000 members in attendance. Sessions which continue thru Thursday are being held in the Drake, Knickerbocker, and Stevens hotels and in the Medinah club. Yesterday's speakers included Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] who warned against the Roosevelt administration's trend "in the direction of a social service state" as reflected by mounting New Deal real estate operations. [Highlights of Sen. Brooks' talk are in the business section.]

Democrat Makes Resolution.

The unusual resolution condemning the Supreme court was submitted by J. Cleo Thompson, a southern Democrat of Dallas, Tex., at the request of that city's bar association which Thompson, a member of the A. B. A.'s important house of delegates, formerly headed as president. It stated:

"That the Supreme court of the United States is losing if it has not already lost, the high esteem in which it has been held by the people, an esteem created by their belief that it had always remained free of political, personal and unworthy motives, and had interpreted and declared the law as it is written, according to tradition and precedent, and agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

"Lately it has repeatedly overruled decisions, precedents, and ignored landmarks of the law of long standing, without assigning any valid reason therefor, and contenting itself with the assertion that these precedents have been eroded by the processes of the years; or basing its decision on casuistry and sophistry rather than logic.

Law Is Confused.

"Unless cases be disposed of by application of known principles and previously disclosed courses of reasoning, our common law process would become the most intolerable kind of ex post facto judicial lawmaking.

"By disregarding these principles and these processes, and by vacillations and uncertainties and the inconsistencies of its decisions, the Supreme court has created such a state of uncertainty as to what the law is that it has rendered it impossible for even the practicing lawyer to advise his clients as to what the law is today, or even offer a guess as to what it will be tomorrow. Its decisions reflect the governmental philosophy and political purpose of the administration by which its judges were appointed and of which many of them have recently been a part, rather than an application of established law."

Would Outlaw Strikes.

Other resolutions submitted included a recommendation by a special committee calling upon the house of delegates to approve passage of proposed legislation for the creation of an international court to prevent recurrence of wars.

Apparently aimed against one-sided OPA hearings, a resolution introduced by Joseph P. Harrington of Chicago asks for legislation making mandatory a jury trial in any federal litigation involving human or property rights. A law "with teeth in it" to outlaw all strikes in all war plants during the war was requested by Louis S. Cohane of Detroit, Mich.

R. L. Maitland, president of the Canadian Bar association, and Manley O. Hudson, member of the permanent court of international justice, also spoke last night.

GIRLS WHO SAVE NICKEL FOR G.O.P. OPEN MEETINGS

Party leaders praised the project. They already have had occasion to call upon club members for secretarial work and have been pleased with the results. Werner Schroeder, national committeeman for Illinois, and George B. McKibbin, in charge of western headquarters, spoke to the 35 office workers present.

Gets Divorce

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Ruth Demas and her daughter, Janet, in the county building yesterday.

Mrs. Ruth Demas, 19, of 7602 Sheridan rd., told Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court yesterday that her husband, Nicholas, 26, struck her because she was too tired to cook a roast chicken dinner when she got home at midnight Aug. 7, after working since 6 a. m. in his grocery at 643 Howard st.

Mrs. Demas, questioned by her attorneys, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, said her husband also abused her when she asked for money to buy shoes for their daughter, Janet, when she was six months old. She said Demas shouted that the girl was too young to wear shoes.

Judge Sabath awarded her a divorce on the ground of cruelty. She accepted $900 instead of alimony, and will receive $50 a month for the support of the child. They were married Oct. 14, 1942, and separated Aug. 7.

DEMAND F. D. R. FIX BLAME FOR PEARL HARBOR

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11.—Disclosure in the house today of new evidence that negligence in Washington apparently was responsible for the Pearl Harbor disaster evoked a demand from Republican members for immediate action by President Roosevelt to fix the blame for the catastrophe.

Rep. Forest Harness.

The evidence was unfolded on the house floor by Rep. Harness [R., Ind.], who said he had been informed that Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander in the Pacific when Japan struck, stands ready to appear before congress or any other official tribunal and present "documentary proof" clearing him of responsibility for the nation's greatest military defeat.

Harness said that altho he did not speak officially for Gen. Short, he based his statement on "thoroly reliable" information.

Full Record of Dealings.

The documentary file in Gen. Short's hands, Harness said, consists of more than 250 pages, including a full record of Short's dealings with his superiors in Washington during the 10 months prior to the attack.

The evidence, secreted for nearly three years by the New Deal high command, will show that Gen. Short's repeated demands for munitions for "adequate defense" were refused by his superiors in Washington, Harness charged.

It will show further, the congressman said, that our government in Washington was warned three days before Pearl Harbor that part of the Japanese navy was heading toward Pearl Harbor, but that this warning was never sent to Gen. Short.

Warnings Not Heeded.

"There appears to be an abundance of evidence," Harness told the house, "that 72 hours before the attack on Pearl Harbor the Australian government advised the American government in Washington that an aircraft carrier task force of the Japanese navy had been sighted by Australian reconnaissance headed toward Pearl Harbor; that our government was again notified 48 hours before the attack that this Japanese task force was still in progress toward Hawaii, and the same notification was sent 24 hours before Pearl Harbor. None of this information, I am informed, was given to Gen. Short."

Rep. Allen [R., Ill.], told the house that the disclosures by Harness call for action by President Roosevelt to have prompt court-martial trials of Gen. Short and Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, navy commander at the time of the attack, who has publicly demanded such a trial.

"The administration has delayed these trials for nearly three years," Allen said.

Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.], also demanding a public airing of the facts, declared that "since the commander in chief takes credit for the victories, he should certainly take the blame for defeats."

Lays Blame on F. D. R.

"Who else is to blame for Pearl Harbor," Harness asked, "if not the commander in chief? Who had the inside facts before the attack if not the White House, the state department, and the secretaries of war and navy?

"The commander in chief has concealed the truth of this great disaster by denying a hearing to Gen. Short and Adm. Kimmel, where the true facts could be made public."

The documents will show, Harness continued, that Gen. Short did not receive until eight hours after the attack a message from the "chief of staff in Washington," stating that our government expected an ultimatum from Japan at 1:30 p. m. Dec. 7 and that Japan had told its emissaries to destroy the Jap code.

The message, the congressman said, was sent from Washington at 1:30 a. m. six hours before the attack, but went by commercial cable instead of more rapid direct military means.

SCHOOL OF REDS ENLISTS COLLEGE AND CIO 'PROFS'

New York, Sept. 11 [Special].—The CIO will provide many of the teachers at the fall term of the Communists' Jefferson School of Social Science, an inspection of its new catalog disclosed today, according to the World-Telegram.

Earl Browder.

This latest educational enterprise of Earl Browder's is tapping other sources of instructors, including Columbia university, the board of education, the civilian defense volunteers organization, the Child Study Association of America, and the New York School of Social Work.

The rest of the staff will be comprised of old Communist party intellectual stalwarts, officers of various Communist fronts, current writers for the Communist Daily Worker and some of the New York City college teachers fired in the 1940-41 legislative inquiry into subversive activities in the city school system.

The school was started last January after the Communist party decided to adopt 100 per cent Americanism as its own and was named for Thomas Jefferson in line with its practice of assuming labels designed to trade on American historical figures. Previously the party had used the names of Lincoln and Tom Paine for similar propaganda purposes. The Abraham Lincoln school is in Chicago.

One of the most prominent additions to the faculty is Dr. Walter Rautenstrauch, executive officer of Columbia's department of industrial engineering. He is to teach "aims and methods of national planning."

Listed as a guest lecturer is Saul Mills, secretary treasurer of the greater New York industrial union council, local arm of the CIO political action committee. Other CIO unions are represented on the staff, including the National Maritime union, federal workers, fur dressers, electrical workers, architects and engineers, and the office and professional workers unions.

Also listed as an instructor is D. Kazakevich, who was dropped from the army special training faculty at Cornell university last year after disclosure of his record as a professional propagandist for the Communists here. Another listed is Sergei Kournakoff, who writes a column for the Daily Workers under the pseudonym "The Veteran Commander."

FLOOR IS FIXED ON TUITION FOR RETURNED VETS

$10 Month Guaranteed to Colleges Selected.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—The veterans' administration, on the advice of leading educators, tonight guaranteed to pay tuition of at least $10 a month, $30 a quarter, or $40 a semester for the college education of war veterans.

Besides creating this "floor" under tuition, the agency decided to permit state and municipal colleges to charge their "nonresident" tuition for all veterans, regardless of whether they are residents.

"Nonresident" tuition is generally higher than the amount charged a resident of the state or city.

"Fair" Tuition Allowed.

In making these decisions Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, recognized the low cost of tuition in most tax supported institutions and yielded to the requests of state educators that the "customary tuition" provision of the service men's readjustment act [G. I. bill of rights] should not be interpreted strictly.

The law allows Hines to pay "fair and reasonable" compensation whenever he determines that the ordinary tuition is "inadequate."

The veterans administration will pay to the college, besides the customary tuition [not lower than the minimum announced tonight], laboratory, library, health, infirmary, and other regular fees, in addition to the cost of books, supplies, and other necessary equipment. The law requires that the total of all these payments for any one veteran shall not exceed $500 in an ordinary school year.

Money for board and lodging is paid directly to the veteran and is not affected by the announcement.

School Year Defined.

An "ordinary school year" was defined as two semesters or three quarters, not less than 30 nor more than 38 weeks. Under this definition an institution may be paid as much as $500 for each "ordinary school year."

Hines disclosed that 10,000 veterans have applied for training; that 5,600 already have been ruled eligible for the training and that 422 are at present attending colleges.

An advisory committee of four educators, meeting in the week-end, recommended approval of the tuition policies "until additional and more particular information may be available."

The committee included Dr. Horace S. Ford, treasurer, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Rufus C. Harris, president, Tulane; Dr. Robert G. Sproul, president, University of California, and Dr. Robert B. Stewart, comptroller, Purdue.

CHASES, SHOOTS PAROLEE AFTER FOUR HOLDUPS

Herman Hacker, 30, of 3413 Le Moyne st., a parolee, was shot in the left arm yesterday by Policeman Harold Wilk after a chase which began on Elston av. near Bryn Mawr av. and ended at 6700 Milwaukee av.

Herman Hacker.

Hacker had hitched a ride at Division st. and Sacramento blvd., from Willis Wood, 1410 Bryn Mawr av. At Wabansia and Hermitage avs. he forced Wood out of the car and drove away. At 4554 Monticello av., he held up a milk wagon driver, I. Seeman of 5723 N. Spaulding av., and obtained $10. As Mrs. Mina Keren of 5411 Bernard st., got out of her car in front of her home, Hacker snatched her ration book holder and 50 cents and then tried to start her car, but failed, police said.

His last holdup was at Strong st. and Laramie av., where he took $25 from Theodore Drogroszewski, of 945 N. Damen av., a bakery truck driver. Police picked up his trail a short time later and shot and captured him.

Vacation Change

Judge John P. Barnes, before——And After.

Senior Judge John P. Barnes, back from a two months vacation, appeared in federal District court yesterday morning with a full beard and mustache which, attorneys, court attaches, and reporters agreed, made him look not unlike former Supreme Court Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

Judge Barnes explained that he did not like to shave, and that he thought he might be able to save some time by throwing away his razor. "Two things I dislike most are shaving and dressing," he said.

The judge said he had an excellent vacation and that he was ready to return to work.

FIST FIGHT ENDS UMW CAUCUS OF ANTI-LEWIS MEN

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 11 (AP).—The caucus called by forces trying to expand district self-government in the United Mine Workers broke up in disorder today when opponents walked into the room and shouted demands for recognition.

Two men were exchanging punches in the midst of a milling throng and shouting as Ray Edmunson of Illinois, leader of the movement, declared "meeting adjourned" and hurried out without pausing to pick up his coat.

William Blizzard of Charleston, W. Va., a supporter of UMW President John L. Lewis, took over the chair and the caucus was turned into an anti-Edmundson meeting.

Edmundson also faced the possibility tonight of having neither voice nor vote when the miners' convention, opening tomorrow, reaches the controversy over autonomy of union locals. Challenges have been filed against his credentials and those of three other delegates from the same local union in Springfield, Ill.—Lewis' local union.

Lewis Backers Come In.

Edmundson was in charge of the caucus at a hotel here when four men, identified by witnesses as friends of the UMW administration, entered the meeting room. Two of them headed for the platform where one of the Edmundson forces was addressing the crowd, estimated at three to four hundred.

"No matter what you do," Edmundson shouted as he sighted the pair advancing to the platform, "you are not going to break up this meeting. You are not recognized."

Holds Lewis Responsible.

One of the men hopped upon a table on the platform, demanding to be heard and was joined by his companion a few moments later. Pushing and punching started and Edmundson left the room, declaring: "Lewis cannot escape the responsibility for this."

Edmundson said he believed about 25 of the men in the room thruout the caucus were Lewis sympathizers.

As a result of the challenges against Edmundson's credentials, under rules of the organization, Edmundson's name does not appear on the partial report of the credentials committee which will be submitted to the convention.

MR. CHURCHILL COMES TO QUEBEC.

Mr. Churchill is in Quebec to help Mr. Roosevelt win an election. There is enough American blood in the British prime minister for him to have a complete savvy of the maneuver in which he has a share. The English part of him would not understand why the Americans must have a war time election upon which the government is dependent. England suspended elections for the war. However, Mr. Churchill, altho all for England, is not all of England. The Virginia admixture in his blend is aware that if he is to have the pleasure of dealing with Mr. Roosevelt at the finish of the war in Europe and in the peace making which follows it Mr. Roosevelt must have a majority of the Presidential electors.

Mr. Churchill would know that Mr. Roosevelt's countrymen long had deep convictions on the subject of tenure in the White House and held it to the discredit of any man that he should seek to ignore usage. Mr. Churchill would understand this because in his country such usage gets the effect of law. Mr. Churchill's king could veto an act of parliament. The prerogative is the king's. Usage, since Anne's time, has been against it. The prerogative is dead. George VI. could no more veto an act of parliament than Edward VIII. could marry Mrs. Simpson.

It follows in Mr. Churchill's mind that Mr. Roosevelt, in his fourth term campaign, must be a politically passive indispensability. The office must be thrust upon him and he must be much too busy with such affairs as Mr. Churchill will seem to bring him to be able to take part in vote getting. He must seem not to know that an election campaign is in progress. When he was told that he had been nominated he was busy as commander in chief in a Pacific coast navy yard, on his way to Hawaii. He had not been so disengaged as not to tell the nominating convention to get rid of Henry Wallace and give him Mr. Truman. Politics raised its disconcerting head for the moment and then retired abashed from Mr. Roosevelt's otherwise unpolluted precincts.

The king's first minister is willing to help Mr. Roosevelt in any way he can. He knows he cannot make a political speech for his choice for the Presidency and do his choice any good. He can, however, lend a hand in putting on a show, and it is well worth his while to make the trip to Quebec. He helps create an impression of the fourth term candidate as engrossed in matters of supreme importance to the world and indifferent to his own political fortunes, which, it happens, are paramount in his mind but must not be paramount in appearances.

Nor is the trip to Quebec a waste of Mr. Churchill's time. It is another opportunity to act as mentor. If Mr. Roosevelt should be destined to sit in the peace conferences he should get his line and know what to do, what to accept, what to reject, and how to get out of payment on some of the promissory notes he has issued.

FATHER OF FIVE.

The Argentine government is threatening criminal proceedings against Senor Franco de Diligenti, the gentleman who, a little over a year ago, became the father of a set of quintuplets. It seems that to spare himself, his wife, and his offspring a degree of notoriety that he did not covet, he registered the births of his quints at two different offices, three of the youngsters being entered on one set of books as triplets and the other two on another as twins. Now he is charged with falsifying a public record. Presumably in Spanish that is not a pun.

It is possible, of course, that after having had a year to think it over, Senor de Diligenti has decided that, as his ruse failed, he might just as well enjoy such benefits as may be coming to the father of a set of quints. If that is his present attitude, he may welcome a judicial inquiry which, by establishing his guilt, will also authenticate the obstetrical phenomenon.

For our part, we choose to believe that Senor de Diligenti is a conscientious father who has no desire to profiteer at the expense of his children's happiness. We can believe this the more readily because the behavior of the Argentine government, being utterly senseless, pettifogging, and inconsiderate, is what can generally be expected of governments in such matters.

Every useful purpose that can be served by birth registrations was served when Senor de Diligenti registered his five youngsters in two batches. Everybody's interest was protected. The state was informed that a few years hence it must provide schooling for five more kids. The children were protected in their citizenship and as potential heirs. The parents dodged none of their moral or legal responsibilities. The experts who are interested in the movement of the birth rate were given a correct total upon which to meditate. A ruse, calculated to safeguard a family against gawkers, harmed no one, but the merely technical falsification of a public record was enough to throw the burocrats into a tantrum and start them on a criminal proceeding.

There was a time in this country when we were spared a great deal of that kind of nonsense, because we didn't have big government. The New Deal has filled the void. We were once a prosperous people because taxes were low. We were once a happy and self-confident people because in those days a man knew that if he behaved himself reasonably and peaceably, dodging none of his responsibilities and doing no injury to his neighbor, the law was on his side. We were once a free people because there wasn't a host of burocrats to meddle in essentially private concerns. Now we are scarcely better off than Argentinos.

LEGION RESOLUTIONS.

The American Legion national convention, to be held in Chicago Sept. 18 thru Sept. 20, will be asked to indorse a resolution urging ownership or control of islands essential to America's security and other resolutions calling for universal military training and continuation of the congressional committee investigating un-American activities. The strong, pro-American course which the Legion membership has charted for nearly three decades has been of great value to the nation. The resolutions which will be submitted to the 1944 American Legion convention show that the pattern of Americanism is fully as strong within Legion ranks today as it was 26 years ago when the first veterans of the Meuse and Marne came home.

A DUTY OF EMPLOYERS TO EMPLOYES.

Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has been trying to focus public attention on the need to safeguard employes against the loss of income thru illness and old age. He believes that the social security program ought to be extended to more employments and more risks. In an article in the Casualty and Surety Journal, summarized in THE TRIBUNE recently, he seemed to be taking the position that the private insurance companies had amply demonstrated their capacity to carry such new functions. Later in the week at the Executives' Club of Chicago he urged the extended coverage be a part of the social security system, but under state or local governments rather than the national government.

The full text of Mr. Johnston's statements would no doubt clear up some apparent contradictions in his two statements. It may be that on matters of detail we would differ with him, but on the main issue of more adequate protection for the working man we are in full agreement. We have long felt that employers ought to assume many of the risks to which their employes are subject. Certainly every continuing and successful business should do this if only as an expression of gratitude to those who have contributed to the success of the enterprise.

The first risk which comes to mind is some form of disability which results in lost time. It has been found that on the average wage earners are sick enough to be away from work seven days per year. With many who later return to work the disability runs into many weeks or months. The pay loss of workers in this country on account of sickness in an average year has been estimated to be 2 billion dollars. To this must be added the loss of pay as a result of accidents to employes not connected with their work.

The employe is commonly supposed to provide against such emergencies with his savings or insurance, but too often it is found that the disabled man's bank account has run dry and his insurance has been allowed to lapse. Must the unfortunate workman turn to his friends, relatives, or loan sharks? We think that it is the duty of the employer to help. An employes' benefit plan providing for such emergencies was established at THE TRIBUNE many years ago. Those who work for us one year get their full pay for six weeks in case of disability by accident or sickness and half pay for six weeks more. These benefits increase so that the employe with a service record of 10 years and over gets paid for a year, if incapacitated, six months at the full rate and six months at half rate. Almost half of our staff are 10 year veterans.

The fear of an impoverished old age is a nightmare with countless persons. Whatever preconceptions we may have had in regard to the duty to be thrifty, the fact is that it is the rule to be dependent in old age. Several years ago it was discovered that nearly a quarter of those over 65 were on the bounty in whole or in part. Others are supported by children who unfairly have been looked upon as old age insurance. Many are dependent upon other relatives. The majority passing 65 live to some extent at the expense of others.

THE TRIBUNE has for many years believed that it is not enough to say that the employe should have saved for his old age. There are too many ways to lose one's means. Long before social security employes of THE TRIBUNE were protected in their old age by a pension plan whose benefits were larger than the government provided. Since the social security taxes were levied the pension plan provides for supplementary payments by us of an amount to bring the total received by the pensioner up to the amount payable under the original plan.

Such risks are by no means the only ones the employer ought to cover and that THE TRIBUNE does cover. Until recently nation-wide studies showed that half of those who died while employed left no insurance for their wives and children. Employers quite generally have helped to cover this risk by purchasing group insurance for their employes at low cost to them. More employers should do so. We think many more should follow our example in paying benefits to the wives and families of men in service. We put this plan into effect in June and by so doing relieved many hardships.

Employers who undertake such responsibilities as we have mentioned must do so with the understanding that the cost does not come out of wages. Nor may there be any discrimination as between those covered by collective bargaining agreements and those who are not. The sort of employer we have in mind will have pay standards at least as high as those prevailing in the industry and community. He will protect his workers against unfortunate contingencies of life because he believes that to be a part of his function as an employer. At any rate that is the philosophy underlying the conduct of this newspaper.

It is announced that the Paris Metro has ceased to run. No wonder since underground France has now come to the surface.—London Daily Telegraph.

FRONT LINE NAMES.

Limburg has been briefly illuminated by the rockets' red glare on the western front, and one is reminded of the cheese that bears its name: a lowly, plebeian flavorer of rye-bread sandwiches, often mentioned with derision because of its powerful odor, repellent to dainty nibblers. But it is an honorable name and can be found among the titles of ancient European nobility.

* * *

Limburg is a province in Holland, a province and town in Belgium, and a town in the Hessian region of Germany. The cheese originated in the Belgian province, where the spelling is Limbourg; its manufacture spread over northern Europe and to the United States. Pampered Americans seldom smell it now, but 40 years ago and more it was common on the free-lunch counters of workingmen's saloons. In the era when labor carried tin lunch pails which became containers for draft beer from the nearest saloon, the rye-with-Limburger sandwich was much in evidence.

THE LIGHTS OF NORFOLK.

(For Jean and Mel.)

Now Norfolk is a navy town
Set low beside the sea,
A town of ships, and navy folk,
And breezes strong and free;
And O, the lights of Norfolk-town
Can make a heart beat fast
When word is flashed, "The carrier
Is back in port at last."

A navy flyer's bride must live
With worry, ache, and care;
A navy flyer's gone so long,
No knowing when or where;
But O, the lights of Norfolk-town
Are very good to see,
When words are whispered over wires,
"My darling! Come to me!"

Casual.

From a Relative of D'Artagnan.

Linemaster: I was surprised to find D'Artagnan, hero of the romances of Dumas, described on Aug. 17 as a fictitious character. As a matter of fact, D'Artagnan was a very real person. My own family archives attest that fact, as follows: Louise Alfonsine de Berghes married, in second marriage, Feb. 4, 1713, Louis de Montesquiou, called the Chevalier d'Artagnan. Said Louis de Montesquiou, Chevalier d'Artagnan, later Count de Montesquiou, had been a musketeer in 1691 and finally sub-lieutenant of the first company of musketeers in 1729; he was a cousin of Charles de Baatz de Castelmore, second son of Bertrand de Baatz and of Françoise de Montesquiou, sister of Henri de Montesquiou, first of the name, who married Jeanne de Gassion, of which marriage he had Henri de Montesquiou, second of the name, who married Ruth de Fortaner, and had of this marriage Louis de Montesquiou above named. The said Charles de Baatz de Castelmore took the name D'Artagnan, which belonged to the younger branch of the family of his mother, under which name he made himself illustrious, and was killed at the siege of Maestricht on June 25, 1673, being captain-lieutenant of the first company of the King's Musketeers.

The last mentioned D'Artagnan was the great D'Artagnan of the Dumas romances. Other abundant proof of his reality exists, including such authorities as the memoirs of the duke de Saint-Simon, the biography of D'Artagnan by Courtilz de Sandraz, and many others. Incidentally, it may be interesting to note that Dumas purloined his story of the Three Musketeers, almost in its entirety, from the "Memoirs of D'Artagnan," by Courtilz de Sandraz. I am fortunate in having in my library a copy of the latter, a rare book, little known and little read today, which yields little, if at all, in interest to the famous romance of Dumas.

Mrs. P. M. writes: "My husband has been stationed in Hawaii for more than two years, and there seems to be little hope of his obtaining a furlough, which would permit him to return to the States. I have a great deal of business experience, and since we have no children, I wonder if it would be possible for me to obtain government work in Hawaii so I could be with him."

The United States civil service commission informs us that, due to an agreement between the state department and the navy department and an administrative policy of the war department, women with relatives in the army, navy, or marine corps, in the territory of Hawaii may not be appointed to positions there.

PENICILLIN PACKS FOR SKIN LESIONS.

SINCE the discovery of many new germ destroyers, such as penicillin and the sulfonamides, great interest has been exhibited in the local application of these remedies to the skin. This has led to the development of ointments containing various sulfa drugs, many of which have been highly successful. The trouble with some of the older chemicals was that occasionally the preparation itself would be irritating.

Within recent months, attempts have been made to employ penicillin against infections of the cuticle. Such a plan has many advantages. By placing the material directly on the lesion, a high concentration can be utilized in a small area, thus preventing spread of the microbes. Furthermore, complicating organisms will be discouraged and rendered harmless.

The suggestion has been offered that gauze could be soaked in a solution of penicillin and brought into contact with the affected parts. One of our most common and unsightly facial blemishes is impetigo. The disorder is bound to increase, particularly among youngsters, during the first two or three months following the opening of school. Occasionally, the malady will prove stubborn. Treatment with penicillin has given extremely gratifying results. Cases that would ordinarily require from two or three months to cure, have been wholly eradicated within a week.

In fact, an adult with involvement of the bearded region, which had resisted every method of control, responded within 10 days. Another patient, treated with a combination of ammoniated mercury, the sulfonamides, and gentian violet, was in the grip of the malady at the end of five months. Within two weeks every vestige of trouble disappeared under a penicillin pack.

The experience of a Honolulu physician [H. M. Johnson] warrants the assumption that this mold extract will probably supplant the sulfa compounds, where it can be used locally and its effects observed carefully. In one instance, intense itching about the lower bowel orifice, no doubt due to bacterial irritation, yielded completely within a few days. The symptom had been present for months and had driven the sufferer well nigh distracted.

In another case, which presented slow-healing ulcers, from the depths of which it seemed impossible to eliminate visiting microbes, the sores took on a healthy appearance after only a few days' exposure to the solution.

Fortunately, penicillin is now available in generous quantities and many additional and useful applications will no doubt be discovered. Thus far, there has been no record of a serious toxic reaction. We know that it can be injected deep within the muscles, administered into a vein, applied to an open wound, or even inhaled as a spray. The very harmlessness of the product enhances its value manyfold.

HAIR VITAMIN.

D. Y. writes: I've been told that pantothenic acid helps to restore pigment to gray hair. What foods contain this substance?

REPLY.

Restoration of color to hair has been demonstrated in experimental animals. Some individuals who exhibit "silver threads among the gold" are suffering from a vitamin deficiency. Dried brewer's yeast, liver, eggs, wheat bran, and peas contain the largest amount of this fraction of B.

WILLING DEATH.

E. M. writes: If a person has a complex that he is going to die at a certain age, merely because he wills it, will he pass to his reward when that set date arrives?

REPLY.

If you do not admit the possibility, many a novelist will be deprived of an interesting plot. As a rule, occurrences of this character are mere coincidences. It is true, however, that emotions influence physical well-being profoundly.

CHILDREN'S MOVIES.

A. K. writes: Do you think it is wise to send children to the movies?

REPLY.

To my way of thinking, there is too much parking of youngsters in movie houses, in order to get rid of them. No consideration is given to the theme presented. Shows which teach history and elementary science, as well as certain types of comedy are suitable. But torrid love scenes, melodrama, and horror films should be avoided.

NO EFFECT.

K. M. writes: I am troubled with hot flashes [menopause] and have been wondering if donating blood would help to relieve them.

REPLY.

Probably not. Neither will it be harmful. You may need sex hormones.

Diversion . . . or Is It?

It seemed a good idea at the moment to get the troubled mind away from the Lublin incinerary, the Frenchman whose hands were cut off by the Nazis, the hospital trains, the splenetic accusations of rival politicians, and the high price of cauliflower, so we turned to a lovely shining magazine for shining people.

Feeling a trifle uncomfortable at this point with those bows flirting at our toes, for this did not seem to us absolutely right in feeling, we skipped the short coat with luxuriant fullness that swathes the figure for an entirely different silhouette; skipped the new face powder created to achieve subtly that radiant lustrous look which is the latest face fashion; skipped the perfume that is a bright barb of sophistication, a scintillating wine bouquet at once sparkling and sultry [say that again]; skipped the slim rapier silhouette; skipped the austerely simple sweater top silhouette, an understatement in line but touched off by the brilliance of gold cloth; skipped the cascade of white fox, platina-dyed, on pontiff purple, a breath-taking original; skipped the envelope drape that panels the top with brilliant color edged in embroidery; skipped the happy medium, not too casual, not too dressy, not too simple, not too fussy; skipped that heavenly moment when autumn moves, overnight, into town, prompting in you a sudden urge for a perfume whose polished urbanity belongs with this season's excitements with its verge-of-adventure feeling.

We skipped, skipped, skipped. We skipped the hat that may be a dish perhaps of pink tulle or a fluff of ostrich. We skipped the dress with the sash that stops at the neckline. We skipped that wonderful look worn with long slim dinner clothes. We skipped the admonition to expect the unexpected in ermine this winter [ermine is going to appear in the most offhand manner].

We skipped, skipped, skipped, and we almost skipped an article called "Observer in India" with the subtitle "Fighting on the Burma Front." The article, together with its photographs, was the work of that shining photographer, Cecil Beaton. If we had skipped it, sad would have been our rhinestoned, ostriched, flirty toed lot, gone would have been our absolutely right feeling, for altho one of Mr. Beaton's pictures almost gave one the idea there was war in India [a deserted army truck off the road at dusk in the forward Chin hills area in Burma], the others quickly ended that. One depicted a dancer on the shore beside Government House, Bombay, the surf kicking up behind him/her, his/her white shirt ballooning in the breeze, his/her twisting arms a winged silhouette against the sky. The other was a picture of the Princess of Berar wearing her famous pearls [of which this unexpected reader had never heard]. She had on seven strands. She sat in a window, done up all in white, her black hair foaming down her neck. It was a glimpse of spacious shadows, gracious poise, and the expected. It was absolutely right in feeling.

CHRISTMAS MAIL TO FIGHTING MEN.

Camp Knight, Cal., Sept. 3.—As a soldier who is ready to spend his third year with the overseas Christmas mail rush which starts Sept. 15, here are my comments:

May I ask each mailer of a parcel to a service man or service woman to make doubly certain that the parcel is addressed correctly? Be sure to use the army serial number and include the full address in the parcel also. In event the address is lost, the parcel can be forwarded.

Please do not send anything perishable. Wrap any glass container well and pad the box with corrugated cardboard, top, sides, and bottom. Use heavy wrapping paper and tie securely with strong cord. Mail as early as possible and rest assured the army post-office boys will do the rest.

If this letter will bring a thousand extra well wrapped packages this year, then I can truthfully say I have done something for a fellow man and for a brother soldier who is overseas.

EXTERMINATING RAGWEED.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—The hay fever season is now about at its height, and thousands of people in Chicago are suffering greatly from it, unless they are fortunate enough to get away.

The city has made a half-hearted attempt to clear out ragweed, but the south side is covered with it, both on the vacant lots and in parkways. Gov. Green's efforts in the direction of exterminating ragweed are certainly appreciated. Hay fever is looked upon by many people as a joke, but you might as well consider a 30 day toothache as something to laugh at.

POLITICKING AT A GARDEN PARTY.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 5.—Evanston people experienced Saturday and Sunday at the garden festival some acquaintance with the methods of Democratic Candidate Curtis McDougall, for representative of the 10th district. At this civic, patriotic, war time activity, the visitors who were admiring the beauty of the flowers or the utility of food grown in war gardens were repeatedly accosted by bearers of his campaign literature to the extent of greatly reducing the pleasure of observing the splendid results of the public spirited gardeners.

Fortunately, no other candidate for office intruded in this manner. Perhaps Candidate McDougall did not know this was being done and it was the idea of overzealous young university students who are working for him. If candidate McDougall teaches his students such rudeness, it is indeed unfortunate for society.

"LIBERATED" HOLLAND.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—"Dutch to stay under the rule of a dictatorship" was the headline of a story by William Strand in this morning's TRIBUNE. I cannot see how we can use the term "liberated Hollanders" when the queen takes the right to requisition all communications and buildings and the control of the press, public meetings, and demonstrations.

It seems to me that the people of Holland are pushed from the frying pan into the fire. The German signs of "verboten" [forbidden] are coming down and the Dutch signs of "verboden" [forbidden] are going up. It is contrary to all Dutch freedom.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Can a landlord be held responsible for moth damage to lessee's clothing when it is certain that moths are present in the hall carpet?

Probably not, since the tenant would have equal opportunity to estimate the risk and in general the obligation would lie upon him to protect his clothing.

days," Churchill replied. "But I was frightfully sick."

"I've lost some color," the prime minister said.

Mrs. Churchill caught sight of Mrs. Roosevelt in a flame colored dress and exclaimed: "O, hello, there." Soon they were busy chatting, bringing Princess Alice, wife of the governor general, into the conversation.

The party sped by automobile to the Citadel, where Canadian army, navy, and marine units and scarlet coated Canadian mounted police were waiting to give the royal salute.

Egg on Premier's Vest.

Mr. Roosevelt rode in the first car to the center of the parade ground, where the salute was given. The band played "The Star Spangled Banner." The President, wearing a dark blue suit and a straw hat, was accompanied by Canadian Gov. Gen. Athlone.

Behind the President rode Churchill, looking like a happy sailor in the blue uniform and cap of a fellow of Trinity house, an honorary institution which promotes the welfare of the British coast guard.

Churchill stepped smartly out, waved his walking stick, and exchanged a few words with Mr. Roosevelt. The President's car moved on to the living quarters of the Citadel, while the rest of the party walked in the dazzling sunlight. Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada escorted Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Churchill to the great stone residence.

Minutes before he stepped up to greet the President, a friend warned King that a bit of breakfast egg was clinging to his vest. He scraped diligently.

"Tour Was Preliminary."

The President was accompanied to Quebec by the Washington high command of the army and navy. It was emphasized that the conference is principally military in nature, with the war in the Pacific as one of the major subjects.

Early told reporters:

"This conference opening here today makes it appropriate to say that the President's recent inspection tour of the Pacific—his trip to Pearl Harbor and the Aleutians—and his conferences with Adm. Nimitz and Gen. MacArthur, were a very necessary preliminary to this conference."

To a question whether that meant the Quebec deliberations would stress the Pacific war, he replied that he believed "that would be largely so."

Churchill interceded personally with Mr. Roosevelt to obtain an extension of leave for the United States soldiers who were delayed in Britain while the ship bringing them home waited for the prime minister.

A British spokesman disclosed that after the troops were already aboard, the ship was held in a British port several days until Churchill was ready to leave.

"The prime minister realized it was pretty hard luck on the chaps," the spokesman said, and therefore telegraphed Mr. Roosevelt, expressing hope that the loss of time would be made up to the men. Roosevelt replied that necessary adjustment would be made in cases not affecting the war effort, probably including all the men.

CHURCHILLS LEAVE 2 DAUGHTERS BEHIND ON VOYAGE TO QUEBEC

QUEBEC, Sept. 11 (AP).—While President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill were closeted with their military advisers today, the Quebec conference took on the atmosphere of a family party, with Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Churchill having a social get-together.

Two members of Churchill's family who would have liked to be here, however, were absent—Mary and Sarah, his daughters, who could not obtain leave from the British units with which they are serving.

Leaves have been hard to get since D-day, a British official explained, and "no exception would be made for the prime minister's family."

CLEAR KINGFISH OF $50 THEFT IN WALLET CASE

Harry Krakow, former pugilist, better known as Kingfish Levinsky, was absolved of any blame in the theft Saturday night of a wallet containing $50 belonging to one of the Kingfish's drinking partners, when he was arraigned yesterday in East Chicago Avenue court. But the matter of the missing wallet is not entirely settled.

Police told Judge John R. McSweeney they were satisfied Levinsky hadn't stolen the wallet, especially after its owner, Elmore Sidwell, said he hadn't seen him do it. To further prove his innocence the Kingfish returned to the station an hour later with Theodore Phillips, 41, of 4457 N. Central Park av., his partner in the tie business, which now takes up most of Levinsky's time.

Phillips, also a member of Saturday night's drinking bout, told police that the former fighter was above that sort of thing. His positive assurances matched those of the policeman who led him by the arm to the lockup. When the Kingfish protested the policeman replied, "You had your day in court today. It's his turn tomorrow."

CHICAGO NEGRO AWARDED DFC FOR WAR VALOR

Lt. Clarence D. Lester, 21, of 5329 Prairie av., a member of the all-Negro 332d fighter group of the United States 15th air force, received the distinguished flying cross in ceremonies at Rome, Italy, yesterday.

Lt. Lester was credited with shooting down three Nazi planes in Italy this summer. In an attack last week on Ilandza and Alibunar air fields in Yugoslavia, he flew in a formation of Mustang fighters that destroyed 29 German planes on the ground.

He is the son of Mrs. Lillian T. Lester, a Chicago public health nurse, and is a graduate of Englewood High school, where he played football and baseball. Lt. Lester joined the air force in February, 1943, while attending the physical education school at West Virginia State college, Charleston, W. V. He went overseas last April.

WORKERS QUIT STEEL JOB OVER SCHEDULE SHIFT

Five workmen resenting changes made in a work schedule at the wire mill of the Republic Steel corporation, 11800 Burley av., staged a strike yesterday afternoon which was followed by a walkout of 18 other workmen employed in another department. A company spokesman said the work stoppage halted the operation of five machines engaged in producing a critical war material. The changes were necessitated by increased demands made by the government. The changeover, he said, required that some of the men work one Sunday out of three. The men are members of the United Steelworkers union [CIO].

COUNTRY NEEDS REAL AMERICAN, SENATOR FINDS

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

This country needs a leadership as much American as Churchill is British and Stalin is Russian, United States Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry [R., Neb.] last night told a national convention of beauticians and their suppliers, before whom he spoke in the Palmer House.

He attacked the secrecy employed by the Roosevelt administration both at the Bretton Woods monetary conference and in the diplomatic discussions at Dumbarton Oaks. Of the monetary conference he said, "I am not passing on the merits of what they did there because we were not permitted to know. It is a subject for grave consideration and will be debated when the proposed legislation comes before the senate."

On Peace Matters.

"On matters of peace," he continued, "there should be no secrets. Congress should have been represented at Dumbarton Oaks. The representatives of the people should know that commitments are being made. The British representatives report to parliament. Stalin is well taken care of there.

"Are the henchmen of Earl Browder and company there in place of representatives of the people? We would like to know. Rapidly approaching the day when peace must be made we still get personal, secret diplomacy from the Roosevelt administration.

"Behind closed doors at Dumbarton Oaks the Big Three are conducting what Mr. Hull chooses to call 'exploratory' discussions about our future."

"Essence of Realism."

He continued: "It is the essence of realism that in our eagerness to help the world we do not lose sight of the limits of sound national housekeeping. This means we shall have to examine the recent monetary proposals to see that the United States is not once more embarking upon a senseless lending spree.

"We should stabilize our national economy by insisting that all money recaptured from the sale of surplus property be credited to the debt. We shall have to revalue our role in lend-lease in order that we do not find ourselves involved in a world-wide WPA at the cost of bankruptcy at home.

"All of us should oppose extending lend-lease to any country after the cessation of hostilities in Europe unless that country is fighting side by side with our fighting men in the war with Japan.

Quotes Gov. Dewey.

"We should be fair—but vigilant—about international air agreements, the merchant shipping problem, and the basis of future trade and commerce. For this we need a leadership as much American as Churchill is British and Stalin Russian."

Sen. Wherry quoted Gov. Dewey of New York, Republican Presidential nominee:

"Foreign policy is not a mere matter of negotiations, diplomatic maneuvering, or even of treaties and alliances. Foreign policy is the expression of the ideals, traditions, and aspirations of a people in their relations with the people of other countries."

"To have that," Wherry said, "you must take the people into your confidence."

SAYS OAK PARK FIRM IS HOLDING 65 CARS BOUGHT FROM STATE

Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley yesterday made public a list of 65 automobiles now in the possession of an Oak Park auto firm as a result of a deal whereby the state purchased 197 new automobiles. The state's attorney's office started investigating these automobile deals since State's Atty. Courtney actively opened his campaign as the Democratic candidate for governor.

The list shows that the auto firm allowed the state a trade-in value of $500 on 1942 models, $265 on 1941 models, and from $75 to $185 for models from 1937 to 1940. The auto firm took 193 cars in trade on the transaction and sold 128 of the cars.

Earlier in the day Assistant State's Atty. Richard Austin said he discovered four of these cars were sold to a Lincoln, Neb., auto firm at a profit of $2,377 to the Oak Park company.

FEAR, PERHAPS GAS TOO, FILLS MATTOON AIR

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 11.—While armed squads of state police patroled the streets in a drizzling rain tonight, Mattoon residents huddled fearfully in their homes with doors and windows barred against the "gas maniac" whose reported spray gun assaults have produced a mass hysteria.

Between nightfall and midnight 14 calls were received at police headquarters from persons who fancied they detected symptoms of the paralyzing vapor the prowler is said to have sprayed thru open windows on several occasions since his first appearance 10 days ago.

Mrs. Ivy Ketsell, 25, alone in a house in the northwest section of the city, said she was partially overcome by gas while lying in bed with the bedroom window open about 2 inches. A physician said he could detect no effects of gas but that there was a "peculiar odor" in the room. Mrs. Caroline Averell, 40, also alone in a house in the northwest section, said a sickish sweet gas became noticeable as she sat in her living room. She refused to submit to examination by a physician.

Calls Labeled False Alarms.

Police Commissioner Thomas V. Wright said all of the other calls tonight were false alarms. They were answered promptly by state police who found they had been placed by persons, mostly women, suffering from fear induced by imagination. All complained of experiencing a burning feeling in their throat and of partial paralysis, Wright said, but no evidence of gas was found on examination. One woman was taken to a hospital and released after her panic subsided.

There were eight squad cars and a mobile radio unit in the state police delegation which arrived today to help Mattoon police handle the situation.

Police Armed with Shotguns.

Two state policemen, armed with shotguns, rode in each squad car, accompanied by a Mattoon civilian to direct them from place to place. Each car was radio equipped and was under the direction of the mobile unit, which acted as a clearing house on appeals for help from householders.

Altho rain kept roaming groups of armed civilians off the streets tonight, the arrival of a police car at a residence was a sufficient signal to bring scores of men and boys pouring from adjacent homes.

The problem of combating the mass hysteria which has swept this town in the last two days has become more serious than the actual attacks, Wright today told a meeting of 70 business men.

Promising a speedy end to the almost nightly forays of the prowler, Wright asked that the townspeople put their guns and other weapons away and refrain from organizing posses.

Fatal Mistakes Feared.

"Someone is going to be killed," he said, "and it won't be from gas. The people here have lost control of themselves in a manner which is almost unbelievable in a modern world."

"I wouldn't walk thru somebody's back yard at night now for $10,000," said Wright.

The Mattoon prowler began his activities on Sept. 2, when he was reported to have squirted gas into four homes. Since then he is said to have operated every night except Saturday. The story told by all his victimes has been the same. As soon as the sweet-sickish gas is detected the victims say they are overcome with nausea and suffer from a slight paralysis of the arms and legs.

DRINKER KILLED WITH CHAIR; ONE SUSPECT SEIZED

Fred Johannsen, 50, of 3059 Warren blvd., a catch basin cleaner, was slain with a chair yesterday afternoon in a tavern at 3108 Madison st. by two men with whom he had been drinking. Mrs. Mary Vantresco, 2839 Harrison st., a waitress, told Warren avenue police that a quarrel developed among the three men and that one of Johannsen's companions held him while the other hit him with a chair, after which both men fled.

Alfred Junquera.

Later police arrested for questioning Alfred Junquera, 49, of 3157 Warren blvd. He denied being in the tavern during the afternoon, altho police said Mrs. Vantresco identified him as one of the two men who had been drinking with Johannsen. Police were seeking a second man.

Police records show that Johannsen was sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., in December, 1931, on a charge of theft from interstate shipments.

All Ends Well

Two Negro boys, identically dressed and about 4 years old, were picked up yesterday in the vicinity of Racine av. and Adams st. by the Des Plaines street police. All they knew was that their names were Tim and Tom. Policemen treated them to ice cream cones and candy which they were munching when their mother came into the station a half hour later. During the flurry of the reunion, police neglected to learn their full names.

ELOPING THIEF PLEADS GUILTY; WIFE FORGIVES

Mrs. Mary E. Johnson

Andrew K. Johnson, 29, former credit manager for Russek's, women's apparel shop, who took $11,000 from the store's safe and ran away with its attractive cashier, Mrs. Mary Wassinger, 32, pleaded guilty to violation of the stolen property act yesterday in federal District court.

Despite an impassioned plea by Johnson's wife, Mary Elizabeth, 30, who came here from Washington, D. C., where she is employed, Judge Philip L. Sullivan said he intended to sentence the thief to the penitentiary, but that he would wait until tomorrow to pass sentence.

Also in court was Mrs. Wassinger, wife of a marine in the South Pacific and mother of three children. She pleaded not guilty to a similar federal charge and her case was continued until Sept. 21.

The couple fled with the store's cash on April 23, 1943, and took a love tour across the country until captured in California.

N. Y. SOCIALITE ADMITS OTHER JEWEL THEFTS

Riverhead, N. Y., Sept. 11 [Special].—Mrs. Job Taylor II., daughter of a bishop and descendant of two Presidents, who is accused of stealing gems worth $27,750 from friends in Long Island and Manhattan, today told Suffolk County Dist. Atty. Fred J. Munder that she also had stolen jewelry from friends in Cincinnati and Washington.

The conference was held to agree on bail to be fixed for the attractive young society matron, who has been held in jail on a grand larceny charge. However, an agreement was reached on only one of two charges.

Mrs. Taylor is a daughter of the late Episcopal Bishop Lincoln Flinchbaugh and claims Presidents William Henry Harrison and Benjamin Harrison as ancestors.

If a bump on the head starts you thinking—

Well, we've devised your bump-less doors, all right . . . but we've gone even further, here at Good Housekeeping. We've examined every feature of your kitchen.

And we've come up with some postwar planning that's practical . . . that's here and in use, today . . . ideas that are available to you and to manufacturers right now!

To improve your workshop

Recently we took a good look at the kitchen cabinet. We examined it from the point of view of working housekeepers.

Was there any possibility of improvement? Well, yes—plenty!

Bumping our heads on the open cupboard doors, we bumped into an idea our readers hail as nothing short of revolutionary: slide-up doors that work like a charm.

Then—by designing easy-to-reach racks—we got rid of the "glory hole," that accumulation of pots and pans and covers which proves such a nuisance to any working housekeeper.

Buried, hard-to-find spice jars led us to adopt step-up shelves. Now we're able to see the smallest jar in our cabinet easily.

Your disposition often depends upon your position—so we're constantly working out ways to avoid bending and stooping.

And you needn't think we stopped there! No, ma'am! Cutlery racks were designed so that we could see every knife and spoon—no more groping around in hide-away drawers to find the right tool. We introduced a posture chair and two-level table that can be made higher or lower by a mere touch of the hand. One level is for sit-down work, the other for stand-up jobs. We contrived a convenient electrical outlet with a cord that unreels.

Vertical filing of pans, covers, and platters; pull-out panels on which to hang strainers, ladles, all manner of equipment that ordinarily clutters up drawers; pull-out shelves onto which bowls and pans fit easily—these are just a few of the things we've included in our kitchen so that we could tell you how to work out similar improvements in your kitchen.

This is no fantasy

Where are all these new ideas? In the minds of exploratory dreamers? Not a bit of it! They're here at Good Housekeeping, here where you can see them, where they can be tried out in a practical way!

"Yes, but how can I get the benefit of all these innovations?" you may ask.

Well, pictures and the detailed report appeared in June Good Housekeeping. If you missed it, just write us and we'll gladly send you a reprint—at no cost. If you've a handy man around the house, he can help you work out some of these details right from the pictures.

What's more, we'll give all this information to manufacturers without cost—to encourage them to build better and better household equipment for you.

A down-to-earth pledge

We study, examine, and use things just as you would use them. Only after we are satisfied that they will work do we tell you what to look for when you buy and what to expect after you've bought.

To save you steps, we tell you how to organize your kitchen for more efficient food preparation and storage; cooking and serving; and washing up.

This is the standard we apply to every advertisement as well as every editorial page in Good Housekeeping.

Your faith is the bedrock on which Good Housekeeping is built. We value that faith and intend to deserve it as long as Good Housekeeping is printed. To that end we make you this pledge:

That at no time, and not for any reason, or any profit, will any page of Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on your trust.

TO MANUFACTURERS

If you're interested in products women will want tomorrow, write us for FREE blueprints of these kitchen cabinets designed by Good Housekeeping.

You may want to manufacture the complete unit or only one detail. Even if the plans just stimulate your thinking, we'll feel well repaid. We don't ask or want any royalties. All we want to do is serve our readers and you, who make products for our readers.

TO BUYERS

Here's a self-standing unit, improved kitchen cabinets that present no complicated installation problems. Good Housekeeping is offering manufacturers free blueprints for the building of this unit.

So that you can judge whether your customers would be interested in buying such cabinets, we'll send you reprints of an article describing them in detail, together with questionnaires. How many would you like, to mail to charge customers? Write and let us know.

Prized Murphy Art Objects on Auction Block

Connoisseurs of rare works of art and antiques, shoppers, and just plain bargain hunters mingled in the crowds of bidders yesterday at the Grant Art Galleries, 25 S. Wabash av., where more than $125,000 worth of paintings, furniture, and other effects of the late Walter P. Murphy, multi-millionaire, went on the auction block.

The sale was sponsored by Northwestern university which was bequeathed more than 25 millions out of the fortune of 33 millions amassed by the former head of the Standard Railway Equipment company. It will continue thru Thursday with a special sale tomorrow night.

Beautiful rare old pieces of furniture, prized pieces of art and rich tapestries are included in the offerings, all of which came from Mr. Murphy's home, "Stonebridge," in Lake Forest.

Bidding was spirited and rivalry was keen among the hundreds of men and women who crowded the gallery when the sale opened.

A Queen Anne table with gold leaf filigree was placed on the block and the bidding opened at $5. Worth hundreds of dollars, according to antique experts, it was sold to the highest bidder for $75. Another antique piece, a William and Mary chest-on-chest highboy, was bought for $110.

Auction officials said that Mr. Murphy's collection of prized prints and paintings and a rich array of tapestries and rugs will be sold tomorrow.

Thru the Murphy legacy Northwestern university has erected the technological institute and has become the fifth wealthiest endowed university in America.

Latest Holmes Mystery Film Right Exciting

"THE PEARL OF DEATH."

Good Morning!

A famous stolen pearl, a grisly character known in police circles as the Creeper, six plaster casts of Napoleon, and a lot of broken china complicate the life of Sherlock Holmes in this new picture adapted from a story by the late Arthur Conan Doyle.

You will find "The Pearl of Death" a right exciting number, with Basil Rathbone urbane and cunning as always in his role of Holmes, Nigel Bruce as Dr. Watson at his endearing best [he does have the best time all by himself, mumbling and bumbling!], Miles Mander being right horrible as the master criminal who directs the activities of the Creeper, and Evelyn Ankers fitting in admirably as a lady desperado.

The theft of the pearl is followed by a series of murders in which backs are invariably broken at the third vertebra. Bodies, when discovered, are surrounded by a litter of shattered china. . . .

"Ha, the Creeper!" says Holmes.

"Ha, the Creeper is dead!" sneers Inspector Lestrade of Scotland Yard.

Ha! Holmes is right.

Goren on Bridge

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 club	1 heart	Pass	1 spade
Pass	2 hearts	Pass	2 no trump
Pass	4 hearts	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of clubs.

"Partner, I had to deny your suit." You've all heard this one. It is in current use by millions of present day bridge players and represents the loss of countless thousands of points at the contract table. The term "denial" is a flashback to the days of the hoop skirt, yet so many players persist in its use, despite the fact that common sense cries sharply out against it.

West dealt very capably and opened with one club. North's overcall was unimpeachable, but South having somewhat less than normal trump support, felt it was his duty to deny hearts by bidding one spade. Things were rapidly improving for West so he passed nonchalantly. North, of course, bid two hearts, and this time South felt it even more urgent to rescue, so he showed the club stopper by bidding two no trump. North, under the impression that his partner was trying to go places, jumped to game in hearts. When the smoke had cleared away South was poorer by 1,100 points and, we trust, a little wiser for the experience.

The most eloquent denial in contract bridge is the pass. Many players would be astounded by the recommendation that South should pass partner's one heart bid. The logic is this: When you see trouble approaching don't do anything to help it along. When up against it, the best contract is one that is not doubled. Had North's overcall of one heart been doubled by East, South's rescue to one spade would have been justified. The interesting truth about this type of hand is that whenever a defender resists the impulse to rescue, almost invariably the opponents will take him out of his misery.

In this case, had South passed the bid of one heart, you can readily see that West would not have sold out. He would surely have ventured one spade and they would have proceeded to play the hand at a partial. At any rate the huge disaster would have been averted. Not long ago in a similar situation I saw an experienced player pass his partner's overcall of two hearts holding ♠ 8 4 2, ♥ none, ♦ K J 9 7 5 4 3, ♣ 7 6 3, opponent having opened with one spade. He realized he was in trouble but made no effort to rescue [he passed promptly without fussing and fuming to advise the enemy of his discomfort]. The opener rebid two spades and that was the end of his agony. The moral is:

Never rescue a partner who has not been doubled.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM.

As South you hold:

♠ A K 8 6 ♥ 3 ♦ K Q 7 5 3 ♣ J 9 6

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass

Navy Mothers' Club Announces Leasing of Larger Quarters

At its monthly meeting last night in the Medinah club, the Navy Mothers' Club of Chicago announced signing of a lease for larger headquarters at 500 Sherman st. Mrs. C. Ashley Deneen, president, said the new site will facilitate the organization's work in behalf of men in the maritime services, because the Sherman st. headquarters is close to four railroad stations.

The club's new space is twice as large as its present rooms at 335 N. Michigan av. The board of directors expects to install showers and cots. The canteen will continue to serve light refreshments.

A bake sale at 335 N. Michigan av. Friday morning will earn money for the Navy Mothers' moving expenses. The club hopes to occupy the new quarters by Oct. 1, as soon as decoration is completed.

Fuel Is Saved by Preventing Heat Leakage

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If householders are going to achieve big savings in fuel this coming winter, now is the time for them to act.

There are two vital steps to fuel conservation: To make sure the heating plant is ready to give maximum service; to be equally certain that heat shall not leak out of the house.

There are four wide avenues of escape for nicely heated indoor air: Thru walls and attic areas, thru window glass areas, thru cracks around windows and doors, and thru structural openings.

Government experts say that at least 30 per cent of heat for homes escapes thru uninsulated roofs. This emphasizes the importance of insulating the top of the house. If the attic space is in use, the roof rafters can be insulated. If the attic is unfinished, the floor can be insulated.

Roofs should be checked and leaks plugged. Air leaks around windows and door frames should be filled with a flexible caulking compound. Weather-stripping is tremendously effective in keeping heat from slipping out around doors and windows, and storm windows and doors should be installed because storm sash will prevent heat loss directly thru the glass.

Cracks and openings around a window may not seem important, yet if one realizes that the crack around an ordinary window frame is equivalent to an opening the size of a common brick, it is apparent that such a crack is no small matter. Moreover, the cracks around the windows of an ordinary sized home would total the equivalent of the space which would be occupied by 22 bricks, or an "opening, as large as an ordinary kitchen sink."

Now also is the time to have the heating plant serviced by an expert who can replace or repair any defective parts and give it a thoro cleaning.

However, if you want to clean your own furnace and are an amateur at it, here are a few pointers which may make the task a bit simpler:

Assuming all ashes were removed last spring when the heating season ended, clean inside surfaces with a long handled wire flue brush to remove all accumulated soot. [In case you haven't a flue brush and can't get one at your hardware store, attach a putty knife or paint scraper to a long handle.]

Clean grates by brushing them briskly and examine them to make sure they turn freely and are not cracked or sagging.

Detach the smoke pipe and clean it unless it is short enough to be reached thru the clean-out door. Clean soot out of the bottom of the chimney thru the chimney clean-out door.

Fill noticeable cracks with asbestos furnace cement, and examine the whole unit for air leaks, often found around the smoke box, smoke pipe joints, the base of the heater, the doors, and chimney connections. Asbestos cement can be used to cover all joints.

Robert Rose of the "Winged Victory" troupe and Rosena Lamar will be married Sept. 21.

Hit Nail on Head.

A fan sent an old clipping and a quip by the late Will Rogers. "We saw a fine play called 'Three Men on a Horse,' the idea being that a man not betting can dope out the winners. Now get this for a coincidence. I fly down here this morning and meet the lord mayor of Dublin, Ireland, a fine Irish gentleman. Well, you'd naturally ask an Irishman about the Grand National race and Aintree, for all the good horses in it are Irish. Well, this little lord mayor gave them the following winners: Ronaldston, Blue Prince, Thorman the Second. By golly, if he didn't pick 'em—one, two, three. So if the lord mayor of Ireland should be comin' your way, listen to him." . . . While Frances Langford was in the South Pacific, a marine officer asked her to come to the rescue when they were having labor troubles with some natives in the jungle. Whether it was Frances' blonde hair or the way she sang "I'm in the Mood for Love" she never knew, but the scowling natives broke into smiles and went back to work. . . . Billy Gilbert says he used to have a gardener whose draft board wanted the gardener to take a foundry job. "I don't think I'm really fit for hard labor," the character replied, "altho some of the best judges in the country have thought so."

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Pvt. Delores Knapik, an air-minded air WAC, is at home in Chicago on furlough from her job as Link trainer instructor at Kelly field, San Antonio, Tex. Not only is Pvt. Knapik associated with aviation every day while on duty, but she spends her free time learning to fly at two civilian airports near her station. She already has had 20 hours in the air, having begun pilot's lessons while still a civilian.

Pvt. Delores Knapik.

WAC Knapik, who had basic training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., was a woman war worker before enlisting in February. A graduate of Foreman High school and of an aircraft inspection course at the Illinois Institute of Technology, she worked as an inspector at the Howard Aircraft company before going into uniform.

Pvt. Knapik, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Knapik, 2934 N. Washtenaw av., has her post-war program planned. She will take a job as aviation instructor which has been offered to her.

When neighbors of a navy wife believed that she was neglecting her five small children, they called the Red Cross. Case workers of the home service corps, visiting the home, found the young mother seriously ill, but trying, in spite of her pain and weakness, to care for her youngsters.

The corps then provided the type of service for which it earns gratitude from service men and their families. It employed a full time housekeeper to supervise the home and children, obtained extensive medical care and hospitalization for the mother, and arranged for the sailor husband to have an emergency leave so that he might be with his wife while she underwent surgery.

This case is typical of the 12,000 cases which the corps, thru its loop and district offices, handles each month. Service men, accustomed to assistance from the Red Cross at their stations both in this country and overseas, seek the help of the corps when they are released from service.

The case load increase has brought about an urgent need for more volunteers to work both daytime and evenings. Mrs. Edwin A. Eisendrath, volunteer chairman, has announced that the corps will open two new training courses Sept. 18 and 19. Women who have had business or sociological training are especially eligible for the courses; as are teachers.

Trainees for daytime work will attend classes Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays for two weeks, beginning Sept. 19, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., after which they will devote two days a week for four weeks to practice work under supervision of skilled case workers.

Evening volunteers, who will be on duty in the verifications unit, on limited service, will begin studies Sept. 18, attending five sessions on Mondays and Thursdays from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. No practice experience will be necessary for these workers, who will be asked to volunteer four hours a week.

Mrs. Alfred Taylor is accepting registrations for the training at Harrison 5910, extension 51.

Service Club Benefit Again Is Ice Show

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE announcement that the Service club is taking over the opening night of the Ice Follies for the third year in a row was made by Mrs. Robert A. Cavenaugh, president of the club, at a tea for new members yesterday at the Racquet club. Friday, Nov. 3, is the date of the opening of Shipstad and Johnson's skating troupe at the Chicago arena.

The attractive centerpiece of yesterday's tea table was an indication that the club thinks its benefit is on ice, for carved into a huge block of ice was the slogan "It's on Ice." Friends of the club, which contributes to the support of some 50 Chicago charitable organizations, will do well to get their tickets early, for last year all the boxes were sold two weeks after the box-office opened, and there wasn't a single seat available in the last 10 days before the opening, except those returned by purchasers whose plans had been changed.

Among those who admired the ice centerpiece and skaters made of white sticks, with skirts of gladioli and faces of carnations and bachelor buttons, was Mrs. Charles H. Conrad of Tryon, N. C., a former director of the club, who with Mr. Conrad is here at the Drake for a short visit.

Mrs. Leland Newell is general chairman of the benefit, assisted by Mrs. Frank Bering as box chairman and Mrs. Burr Robbins as ticket chairman. Miss Claire McCahey and Mrs. John Q. Adams Jr. are in charge of the programs which will be sold that night.

Wedding News.

When Miss Ann Marie Williamson leaves Monday to return to her classes at Connecticut college, she will have completed preliminary plans for her marriage, Nov. 22, to Midshipman Roland Le Forrest Miller. The ceremony, on the date Midshipman Miller will receive his ensign's commission from Northwestern university naval training school, is set for 8:30 p. m. in Christ church, Winnetka. A reception will follow in the Winnetka home of the bride's parents, Mr., and Mrs. George H. Williamson.

Mrs. Robert S. O'Boyle of Washington, D. C., will be her cousin's matron of honor, and Midshipman Miller's sister, Margery, whose home is in Peoria, Ill., will be maid of honor. Miss Anna Spaulding and Miss Peggy Wickman are to be bridesmaids. After Mr. Miller, the son of Mrs. Emma L. Miller of Peoria, has reported for active duty, his bride expects to return to her classes at Connecticut college.

The marriage of Miss Jean Louise Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Wagner of West Palm Beach, Fla., and Asheville, N. C., to Capt. Homer Harvey Willhite of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther O. Willhite of Cornell av., will take place Sept. 23 in the Asheville home of the bride's parents. Miss Wagner attended the National Cathedral school in Washington, D. C., the Art Students' league, the National Academy of Design, and the M. A. Rasko school of art in New York City. Capt. Willhite studied at Wilson Junior college and the Illinois Institute of Technology and took specialized training at Indiana university. He has received the distinguished flying cross, a Presidential unit citation of honor, and the air medal and six oak leaf clusters for completing 51 missions overseas. He and his bride will live in Greenville, S. C., where he now is stationed.

Here and There.

After eight months of service in the Pacific Lt. W. Newton Burdick Jr. returned a week ago for a surprise visit with his family. After spending his leave at the Libertyville farm of his parents-in-law, the Telfer MacArthurs, Lt. Burdick will take his wife and their 8 months old daughter, Julia Todd, to Miami, Fla., where he will report for duty the end of the month.

Luncheon guests yesterday at the Key club voted Miss Carla Hawley the best hat model in the club's first fashion show of the new season. Miss Yvonne Hoskins and Miss Virginia Elwood were tied for second place. On their way to catch a train to New York Lt. [j. g.] and Mrs.

Children Love to Celebrate Birthdays of Parents

Thru the Looking Glass

Wanna know a way to simplify the chore of manicuring your ten little fingers and ten little toes all by your inexpert self?

Look up the preparation, cheap but good, that softens, lubricates, and removes the ornery cuticle in a couple of easy operations WITHOUT cutting! It's something of a whizz.

There is an applicator, for one thing, that adds to its efficiency. This is used much the way a fountain pen would be. You fill it with the oily cuticle-removing liquid, place the stick in the center of the nail, depress once and presto! out comes one drop of the liquid. Then, with the rounded, just slightly pointed tip of the stick, you push the lubricant gently around the sides and the base of the nail, working the cuticle back smoothly. All you need do then is remove the cuticle with a tissue or a towel. It's as simple and quick as snapping your fingers.

The liquid comes in a generous bottle, from which you can fill your little fountain barrel as often as necessary. You can carry the latter in your purse, filled and ready to use any time you wish to give the nails a quick grooming.

The base of this is an oil; it's one of the best lubricants we've ever used. But there must be other, almost magical, ingredients. The cuticle seems to melt away when the liquid touches it! There is a special package for men, less feminine than that produced for women. Because the stuff works so well on the roughest, horniest kind of cuticle we have an idea men will like it even more than women do.

You'll find this on many counters and also in many beauty salons.

Appropriate Thanks Should Be Given Youngsters for Their Thoughtfulness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

(Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

"Where are the children?" I asked a friend of mine who dropped in for a short visit the other afternoon.

"O, they're downtown buying my birthday presents," she replied. "It's all supposed to be a deep, dark secret. They are so sweet about it, and they try so hard not to give me an inkling, altho they ask me all sorts of leading questions about my preference for this, that, or the other thing.

"Tomorrow the cake will be made—each one will have to stir the batter for luck—and I'll have to keep out of the kitchen while the candles are put on [at perilous angles] and duly lighted. Then, after it has been carried ceremoniously to the table, I must make a wish and blow them out.

"The children have such a wonderful time whenever any one in the household has a birthday. Their daddy has his celebration next month, and already he's being urged to give his color schemes as to ties."

This is a joy no child should be deprived of. A birthday is something children understand so well, something that means so much in their minds, that their parents can come to be of great importance to them. They know, or you may tell them, that you celebrate their birthday because you are so glad they were born. Let them feel the same way about yours—let them experience the joy of loving you and showing it.

Children not only love the idea of birthday festivities but the form, too, for they like ritual. Let them make a little ceremony of everything connected with it. Lend yourself to it.

But, above all, remember that when a child gives you a present it isn't enough to say thank you, and give him or her a kiss. That present had been carefully planned and it should be very carefully admired and all its special points discussed. All this, despite the tenderly amusing fact that the gift may well be something your young son or daughter would most prefer for themselves—a jack-knife or vivid bedroom "scuffs."

Saving up or earning money to buy you a birthday present, whispering about it, buying it, wrapping it, writing a loving message, and then giving it to you are among the greatest delights a child can experience.

"You and Your Young Child" is a booklet you may find helpful. For your copy send 18 cents to Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago 11, Ill.

Comedy 'Over Twenty-One' Is Definitely a Hit

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Playgoing and the new season came of age last night when Ruth Gordon's delectable "Over Twenty-One" opened at the Harris, where for 70 preceding weeks "Kiss and Tell" had provoked the customers' risibilities with the complications of mistaken maternity.

The walls of the Harris still resound with laughter and it would be equally to Chicago's credit if "Over Twenty-One" would also be at the Dearborn st. theater a year and 18 weeks from now. About all who could stop it, or so it seemed last night, would be Gen. Eisenhower or Adolf Hitler. And even after the war, "Over Twenty-One" would still be funny.

Miss Gordon's maiden effort at playwriting may not be as literary as Shakespeare, or even Noel Coward, but it is entertaining, sophisticated, and adult. [Praise Allah, there are no adolescents in the cast.] It touches a phase of war time existence which has been the lot of innumerable officer candidates and their hopeful wives, and while every embryo lieutenant is not the editor of a liberal newspaper, nor his wife an incipient Dorothy Parker, there is a touch of the currently universal in Miss Gordon's well contrived play.

In a Miami bungalow left on the sands after Florida's boom subsided —equipped with windows that open by stamping on the floor, a refrigerator that sounds like a cement mixer, light switches everywhere but where they belong, and no kitchen sink—Paula Wharton, a writer of novels and Hollywood scripts, joins her husband, the editor of a newspaper that is going to the dogs without him, while he goes thru the travail of becoming a second lieutenant. He is 39 and cowed by the legend that after 21 you don't absorb any more. His brain cells are stubbornly resistant to the talk, double and technical, contained in army manuals, and his efforts are not assisted by the unwelcome presence of his publisher, who harasses him with tales of his paper's dire need. The publisher is, indeed a Mephistophelian character, and when the colonel and his lady call, visibly and vocally impressed by the assemblage of celebrities, it is the soldier's exboss who recalls that one of his former editor's more striking editorials on page one bore the caption "The Backward Military Mind."

But it comes out all right, with the editor graduating 271st out of a class of 353, and his wife resisting the blandishments of a Hollywood magnate in order to succeed to her husband's editorial blue pencil—but not until she has taken a six weeks' vacation to meet her husband at the most abhorred of all assignments—Crocker Field, Ark.—where her feline scheming had unwittingly landed him.

It would be strange, of course, if Miss Gordon, or any actress, had not written herself a good part. Paula Wharton may be Dorothy Parker in conception but she is purely and delightfully Ruth Gordon in execution. She slinks, she purrs, she effervesces—and she is irresistibly funny. All the good lines are not reserved for the star, however, and to voice them there is a cast who fit their parts like nylons. Our recommendation is to see for yourself.

White Collar GIRL

Letter to the Boss.

Dear Boss: Now that the last steno in the office is back from vacation, things soon will return to normal. Before long we'll be filling the bowl on your bookcase with bittersweet, no one will be fussing about the air conditioning, and summer will be forgotten.

But, Boss, maybe there are some things we shouldn't forget: For instance, our file clerk who didn't rate a vacation in the country but spent her two-weeks-with-pay working at the Red Cross. Or, the girl in the billing department who put her two weeks to such good use. She went to see the parents of the boys she knows in service, then wrote long, chatty letters giving all the news of "the folks."

One thing, especially, Boss, I hope we won't forget. This summer [as well you know] we couldn't get outside help so had to take over each other's work during vacations.

It's done us good! We learned about jobs other than our own, learned to respect other accomplishments, picked up pointers for our work, found ourselves at different desks smack up against different problems.

Because your door is always open to us and our ideas [and how we bless you for it!] maybe you'd like to know that at the end of summer, 1944, we're better gals. Don't say you haven't noticed the improvement!"

SALLY.

Time Erases.

They told me if I'd go away
And find new work and madly play
At loving sundry other men
I'd seldom think of you again.

Of course I took their bland advice
And journeyed far; the job is nice,
While other men help me forget.
A week has passed—I love you yet!

Fashion Decks the Locks with Lovely Trifles

BY REA SEEGER.

Things that get in your hair these days are trifle items of great ingenuity. Combs with decorative tops to shine and glitter amid the curls of a coiffure or to keep the hair sleek and chic boast bands of gleaming silver, seed pearls in white or gun metal, a row of winking black jet discs, and for the coppertops, side combs and larger combs or tiny little combs with simulated tortoise shell beads or discs. You have to see them to appreciate their different charm and allure.

Barettes have been revived, the old-fashioned models patterned after an open figure eight or the demure old-fashioned ovals. Newest of all are the bar shapes. These are the rage of the bobby sock brigade. Silver or gold metal bars fitted with flat clasps have smooth surfaces for inscription, name, or initial. This metal barette is suitable for a gift when inscribed with the name of the donor, and the fun of having a good assortment rivals the excitement of the bangle-charm bracelet era.

More decorative barettes of either silver or gold metal have engraved surfaces and are considerably larger than the bar or band models.

Blonde, brunette, imitation tortoise shell, and gray combs are available, decorated with beads, jet, or tortoise shell. Very tiny beads of glinting bronze edge the tops of some elegant combs, while the contrasts of gun metal or white pearls on black combs or two tone effects of silver and gold beads on the same comb make these new fashions from the costume jewelry collections the last word in something new and different.

'Miss Lieutenant'

INSTALMENT XXXVIII.

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED.

The business of living a lifetime in a few hours seemed to have become a habit with her. Carol thought on an afternoon two days later as she walked thru the colorful streets of Algiers. Lita was safe for the time being at least—safe and probably with Jacques. Carol had done her job, and she felt more free and happy than she had in a long while.

The town was still ringing with the news of Marshal Janner's assassination, and today the French language newspapers carried descriptions of the state funeral which had been held the day before, and of the wholesale reprisals which still continued. These echoes seemed to be all that remained of her adventure. And the reception she had met at G. H. Q. lent wings to her feet now. So this, she thought, was what was meant by walking on air!

"We are proud of you, Lt. Melton," the general had said.

It had been a long morning. She and Bright had made their reports. She had handed over the maps, and the general had found them to be important. Then there had been a session in which she had answered 1,000 questions, or so it had seemed, and Bright had taken care of again as many.

The only bad moment had been when they had been obliged to talk about Dodger Dugan. Indeed, Carol had not been able to do so, and it had been Bright who in brief, almost brusque sentences had nominated Dodger for the honorable memory he deserved.

Now they had two days' leave. Two whole days in which to do nothing except be with each other. The journey was ended, the story told, she thought with relief. In 48 hours they would both slip back into their routine duties as if nothing had ever happened.

Even their rather comic opera capture of Bachmann now seemed like something slightly unreal. She had not seen the general since their arrival in port and understood that he had been whisked away to some quarter where he would be given the "very decent treatment" he had looked forward to with such relish. But mention of his name was forbidden and no word of the story had been given to any outsiders. Well, that was all right with Carol. She was willing to forget him along with a lot of other unpleasant memories which had no virtue except that they had helped to lead her to one reality which remained—Bright Stoner and their love.

He had promised her champagne. There was something else he had not promised in so many words, but which seemed sweetly inevitable. They would get married. There could be no waiting until after the war for people like themselves who had learned at first hand how abruptly long distance plans could be cut off forever.

Meanwhile there was just one more call of duty to answer. Her ex-patient, Col. Steve Barlow, was still in the hospital and had requested that she report to him in person. Carol knew only too well why he did this. It was not all because of his interest in the report of her mission. There was a question which he had asked her before she left. It seemed incredible now, but at the time she had actually thought she might marry him. And now everything was different and she was going to have to tell him so.

"Hi there, Kansas! Have a nice leave?" So that was what they thought!

"Sure! It was tops," she said. "Barlow in the same cell?"

She went up to her old floor. Feeling as tho she had never been away from it, she started down the long corridor and tapped at the colonel's door. He opened it himself, looking a trifle wan but much improved, and very smart and handsome in his well tailored uniform. He had got all dressed up to welcome her, she thought ruefully.

"Welcome home, Kansas!" His manner was the perfect mixture of eager happiness and well bred restraint that she had expected of him.

"Steve!" she said pleasantly, letting him take both hands. "You're up! I hear you're checking out. This is wonderful!"

"Not one-half as wonderful as seeing you safely back. I hear you did a good job, Kansas."

"So the Barlow detective agency knows all!"

"I got a transcription of your report sent over." His voice had that hidden note of tenderness in it which she knew only too well. "You answered a lot of interesting questions, Carol, but you omitted a few things I'd like to know."

He hadn't meant that and they both knew he hadn't, but he was willing to let it go for the moment. His consideration was, as usual, unfailing.

"I did not expect you would talk about that subject unless you had found out something important. You may remember that what I told you before you left about allied plans being relayed to the enemy was off the record. Are you sure you heard or saw nothing which would connect up with this fact?"

Carol thought of some of the things Lita had said about Janner, but she shook her head.

"There was only one man who might have been connected with such a thing, and he is dead."

"Well, the individual who has been doing the mischief seems to be far from dead. In fact we have had evidence of his activities—very unpleasant evidence—during the last two days."

"I thought there were supposed to be some Vichy collaborationists left in town. Don't you suppose that's what's back of it?"

"I don't know. Of course that's possible, but I don't think so. There seems to have been the same hand behind several other disasters earlier in the war. Things which happened before Dunkirk. It's a sort of technique of planning. I hardly know how to describe it, but it's as tho the same strong will had been at work in both cases."

"Sorry I didn't bring back anything of value on that," she said. She'd done the job she had undertaken and what she wanted most at the moment was to forget her part in the war. Just for two days.

"Kansas, you ought to receive some sort of decoration for that job you did," Barlow said. "Not many heroes capture a German general, practically single handed."

WAS THE GESTAPO after one of its former victims? Michael Harsch thought so — and later was found dead. Don't miss "The Key," Patricia Wentworth's latest mystery novel, beginning Monday in the Chicago Daily Tribune.

REALLY CLEAN—Without Disinfectants

Tell-tale odors often come even from toilet bowls that look clean. But don't scrub or use special disinfectants. Let Sani-Flush keep your bowl clean, the quick, easy, sanitary way. Use it at least twice a week. Removes stains and the recurring film where toilet germs lurk.

Sani-Flush is not like ordinary soaps and powders. It works chemically—even cleans the hidden trap. Doesn't injure toilet connections. (See directions on can.) Sold everywhere in two handy sizes.

SAFE FOR SEPTIC TANKS

Don't scrub toilet bowls just because you fear trouble with your septic tank. Eminent research authorities have proven how easy and safe Sani-Flush is for toilet sanitation with septic tanks. Write for free copy of their scientific report. The Hygienic Products Co., Dept. R-3, Canton, O.

Rodney G. Aller stopped to have luncheon at the club. They arrived a few days ago from San Francisco for a brief visit with young Mrs. Aller's mother, Mrs. John W. Esmond, and, after visiting Lt. Aller's parents in the east, will go to his new post in Miami, Fla.

On the Calendar.

The annual Harvest Home party at the Methodist Deaconess orphanage in Lake Bluff Friday will have a setting of 50 years ago as a reminder to orphanage friends that the institution is celebrating its 50th year. The articles and canned goods that will be on sale all day come from Lake Forest and Lake Bluff homes, and members of the orphanage board have obtained old store counters of the type used to display goods half a century ago, and a pot bellied stove of the same vintage to dress up the basement where the sale will be held. Mrs. Arthur E. Swanson is chairman of the event.

Instead of giving its usual large tea for incoming students, the Chicago Bryn Mawr club has arranged a smaller luncheon to be held today at the Indian Hill club. Undergraduates and a few recent graduates have been included. Some of the freshmen at the college this year will be the Misses Anne Finnerud, Lindsay Harper, Joan Woodside, Rosalind Oates, and Edith Soames.

The administration council of the Cercle Francais will meet for luncheon today in the home of the organization's treasurer, Mrs. Rudolph M. Ostermann of Evanston, to complete plans for the new season's programs. Mrs. Harry Dingman is president of the Cercle.

FRIED CHICKEN GOES ALL-OUT TO MEN IN SERVICE

Legion Will Serve 10 Tons at Centers.

Ten tons of fried chicken will be served free to service men and women next Sunday by the American Legion at the city's three service centers in what Legion officials term the "world's biggest chicken dinner."

Starting at 11 a. m. the centers will hand out fried chicken, potato chips, salad, coffee, ice cream, and cake to all in uniform. The special dinner will continue to be served until the centers close at 11 p. m. Legion officials, announcing the feast yesterday, estimated that 30 to 40 thousand dinners would be served.

Liberality Urged.

Invitations are being sent to all camps, hospitals, and other army and navy installations in the Chicago area. Camp commanders are being urged to be liberal with passes so that as many men and women in uniform as possible will be able to share in the dinner which comes as a prelude to the opening of the Legion annual convention on Monday.

The chicken will be cooked at the lunchrooms of the city's high schools thru arrangement with the board of education. The cooking will be done by the regular lunchroom workers who have volunteered their services for the occasion.

Second Helpings.

Legionnaires said that between 7,500 and 10,000 birds will be purchased to handle the expected demand. Soldiers, sailors, and marines are expected to ask for second helpings or as much as they desire. Drum and bugle corps from various Legion posts in the city will tour the centers providing music.

The three centers at which the dinners will be served are located at 430 S. Michigan av., 175 W. Washington blvd., and at 49th street and Wabash av.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

I suggest that every home maker process all the fruit she can get her hands upon right now, for canned fruit will be scarce and high in point value next winter. The markets now are overflowing with fat plums, good sauce apples, pears, peaches, and grapes. Some of these fruits aren't exactly inexpensive, but canned fruits aren't inexpensive either, and usually the home-packed stuff tastes ever so much better.

If your sugar rations are low, remember that you may can any fruit without sugar, by using boiling water instead of boiling sirup to fill your fruit-packed jars before processing. Unless some member of your family is on a sugar-free diet, it's better to use some sugar, if possible, for even a little seems to improve the flavor of the canned fruit.

If you put up pickles and relishes in small quantities you'll scarcely notice the time it takes, and before you realize it, you'll have a shelf full of appetizing delicacies to make winter meals more attractive. Jars of bread and butter pickles, quick dills, chili sauce, corn relish, and pickled crab apples are a satisfying sight on the storeroom shelf.

Recipes for these and other pickles and relishes are contained in the Mary Meade booklet "Favorite Pickles and Relishes," 5 cents by mail. We also have two other canning books, "War Time Canning Guide," 7 cents, which gives practical information and methods for all kinds of canning, and "Mary Meade's Best Jams and Jellies," 23 cents. The three booklets, 35 cents by mail. Or they may be picked up at one of the Tribune public service offices, 1 South Dearborn, in the loop, or Tribune tower lobby, at a saving of 7 cents.

Do your canning, jam making, and pickling now, or you may be sorry later!

Some persons who have access to wild crab apples just ignore this hard green fruit, because they consider it too strong flavored for jelly. But wild crabs make the most delicious jellies when combined with milder apples, with grapes, with red haws, elderberries, or many other fruits. Use equal parts of the juices, and ¾ cup sugar for each cup of juice. The wild crabs jell so readily that they may be combined with fruit juices which contain little or no pectin to make excellent jellies. Peaches, pears, and pineapple will jell if their juices are combined with crab apple juice. So will cherries and strawberries. A few forward looking jelly makers canned strawberry juice early in the summer and held it for the crab apple season.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Hot Vegetables with Bacon Dressing.

[Serves eight.]

2 cups cut green beans
2 cups diced carrots
4 medium potatoes, diced
Salt and pepper to taste
2 slices bacon
1 tablespoon flour
¼ tablespoon vinegar

Prepare vegetables and cook in boiling water to nearly cover, until tender, adding beans when carrots and potatoes are about half done. Meanwhile, fry bacon until crisp and break in pieces. Add flour to bacon fat, blending well. Measure ½ cup cooking liquid from vegetables and add to flour paste; cook until thickened stirring constantly. Pour over vegetables and add bacon and vinegar. Let stand ½ hour to blend flavors. Reheat to serve. Minced onion may be added to vegetables before cooking, if desired. MRS. R. E. KANNE,

GEORGE SMITH WINS ILLINOIS P.G.A. WITH 214

Jim Foulis Second, One Stroke Back.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

George Smith, the Onwentsia club professional who doesn't look his 47 years, yesterday captured the 22d annual championship of the Illinois Professional Golfers' association with a 54 hole score of 214, two under par for the distance at the Glen Flora Country club in Waukegan. Smith, who led the first round Sunday with a 70, maintained his pace yesterday morning for a 36 hole total of 140, but slipped to a 74 in the final round. Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake, making a champion's finish in defense of the title he won on the same course last year, posted a 215 for second place. Al Huske of Glen Oak was third with a 216.

George Smith.

Foulis Had Chance to Tie.

The end of the morning round found the new champion pacing Foulis by five shots, but the slender James came back and by the 17th tee had caught Smith, needing two pars to tie. He hit a fine drive to the 410 yard 17th and then essayed a three-quarter swing with a No. 7 iron for his approach. He caught the ball flush, however, and it sailed over the green, ultimately costing him a five. He thus needed a deuce on the 180 yard 18th, but couldn't down the 50 foot chip shot remaining after he had driven hole high to the right of the green.

The cards for Smith and Foulis follow:

Determines Victory Open Bids.

In addition to determining the annual championship, the tournament also served to settle the five professionals who will be invited to the 1945 Chicago Victory National Open tournament. Foulis and Smith will rate bids as Illinois P. G. A. champions, and Eddie Williams of Bryn Mawr, who finished with 219, will be invited as the National P. G. A. senior title holder.

The five who will gain the Victory National cast as a result of their labors at Glen Flora are Huske, 216; Joe Paletti of Sunset Ridge, 218; Jack Grout of Greenacres, 218; Mike Sipula of Ottawa, 219, and Charley Penna of Beverly, 220.

BECAUSE of varying conditions in hotels patronized by the White Sox, $5 a day meal money is provided in some cities and hotel tabs are signed in others. . . . A checkup revealed on the south siders' last eastern trip that some of the players subsisted on 85 cents a day in meal money towns but had to have skating revues and other entertainment features along with luxurious viands in cities where tabs were signed. . . . He Couldn't Get Here.

"He couldn't get here," so the neighbors said,
Grouped about her hushed and lonely bier.
They'd had a wire, he'd tried to make the trip,
But couldn't, he's so far away from here;
"Yes, those are the flowers he sent, and aren't they grand?"
He phoned for service best, whate'er the sum,
"But still," again they whispered and repined,
"It would have pleased her so if he had come."

I realize such things must come to pass,
But still the somber thought kept haunting me,
Once from their mother's care they've grown all free;
But ah, how different with the mother bird,
They're just alike, every one and all,
They see to it they always stay within
The range of their loved child's quick need or call.

He couldn't get here, so the neighbors said,
And thus he didn't see her laid away,
She who always saw him tucked to rest

CHERRY TRIFLE WINS BY HEAD BEFORE 16,721

Hawthorne Mutuel Handle $862,515.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Hawthorne was host to a crowd of 16,721 Ladies' Day racing fans yesterday, and while the main attraction was no great shakes as a crowd puller, it developed into quite a horse race and provided a good betting medium in one of the best Monday mutuel handles in the track's books.

The wagering totaled $862,515, an average of better than $100,000 a race for the eight event program, or 100 per cent better than the corresponding Monday of last year's meeting when only $422,625 was recorded.

Impenetrable Takes 2d.

Mrs. L. B. Muschal's Cherry Trifle, competently guided by veteran Steve Brooks, scored a head victory over the Happy Hour farm's Impenetrable in the feature, which drew a field of eight older horses listed in grade E. J. M. Hutchins' Soverton was third. The event, for a purse of $1,800, was run at a mile and one sixteenth.

While a photo proved unnecessary in determining Cherry Trifle the winner, it appeared until the last few strides that Impenetrable, ridden by Jackie Martin, had the race in hand. However, Brooks timed his finishing spurt to the instant and Cherry Trifle responded. Impenetrable finished two lengths in front of Soverton after holding a small margin from the far turn.

Cherry Trifle was well regarded at the mutuel windows and paid $8, $4.40, and $3.40. Impenetrable returned $6.60 and $4, while Soverton paid $4.40 to show.

18 Named for $16,000 Stake.

In contrast to large daily double returns for the first two days of the 34 day fall meeting, yesterday's double returned only $58.80. The payoff Friday was $698. Saturday's return was $1,472.80, the record for the Chicago season.

Six winners of stake events during the Chicago summer racing season are among 18 thorobreds named for the $10,000 added Autumn handicap Saturday.

Nominations closed last Saturday for the mile and one-sixteenth event and the list included Howard Wells' Equifox, victor in the $50,000 added Washington handicap on Labor day; Coward & Dupuy's Appleknocker, winner of the Dick Welles; Hyman Friedberg's Harriet Sue, heroine of the Matron stakes; Miller & Burger's Traffic Court, the Beverly handicap winner; John Marsch's Valdina Foe, which took the $10,000 Grassland, and Herbert Wolf's Signator, winner of Hawthorne's $7,500 Speed handicap last Saturday.

HUNTER SCORES 1ST ROUND K. O. AT MARIGOLD

In a secondary feature, Robert Earl, also a former city Golden Gloves lightweight title holder, stopped Joe Mendoza of Detroit in the sixth round. In other bouts, Hardy [Pee Wee] Hoag, Wichita, Kas., featherweight, held Oscar Williams to a four round draw; Bill Parsons, Danville, Ill., welterweight, beat Bishop Murphy in a five round bout, and Jerry Pittro, Oak Park 150 pounder, was awarded a technical knockout over Dan Robinson when the latter failed to come out for the fifth round.

INJURY TO KEEP STAN MUSIAL ON BENCH FOR WEEK

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 11 (AP).—Dr. Robert F. Hyland, who took three stitches in closing a gash in Outfielder Stan Musial's chin, said the St. Louis Cardinals' leading hitter probably will remain out of the lineup for a week or 10 days.

Musial also suffered an injury to his right leg in his collision with Outfielder Debs Garms during a game yesterday with the Chicago Cubs. Garms suffered a cut over his left eye.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Hank Wyse, who is looked upon as more or less of a Red specialist, was unable to work any of his black magic yesterday when the Cubs came home to furnish evidence that their two weeks end victories over the title holding Cardinals were legitimate. Hank was suitably supported at bat by his mates, but they insisted on mixing errors with enemy hits, the Reds making use of the combination to put over a 6 to 5 decision in ten innings. This cut the fourth place Cubs' lead over the idle Giants to half a game.

A pair of Cub blunders forced Wyse into a two run deficit in the first inning, but the Reds were so gracious that they handed back the two runs in the Cubs' opening stand against Tomas de la Cruz. Eventually the Reds tied the game, the Cubs untied it, 5 to 3, in the seventh, and the Rhinelanders worked back into the fighting two runs in the eighth.

Mueller Has a Big Day.

Then Ray Mueller singled with one out in the 10th and so did Estel Crabtree, the latter's hit being fumbled by Dom Dallessandro. The error proved disastrous because it put Mueller in position to score on Eddie Miller's long fly. Mueller previously had driven in four Cincinnati runs.

Stan Hack was the fellow who put Wyse on the spot in the first inning and thus assisted the Reds to their momentary two run lead. Hack fumbled and then threw wild on Woody Williams' grounder, the two errors giving the athlete two bases. Wyse was tricky enough to retire the next two batters, but walked Frank McCormick. Mueller's triple into the right field corner did the rest.

Two were out in the Cubs' first inning when Don Johnson singled. The next items were singles by Bill Nicholson and Dallessandro, Johnson scoring. Andy Pafko did his bit with a single to left. Eric Tipton not only fumbled the ball, but threw wild to the plate, Dallessandro scoring behind Nicholson.

Cubs Again Regain Lead.

Wyse was fortunate that nothing worse than the tying run resulted in the sixth when Gerry Walker singled and McCormick doubled before an out was recorded. Wyse assumed responsibility for loosening the knot in the seventh. He doubled with one out, went to third on Hack's single and scored on Johnson's infield out. De la Cruz complained of his arm about this time and Clyde Shoun stepped into the argument. His welcome was a single off Phil Cavarretta's bat, Hack scoring for the 5 to 3 lead.

Dain Clay opened the eighth with a double and after Walker fanned there was a quick change for the worse. McCormick walked and Mueller's drive bounced over Hack's head for a double, Clay scoring. Crabtree batted for Tipton and walked, filling the bases. Steve Mesner, after being delayed at the plate by a little dispute which resulted in Umpire Jocko Conlan steering Acting Manager Jim Wilson of the Reds toward the exit, singled to score McCormick with the tying run. Mueller tried to follow him home but was nipped at the plate by Pafko's throw.

Hunters Jam Loop for Shells; 140,000,000 Ducks in Skies!

The first of a series of shotgun shell stampedes was held on Wabash av. yesterday, with veteran hunters, housewives, service men, and stenographers standing in long lines for hours to buy 50 rounds of shotgun ammunition.

The line started forming at 6:30 a. m. in front of the sporting goods store at 9 N. Wabash av. By 9 a. m. it extended half a block north to Washington st. and a block east to Michigan av., with eight policemen trying to keep order. It was estimated 2,000 were in the crowd.

Each hunter was permitted to buy two boxes of shotgun ammunition [50 shells] in addition to three boxes of .22 caliber rifle cartridges and 40 rounds of deer hunting cartridges. Store officials said every customer was buying the allotment of 50 shotgun shells, indicating that 100,000 rounds were sold during the day.

Pierre Bouscaren, the store's general manager, said he believed there would be enough shells for all hunters if they bought and fired the ammunition carefully.

The WPB has announced that enough shotgun ammunition will be manufactured to provide each licensed hunter with four boxes this season, yet a loop department store sold its entire allotment of 75,000 shells in one afternoon last week and hunters able to get to the sporting goods store counter yesterday could buy only two boxes.

BY BOB BECKER.

Sportsmen all over the United States are giving three cheers at the news of a possible duck population totaling 140,000,000 this year. Ducks Unlimited of Canada says that this year's output of the big duck factory in the Canadian west has increased more than 10 per cent over 1943, which adds up to around 140,000,000 quackers on the wing.

Tom Main, manager of Canadian Ducks Unlimited, said a few days ago that mallards lead the increase this year with pintails, teal, canvasbacks, and bluebills well forward.

Ducks Damage Crops.

Already the farmers in the northwest are complaining about the damage being inflicted on their crops by the ducks. Arnold Strand of the North Dakota game and fish department says that farmers in 14 counties of that state have complained to the government about the way the ducks are eating the grain. Three game management agents have moved into the areas of the largest duck concentrations to check the damage and calm down the cries of the farmers who have registered the complaints.

Can't Meet WPB Quota.

The situation in North Dakota, which authorities expect to be duplicated in other states before December, emphasizes how our wild game population has increased in recent years, and also the need for sufficient sporting ammunition so that hunters may harvest the excess of the bird supply.

Altho the WPB said recently that each hunter's quota of shotgun shells was four boxes, dealers apparently feel that enough ammunition to fill such a quota is not going to be made available, for some stores will sell only one or two boxes to a customer.

Ed Rucinski.

With a line averaging 221 pounds against one of 216, the Card-Pitts also boast 23 veterans of the National Football league. Another one joined them today when End Ed Rucinski reported to Co-Coaches Walt Kiesling and Phil Handler in time for a light workout.

Start All-Veteran Team.

The Card-Pitts will start an all-veteran team with at least one more seasoned player in reserve at every position except quarter back, where only Walter Masters remains from last year's Cardinals. The Eagles expect to start with only 10 of their 17 experienced men in action.

Not one of the Philadelphia players has yet reached his 28th birthday. The Eagles also are more experienced in the T formation employed by both teams.

SCHEDULE GIVES SOX COMPANY IN LOAFING HABITS

American League Race to Be Resumed Friday.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Last year, we think it was, or maybe the year before, we wrote a piece or two saying that the major league schedule makers would do well to be careful lest they be hauled into a psychopathic laboratory under suspicion of being tetched in the head. We got several sizzling rejoinders to these charges, and after all it is pretty serious to intimate a gent may be crazy, even if he does make out the modern baseball schedules.

So we are making no charges when we remark that the White Sox will not play until next Friday night and that most everybody in the league will loaf all week. Besides, you probably are in tears anyhow, after reading the schedule groanings of our genial colleague, Irving Vaughan, this summer. Mr. Vaughan, for understandable reasons, has done most of his hollerings about the National league calendar. We have been just keeping quiet—the American league schedule for 1944 has been and is the screwiest of all time.

Pennant Race Takes Vacation.

The American league might not have suspected it at the time they held the stag at which the schedule was tossed together, but they have, or had, a red-hot pennant race on their hands as of Sunday night, Sept. 10. Public interest was rampant and the contending clubs were keyed up to a fine pitch.

So what happens? The American league, for no reason at all, lays off for almost a week, perhaps to give the campus correspondents, the pro football and hockey press agents, and the soccer space writers a chance to crowd them off the sports pages. Even the nonexistent National league "pennant race" will top American league news this week.

Another Bright Idea.

We hope that no one will get the idea that we are chagrined by the realization we won't get to see the Sox play again till Friday night. The scenery is beautiful in Oak Park, seat of our residence, and we still have one A-12 gas coupon we have been saving for this very schedule gap. But we can't help wondering what in the devil schedule makers are thinking about when they perpetrate letdowns like the ones this week.

The Sox will gather at Comiskey park tomorrow for a session of checkers and pinochle, followed by a few laps around the park and Thursday some of the squad will make an appearance at Chanute field. Friday night they will meet the Browns in the first game of a four game series in St. Louis. Here was another bright idea. The Sox have just finished a five game series with the Browns. Thus the Browns and Sox will have played nine games without having played anybody else.

INJURY, DRAFT START CUTTING BUCKEYE SQUAD

Columbus, O., Sept. 11 [Special].—An injury took one player from the ranks of back field candidates on the Ohio State university football squad today and it was announced that two more from the same department probably will be lost before the season is very old. Full Back Matt Brown went to the sidelines with a recurrence of a knee injury which kept him idle most of last season.

Tom Keane and Bob Dove, two more backs, who were outstanding in the day's practice, have been notified by their draft boards that they have been reclassified from 4-F to 1-A and both expect to be called early in October.

KICKERS DISPLEASE WALDORF.

Punting, passing, and blocking were emphasized in Northwestern's football practice yesterday as Coach Lynn Waldorf sought to iron out the rough spots that cropped up in last Saturday's first scrimmage of the season. The Wildcat coach was particularly displeased with the kicking game, as only one out of five points after touchdown were made and the punting was uniformly weak.

ILLINI LOSE McGOVERN.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 11 [Special].—Illinois back field plans were overhauled by Coach Ray Eliot today following announcement by Eddie McGovern, regular right half last year, that he will not return to school this fall. McGovern will stay at his job in a Terre Haute, Ind., defense plant.

Bauman Will Lead Purdue in First Game

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 11 [Special].—Frank Bauman, veteran right end, will serve as acting captain for Purdue when the Boilermakers open their football season against Great Lakes at the naval training center a week from Saturday, Coach Cecil Isbell announced today.

Bauman, 215 pound, 6 feet 3 marine trainee, started his collegiate football career last fall when the Boilermakers opened with a 23 to 13 triumph over the Bluejackets.

CHANGES IOWA LINEUP.

As a result of the ineffective work of the back field in Saturday's scrimmage, Madigan today shifted Dick Woodard from right to left half back. This left Pat Callaghan and Bill Dallas to battle it out for the vacancy. He also plans to try Jim Lagomarcino at right tackle.

IRISH WORK ON PASSES.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 11 [Special].—The Notre Dame squad spent most of today's workout on its aerial game, finishing up with a half hour scrimmage. Frank Dancewicz and Joe Gasparella starred in the offensive passing drill, as well the 20 minute dummy scrimmage on pass defense.

CIO DELEGATES TOLD TO WORK FOR 4TH TERM

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 11.—Full coöperation with the CIO political action committee for the re-election of President Roosevelt, who "helped build our organization," was asked today by R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers' union, of 2,350 delegates who assembled for the opening of the union's ninth convention.

"I am going to use every hour and day from now until election to help reelect President Roosevelt," Thomas told the delegates and their friends in the civic auditorium. "Every one of you delegates must go back to your home areas and coöperate with the PAC, and if the PAC is not doing a real job in your area, you must see to it that it does the job."

Expect "No Strike" Fight.

Among the resolutions expected to cause a controversy when they reach the floor are several calling for abolishment of the "no strike" pledge by the UAW. Other resolutions ask that the pledge be reaffirmed and still others that the "no-strike" pledge be submitted to the members of the union in a referendum vote.

"The revocation of the no strike pledge will restore to labor its most effective weapon and force managements to bargain in better faith, thus preventing strikes," one resolution states.

Relates Trip Abroad.

Thomas told of his recent visit with other CIO and AFL officials to England and France. He said he had talked with many members of the fighting forces and all had expressed the hope that "Russia would get to Berlin before the other allies because they felt the Americans and English will make 'too easy' a peace, which the Russians won't do."

He scolded the delegates for taking part in fist fights in hotels and on the street in Grand Rapids. George Addes, secretary-treasurer of the union, said that the UAW convention had been barred from 16 other cities because of the destruction done by the delegates at previous gatherings.

PUT CIO LEADER ON TRIAL TODAY AS UNION THUG

Mathias Kearns, international vice president of the Transport Workers' union [CIO], will be arraigned before Judge Jay Schiller in South State Street court today on charges of assault and battery in connection with an alleged attack last July upon Harold Cunningham, 40, of 2033 Morse av.

Slugging of Cunningham, a trustee of the Chicago Motor Coach Employe's fraternity, an independent group, was the outgrowth of an attempt by Kearns to have the fraternity become affiliated with the CIO, according to Lt. George Barnes, head of the police labor detail who made the arrest.

Kearns' attack upon Cunningham took place near La Salle and Adams sts., said Thomas Rosenberg, attorney for the fraternity. Cunningham, he explained, eluded Kearns in a foot race when the latter tripped and fell. Kearns later, however, is said to have overtaken Cunningham and leaped upon him.

AIR LINES BUY 93 SKY GIANTS FOR PEACE USE

'Fastest in World' Carry 56 Persons.

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 11. — Peace time civilian aviation was given a significant boost today when three air lines signed contracts for construction of super-transports to cost more than 50 million dollars.

Donald W. Douglas.

As soon as war conditions permit, the Douglas Aircraft company will manufacture 83 four engined planes for United, American, and Pan American-Grace air lines. The planes were described as the fastest transports to be available in the world immediately after the war.

Donald W. Douglas, president of the manufacturing company, said the ships would be built at its big Park Ridge, Ill., plant, or at one or more other Douglas plants, depending on the availability of factory facilities released from war plane manufacturing.

Hopes for May 1 Delivery.

W. A. Patterson, president of United, who came from Chicago headquarters of the company to sign United's order for 15 DC-4s and 20 DC-6s, said he hoped to have the first of the new planes in service by next May 1. He also said United would sign an order soon for another 15 DC-6s, raising its commitment to 50 planes and Douglas' orders to 108 ships.

Both transport models are commercial developments of the Douglas C-54, the military cargo ship turned out at Park Ridge. It, in turn, was an adaptation of a pre-war passenger transport.

A. N. Kemp, president of American, signed for 25 DC-4s and 30 DC-6s, and Harold J. Roig, president of Pan American-Grace, placed an order for three DC-6s.

Eastern Awaits Board Action.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, who also attended the record breaking contract signing ceremony, said his company would order eight to 10 of the new ships, but was awaiting formal action of directors. Eastern is one of the original four lines that had 50 DC-4s on order when the war forced a shift to military cargo plane construction.

Douglas explained that the orders were placed on the basis of an "upset" price subject to adjustment as actual manufacturing costs are determined.

Altho he said it was impossible to determine the exact extent to which inflated war costs of labor and raw materials had raised the cost of construction, Patterson estimated the increase from pre-war figures at 35 per cent. Bids submitted by competing manufacturers indicated an average increase for the industry of 35 per cent, Patterson explained.

Expects U. S. to Lead World.

Douglas expressed the conviction that the United States would retain its air supremacy after the war, and Patterson declared today's contracts represented the first move of "real significance" to post-war aviation.

Both ship models are powered by four engines. Designs for the DC-4 have been completed, but some engineering details remain to be worked out for the DC-6. The DC-4 was described as a 4-mile-a-minute, 44 passenger and cargo transport plane equipped with 1,450 horse power Pratt and Whitney twin Wasp engines. The DC-6 is to be a 5-mile-a minute, 56 passenger and cargo liner equipped with 2,100 horse power double Wasps.

The officials said the ships would effect a reduction in coast-to-coast schedules to about 8½ hours and cut the Chicago-New York flight to 2 hours and 40 minutes.

Patterson said that United would be obliged to undertake about 25 million dollars of new financing if the planes were to be paid for at once, but explained that the exact amount of financing would depend on delivery times.

HIGHER COTTON LOAN RATE PUT IN SURPLUS BILL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—House conferees on the surplus property disposal bill today accepted a senate approved amendment to raise the government loan rate on cotton from 92½ to 95 per cent of parity. Provisions authorizing the Commodity Credit corporation to sell agricultural surpluses abroad at prevailing world prices and permit domestic processors to buy at these prices cotton, wheat, and other commodities which they plan to process for exportation only were also agreed upon.

Stock Prices Rally on Belief Climb Is Due

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—The stock market rallied today with mild investment demand, coupled with short covering, serving as the principal stimulant.

The list edged forward after a fairly steady start and, altho dealings again were among the slowest of the year, gains ranged from fractions to more than 2 points for both peace-rated and armament issues. Extreme advances were reduced in many cases at the close.

Some Orders Reinstated.

Some commitments were reinstated on the belief last week's relapse had provided a good technical tonic and put shares in a position to climb. Belief that reconversion planning would be pushed as the allies sweep toward victory was helpful altho skeptics were plentiful and continued to hold aloof.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.4 at 53.6, the widest advance since Aug. 17.

Among prominent gainers were Grumman Aircraft, up ¾ at a 1944 peak; American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, Philip Morris, Consolidated Vultee, Goodyear, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Westinghouse Electric, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Deere, International Harvester, and American Can.

BONDS CLOSE IRREGULAR.

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—The bond market closed uneven today after buying interest had centered in a selected list of rails and investment rated corporates. Business was slow and sales were $4,855,500 compared with $6,762,600 Friday.

Various obligations of the Great Northern held close to recently established highs. Bids are to be opened tomorrow on three of the road's refunding issues totaling 100 million dollars.

Issues closing higher included American Telephone 3s, Milwaukee adjustment 5s, Childs 5s, Duquesne Light 3⅛s, General Steel Castings 5½s, and Illinois Central 5s.

CHICAGO LIST IRREGULAR.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange closed mixed yesterday in turnover of 22,000 shares. Active issues included Consolidated Biscuit, up ¼; Commonwealth Edison, up ⅛, and General Finance and Middle West, both unchanged.

URGES AIR TRADE CHANCE BE GIVEN WATER CARRIERS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—The maritime commission asked congress today to give steamship lines a chance to share in the race for post-war world air commerce. Commission Chairman Land told the house merchant marine committee that the shipping companies "possess the know-how of foreign trade."

The civil aeronautics board, which licenses air carriers, has taken the position that surface carriers should not enter air transportation unless there is an affirmative showing that it would promote the public interest.

Samuel Biggert, chief counsel for the United Fruit Lines, criticized what he termed the CAB's opposition to joint ship-air ventures and Committee Chairman Bland [D., Va.,] said a "sound international aviation policy" may be developed from the study of the situation.

Lest One Forget! Income Tax Installment Is Due

Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, yesterday issued a reminder that Friday is the final date for payment of the third instalment of income taxes without penalty. Checks in the mail postmarked before midnight Sept. 15 are considered within the time limit. The taxes now payable by individuals represent in most instances the quarterly instalment of the sum by which their estimated liability for 1944 exceeds the amounts to be withheld from salary or wages.

STOVER DENIES SLUR ON ABILITY AS RAIL CHIEF

Choice Not Dictated by RFC, He Says.

Holly Stover, who was elected president of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad last week, denied indignantly yesterday that he was unqualified for the job or that he had been handpicked for the post by Chairman Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

"Mr. Jones had nothing to do whatsoever in promoting me or any other individual for this railroad job," Stover said at a press conference in the company's executive offices at 332 S. Michigan av.

The charges regarding Jones' influence and Stover's qualifications were made by John L. Markham, a C. & E. I. stockholder, and a group of prominent Evansville, Ind., shippers who opposed Stover's election. V. V. Boatner, a director, asserted early this year that Jones had "improperly influenced the road's affairs."

Charges Mudslinging Effort.

"It was the people who wanted this job for some one else who spread this report to sling mud at me," Stover said. "They did it to give the impression that I was a politician from Washington—a job hunter—a political deadhead. The truth of the matter is that I was recommended to the directors of the C. & E. I. by a Chicago railroad president after a careful survey of a field of possibilities which produced five or six candidates.

"This railroad president characterized me as safe, sound, and successful, and said I was not a professional job hunter. That's true because if I had wanted a nice juicy meal ticket, I could have taken a job with the Defense Plant corporation [an RFC subsidiary]."

Reviewing his qualifications for the road presidency, Stover said that beside possessing general administrative experience, he had received specialized railroad training in 12 years with the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, five years with the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroad, and two years as federal manager of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad.

Claims "Greater Knowledge."

He will relinquish his directorship and vice presidency of G., M. & O. on Oct. 1, but will remain manager of the T. P. & W., he said.

"I believe I have greater knowledge of all the ramifications of railroading than any other 25 successful men who head railroads," he said.

"I believe I have business judgment and the ability to be human with people who play on the same ball team with me. I know something about organization and about delegating duties to others. A railroad needs engineers, lawyers, accountants, and rate making experts. The president of the road does not have to grease the locomotive, run it, and then go in and fix rates."

Stover said that as manager of the T. P. & W. he had reduced the ratio of expenditures to income to the lowest in the United States.

Stover's election to the presidency of the C. & E. I. becomes effective Oct. 1, when his predecessor, Charles T. O'Neal, will become chairman of the board.

Eastman Ordered to Halt Film Price Agreements

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—The federal trade commission announced today it had ordered the Eastman Kodak company, of Rochester, N. Y., to discontinue agreements thru which the commission contends the company fixes uniform minimum retail prices on kodachrome and magazine film. The commission said it had found that since 1938 the company had entered into such agreements with retailers in 44 states where fair-trade acts exist.

Canada Drops Control from Some Metals

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 11 (AP).—Removal of restrictive and standardization orders from a wide range of metal articles and some other products was announced today by the Canadian war time prices and trade board.

The announcement came simultaneously with one from Donald Gordon, chairman of the WPTB, that the board as soon as practicable would erase or simplify other restrictions on civilian goods.

Cancels 14 Metals Orders.

In an address at the Canadian club, Toronto, Gordon said, however:

"No one should jump to the conclusion that we are planning or think it possible suddenly to release all the war time controls of the board."

Gordon, whose agency handles work that in the United States is divided between the war production board and the office of price administration, said civilian goods prices would be held to the levels of 1941.

Need of Price Control Short.

Commenting that "the basic causes of inflation are still with us," Gordon predicted the need for continued price control will be short-lived, however, since he expects competition to limit prices as production is resumed.

After the defeat of Germany there will be a general cancellation of nearly all of the board's remaining controls over products made of metal, he said. Gordon emphasized that the WPTB would not attempt to help manufacturers reëstablish pre-war competitive positions by restricting output after emergency conditions have passed.

WPB IMPOUNDS DUCK AND ISSUES WEAVING ORDER

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—Army and navy officials are alarmed by the serious shortage of duck, WPB said today when it impounded all stocks of four important types of duck "in excess of 500 yards in the hands of all persons, principally retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers, and transportation."

WPB also directed producers "that no looms weaving army duck, number duck, flatduck, and shelter tent duck in the early part of 1943 may be used after Oct 1, 1944, for the production of any other fabric except these same types of ducks."

Deterioration of duck in the Pacific has exceeded all expectations and the increasing tempo of the war there indicates a need for replacements on an unprecedented scale, military men have told WPB. Third quarter production is expected to be 50 million yards under military needs.

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel institute estimated today the country's steel mills would operate this week at 94.2 per cent of capacity and turn out 1,687,400 tons of steel, compared with 95.5 per cent and 1,710,700 tons last week.

PUT T LOAN PROGRAM IN EFFECT TO SPEED SHIFT TO PEACE WORK

The T loan program under which financial aid will be extended to enable contractors to swing quickly into peace production when their war orders are terminated became effective yesterday, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago announced.

Under this program, authorized by the contract settlement act of 1944, guarantees will be made thru the federal reserve system in behalf of the war and navy departments and the maritime commission of termination loans made by private financing institutions to war contractors. The loans will be arranged to liquefy or "unfreeze" working capital tied up in terminated contracts pending final settlement of claims.

The reserve bank said the T loans may be guaranteed after the borrower's war production contracts have been terminated or loan commitments may be guaranteed in advance of cancellation. The maximum rate of interest on any T loan will be 4½ per cent, compared with 5 per cent on V and VT loans heretofore, and also will be made applicable to VT loans, the bank said. The V loans were to finance war production. The VT loans provide both production and termination financing, but are not available after war contracts are canceled.

CHARGE UPGRADE OF BUTTER BY PETER FOX CO.

Peter Fox & Sons company, 1122 Fulton Market, one of the largest butter wholesalers in the country, was charged with upgrading butter in a restraint injunction sought by the OPA yesterday. Federal District Judge LaBuy referred the injunction for hearing to Master in Chancery Harry Biossat.

The OPA charged the company registered the sale of best quality butter on its invoices, but made delivery of lower grades. Jacob Shamberg, attorney for the company, said that clear differences in grades are difficult, since butter is graded by taste and smell, and no violation was intended.

CROP FORECAST NEAR ALL-TIME RECORD OF '42

Grains Ten Million Tons Above 1943.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP). —Unusually heavy August rains improved national crop prospects so materially that 1944 production is likely to be within 2 per cent of the 1942 record and larger than output in any other year, the department of agriculture said today.

Forecasts based on Sept. 1 conditions indicated crop production about 4 per cent above 1943, 9 per cent above any year prior to 1942, and 22 per cent above the 1923-'32 or "pre-drouth" average.

All-Time High Possible.

The report said prospects continued to improve during early September and that an additional few weeks of favorable weather could give the largest volume of crops this country has ever had.

August rains over most of the area between the Great Plains and the Appalachian mountains added 172 million bushels to the prospective corn crop and lifted the forecast total to 3,101,319,000 bushels, second only to 1942's 3,175,154,000.

In the Dakotas heavy rains and losses in the shock reduced wheat prospects nearly 16 million bushels, but the total national wheat crop, now estimated at 1 billion 115 million bushels, is about 10 per cent larger than the 1915 crop, the largest preceding harvest.

Total grain production is expected to be 153 million tons compared with 143 million last year, 155 million in 1942 and 120 million to 136 million during the last five years.

Tobacco Crop Near Peak.

The tobacco crop is expected to be the second highest on record. The indicated yield of cotton is close to the average for the last six years, and prospective production of all major fruits is 10 to 15 per cent above 1943.

Corn production was forecast at 3,101,319,000 bushels as of Sept. 1, compared with 2,929,117,000 bushels forecast on Aug. 1, and a crop of 3,076,159,000 in 1943; wheat, 1,115,402,000, 1,132,105,000, and 836,298,000; oats, 1,190,540,000, 1,187,779,000, and 1,143,867,000; barley, 290,036,000, 293,703,000, and 322,187,000; rice, 67,950,000, 68,858,000, and 70,025,000; potatoes, 377,589,000, 385,295,000, and 464,656,000; rye, 27,565,000, 27,565,000, and 30,781,000; soybeans [for beans], 179,024,000, 178,580,000, and 195,762,000, and peanuts, 2,365,630,000 pounds; 2,331,895,000, and 2,199,960,000.

Brooks Rips Realty Curbs as Tyranny

Urging a reversal of the trend which has placed the government more and more into competition with private business and has swelled its real estate holdings to astronomical figures, Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] told the American Bar association in the Drake hotel yesterday that "any government that rests upon a belief that the affairs of the whole people can be planned and controled from the top down is on the dangerous road to dictatorship and tyranny."

Wayland Brooks.

He urged that the government take steps immediately after the war to divest itself of much of its holdings, and said:

"We need no further promises to eliminate the ordinary risks in the struggle for existence. We know now that they cannot be eliminated by government decree."

Operates Many Enterprises.

Brooks said the government operates 55 commercial enterprises, of which 44 are government corporations, with a combined capital of $32,236,619,842. It owns real estate totaling one-fifth of the entire land area of the United States.

Despite this no central source exists from which anyone may learn what real estate the government owns, what has been paid for it, and what is being done with it, he said, and added:

"What is even more dangerous than rent control is the universal practice in the OPA not only to regulate prices in rents and every other form of business, but the agency's unauthorized deliberate attempt to inquire into and regulate profits in every form of private enterprise in the country."

Laid to New Deal Belief.

"That philosophy is an alien and destructive one," he said. "It begins with paternalism and high sounding phrases about human rights and then saps the self-reliance of the American people. Paternalism begets regulation; the power of regulation breeds government license, and the process finally culminates in coercion and subjugation of the people to government command."

FCC to Hear Testimony on Carriers' Use of Radio

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP). —Representatives of 11 railroads and a number of radio and signal equipment companies will testify at a federal communications commission hearing beginning Wednesday on present and prospective uses of radio in railroad operations.

PULLMAN SETS SLEEPING CAR BUSINESS PRICE

Asks 42 Million for Operating Unit.

The Pullman company, which furnishes sleeping car service to the railroads, was offered for sale yesterday to all the railroads using the service. An initial transaction, set at $42,168,551, would provide for the transfer of 6,851 heavy and light weight cars, six shops, 10 laundries, materials, supplies, and miscellaneous items.

The offer was made by Pullman, Inc., the holding company which owns the Pullman company and the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, acting under a Philadelphia District court order requiring sale of one of the companies.

Proposes New Corporation.

In a circular letter to the railroad companies the holding company proposed that the sleeping car business be sold to a new corporation named the Railway-Pullman Sleeping Car company to be organized by railroad companies interested in the continuance of the business.

The letter suggested the new company follow these provisions in allocating revenues and costs:

1. Each railroad to receive the entire revenue from the sale of sleeping car accommodations in cars operated over its lines.

2. Each railroad to pay the company the average cost of operation of all cars of each service class furnished figured on the car-days service basis heretofore used by Pullman company in its contracts with railroads.

3. Each railroad to pay the company an agreed service fee.

4. The remainder of the contract provisions to remain much the same as in the present Pullman-railroad contracts.

Cash Readily Available.

Regarding financing by the new company, Pullman, Inc., said it had been advised by investment houses that approximately 75 per cent of the cash needed for the initial purchase could be raised readily thru the sale of equipment trust serial notes with a short term and suitable interest rate. They also suggested that if there was any "interference with the marketability of the trust notes" Pullman, Inc., might possibly arrange to "carry the deferred credit part of the transaction."

As a secondary or later purchase the company offers 609 lightweight cars and an unspecified number of other cars, excluded from the initial purchase account because of uncertainty of prior purchase by individual railroads, for another $39,156,671.

OLIVER SUBMITS EXPANSION AND FINANCING PLAN

Stockholders' Meeting Is Called for Oct. 3.

A special meeting of Oliver Farm Equipment company stockholders to vote on a comprehensive expansion and financing proposal was called yesterday for Oct. 3 in a letter signed by A. W. Phelps, president.

The program calls for sale of convertible preferred stock, a split of the common stock, acquisition of the assets of Cleveland Tractor company, producer of crawler type tractors, and changing the name of the company to Oliver corporation.

Phelps said each proposition was separate, and stockholder action on one was not dependent on action on the others.

Tell Terms of Acquisition.

An agreement with Cleveland Tractor provides for acquisition by Oliver of its assets and going business and the assumption of its liabilities, with some limitations, including the expenses of dissolution, Phelps said.

Oliver would deliver 73,329½ shares of its present common stock for distribution to shareholders of Cleveland Tractor which has 219,988 shares of no par capital stock outstanding.

The financing plans involve doubling Oliver's present authorized 800,000 common shares, authorization of 125,000 shares of $100 par convertible preferred stock, shortening of the period for exercise of preemptive rights by stockholders from 30 days to 10, and providing for a 2 for 1 split of present common stock.

Preferred Stock to Be Sold.

Of the 12½ million dollars of convertible preferred stock to be authorized, 8.2 million would be issued initially. The 82,000 shares would be offered to common stock holders on the basis of one share of preferred for each eight shares of common after splitup of the common. Offering and conversion prices would be announced later.

Proceeds of the initial issue of convertible preferred would be used to retire $1,500,000 outstanding notes, increase working capital, and for expansion and plant improvements.

WESTERN UNION REPORTS SLIDE IN REVENUES

Revenues of Western Union Telegraph company have decreased in recent months and in July were about $470,000 less than combined revenues of Western Union and Postal Telegraph in July, 1943, A. N. Williams, president, told stockholders yesterday.

Numerous economies have been effected thru the progressive integration of Postal and Western Union operations, but the prices of many supplies have advanced, Williams said. Taxes have risen, and wages of former Postal employes increased, he added.

Net income for the seven months ended July 31 was $4,149,582 equal to $3.33 a share of class A stock, compared with $4,259,333, or $4.07 a capital share a year ago. Earnings on class B shares for the 1944 period were $2.17.

Packard Motor Buys Large Machining Plant

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 11 [Special].—George T. Christopher, president of Packard Motor Car company, today announced the purchase by Packard of the Hern av. plant of Bundy Tubing company as the first step in an "extensive" reconversion program. He said the purchase provided Packard with about 110,000 square feet of floor space which will be used for machining Rolls-Royce aircraft engine crankcases.

People and Events

Elimination of corporation income taxes would result in lower prices, higher wages, and increased earnings and dividends, Beardsley Ruml, treasurer of R. H. Macy & Co., said last night in a speech before the controlers' congress of the National Retail Dry Goods association in the La Salle hotel. Instead of the corporate income tax he recommended his recent proposals of a 5 per cent franchise tax, a 16 per cent tax on undistributed profits, and temporary retention of the present 25 per cent tax on long-term capital gains.

Bell & Howell company yesterday anounced the appointments of L. A. McNabb as vice president in charge of electronic design and production, and B. E. Stechbart, vice president in charge of mechanical engineering and research.

D. H. Steele, who recently returned from Spain where he had been on assignment for the state department, has become associated with the Charles Daniel Frey advertising agency.

Brig. Gen. Albert J. Browning and Col. David Hauseman of the army service forces will discuss pre-termination conferences to simplify contract termination before the Illinois Manufacturers' association in the Stevens hotel Friday.

Don W. Walters, regional director of the Smaller War Plants corporation, announced his resignation, effective Sept. 15, to become managing engineer of Inland Empire Research corporation in Spokane, Wash.

GRAIN FUTURES GAIN ON BYRNES SUPPORT PLAN

The government may be forced to purchase unprecedented quantities of grain to hold prices near parity, members of the Chicago Board of Trade said yesterday in commenting on War Mobilization Director Byrnes' recommendation that congress appropriate 2 billion dollars if necessary to keep farm prices from slumping.

Grain markets responded vigorously to prospects of enlarged government support. Wheat futures advanced 3⅛ cents a bushel and rye 3 cents at one time on general short covering and professional buying. Profit taking sales and evening up for a department of agriculture crop estimate due after the close caused a reaction from the top prices. Closing trades on wheat were 1 to 2⅛ cents higher. Oats gained ½ to ¾ cent; rye, 1⅛ to 2 cents, and barley ¼ to 2⅛ cents.

SOFT COAL MINE STRIKES SPREAD; 6,300 MORE IDLE

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—Approximately 6,300 coal miners in West Virginia and Kentucky today joined 7,000 others in idleness as spreading strikes of supervisory workers closed 19 more operations for a total of 35. Production loss was estimated at nearly 75,000 tons a day.

The war labor board sent telegrams to John McAlpine, president of the United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Employes, directing him to "get the strikes called off not later than the first shift tomorrow" at 16 of the mines in West Virginia and Kentucky which closed today. The government already has seized 33 mines in Pennsylvania and West Virginia in connection with the supervisors' drive for union recognition, and a similar step was expected involving the newly closed mines.

Ickes Reports Strikes Cut Soft Coal Output

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP).—Mine strikes reduced the output of bituminous coal by more than 302,000 tons in the week ended Sept. 2, Interior Secretary Ickes said today. Production totaled 11,575,000 tons. In the week ended Aug. 26, Ickes said strikes were responsible for the loss of more than 200,000 tons.

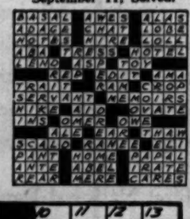
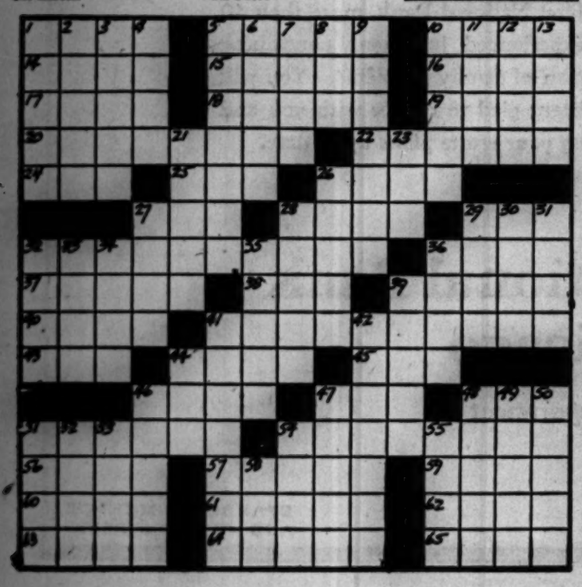
Puzzle of Monday, September 11, Solved.





FARMER CO-OP SUED BY OPA IN BUROCRAT SNARL

Stevensville, Mich., Sept. 11 [Special].—A "tooth and nail" fight will be made by the Berrien County Fruit exchange against an office of price administration suit seeking $110,104.41 damages for alleged price ceiling violations in the sale of its 1943 grape crop, Fred Schultz, manager, said here today.

Schultz said the suit was filed last week in Grand Rapids despite a showing that the exchange had disposed of its 1943 crop at a price lower than that charged by any competitor in the area. The exchange is a coöperative with 1,200 farmer members.

Blames Burocratic Dispute.

"This suit is the result of a difference of opinion over interpretation of ceiling regulations between the OPA offices in Grand Rapids and Washington," Schultz said. "We received telegraphic approval from Washington that we had a right as a coöperative to charge area prices for our product. The Grand Rapids office now insists that we are bound by our 1941 ceiling price."

Schultz said the OPA is basing its damage claim on an alleged overcharge of $29,538.47. The 1943 crop, amounting to 4½ million pounds, was sold for 8 cents a pound, altho the prevailing price in the area was 8.37 cents, he said.

Others' Prices Higher.

Commenting on the suit today in Washington, Rep. Clair Hoffman [R., Mich.], whose district includes Berrien county, said that Michigan grape growers last year received $10 a ton less than New York or Ohio growers.

"If the OPA insists upon payment of the fine, the coöperative will be forced out of business," the congressman asserted. The coöperative has been in existence for 30 years, he said.

GROUP OFFERING NEW PILLSBURY $4 PREFERRED

A group of underwriters headed by Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood today will offer 75,000 shares of Pillsbury Mills $4 no par value cumulative preferred stock at $100 a share. Proceeds will be used in part for the retirement of Pillsbury's funded debt, consisting of $4,475,000 of first mortgage 3 per cent bonds.

A banking group headed by Putnam & Co. and Charles W. Scranton is offering at 105¾ a 10 million dollar issue of Connecticut Light and Power company first and refunding mortgage 3 per cent bonds, series I, due 1974 and dated Sept. 1, 1944. Proceeds will be used to refund 7 million dollars of first and refunding mortgage 3½ per cent bonds and to replace company funds used in the purchase for cancelation of $3,336,000 of first and refunding mortgage 7 per cent bonds, series A, due 1951.

First Boston corporation and associates were successful bidders for 120,000 shares of Indiana and Michigan Electric company preferred stock at 101.449 and 34,698 shares of Northern Indiana Public Service company 5 per cent preferred. A reoffering will be made later this week.

CATTLE PRICES TUMBLE WHEN RECEIPTS SOAR

Cattle sales over the entire country set a new September record for volume yesterday when receipts were swelled by large arrivals from western ranges, reports indicated. Movement reached the heaviest volume since range cattle began to arrive about July 1 and even larger supplies were expected in the next few weeks.

At the Chicago stock yards prices of all steers selling below $16.75 a hundred pounds broke 15 to 25 cents and most sold slowly. Better grades were steady.

Hog receipts of 12,500 head, including direct shipments to packers, were just over the smallest Monday volume since October, 1941 established two weeks ago when only 11,981 arrived. The supply was 14 per cent below the corresponding 1943 day. Ceiling prices were paid for practically all hogs.

Sheep and lambs were steady.

ASSOCIATED GAS.

On the basis of current prices of participating securities, what is the indicated market value of the new Associated Gas and Electric capital stock to be issued if the reorganization plan becomes effective? How much is the system earning on the new shares?—T. L.

A recent price of 27 for Associated Gas and Electric company 5s, 1968, is equivalent to $10.59 a share for the stock of the surviving company in the reorganization, inasmuch as the plan calls for issuance of 2.55 shares for each $100 face amount of these debentures.

A pro forma consolidated income account of the surviving company and subsidiaries, reflecting adjusted 1943 operating results, shows gross operating revenues of $94,744,000 and net income of $9,915,000, equal to $1.32 a share on the proposed 7.5 million shares. The profit includes restricted earnings of approximately 18 cents a share, subject to orders of regulatory bodies.

However, it is not expected that the surviving company's entire equity in subsidiaries' earnings will be paid over to it, and the system's earnings after the war may be smaller than at present. The Associated bankruptcy trustees have estimated that income actually made available to the company, after interest charges, may be only 56 cents a share for the first year of operations. The trustees forecast that dividends of 30 cents a share annually can be paid during the early years.

PAPER always has played an important part in farming, and this year it has a bigger job than usual to do. Its prime use is in building temporary silos and covering straw and hay stacks in the open.

The drouth caused damage to a great deal of corn. Farmers in the dry sections cut their corn early, while it still was green, and turned it into silage to salvage as much feed as possible. Where the farmer did not have a silo, he generally built one out of snow fence and paper, or dug a trench silo in the ground.

Temporary Silo Used.

The snow fence silo is widely used and consists of tiers of ordinary wooden snow fences wired together. The inside of the fences is covered with heavy farm paper, and then filled with silage. This type of structure offers good temporary shelter for the feed, and in it the silage will keep almost as well as in a regular silo.

Heavy first cuttings of hay filled barns everywhere, leaving little room for second and third cuttings. As a result, many farmers have been forced to stack their fodder in the fields. The use of the hay baler also has made it convenient to stack bales in the field when barns are crowded. When these stacks are covered with fiber reenforced farm paper, they are kept secure from adverse weather.

A farmer puts silage into a temporary silo made of snow fence lined with heavy waterproof paper.

Many Uses for Paper.

Paper also is used in building for insulation; it is utilized to cover silo doors; grain is spread on it to dry, and it can be used for shading young plants in the garden. It is a material upon which farmers rely every season to protect their crops in a variety of ways.

Farmers who believe their corn may not mature before frost should consider converting their crop to silage. The cool mornings with a hint of frost in the air are warning that the time may not be far off for the first killing freeze. The average date for the first frost in the Chicago area is Oct. 19, but a cold snap has arrived as early as Sept. 25.

OPA HALES 600 STORE OWNERS TO COURT IN DAY

New York, Sept. 11 [N. Y. News].—Magistrate Charles E. Ramsgate took one look at the defendants in Municipal term court today and sent out a call for help. He needed it. For there were 600 defendants, all charged with OPA violations. With three exceptions, they were proprietors of small fruit, vegetable and grocery stores.

Ramsgate got the help. First Magistrate Morris E. Rothenberg came along. But even he didn't suffice to handle the record breaking crowd. Magistrate Harry G. Andrews had to come from Felony court to make an assist.

The crowd wasn't very helpful. Men and women milled about and clamored to get priority. Nevertheless, by late afternoon, most of the cases had been disposed of. By 2 p. m., approximately $4,500 in fines had been collected, and four persons had been given jail terms.

PROTESTED SALE OF 700 LOTS FOR TAXES UPHELD

Judge William Y. Brothers of the Circuit court yesterday confirmed, over the protest of the county government, the sale for taxes of 700 lots in Westchester. The sale averaged $170 a lot and the proceeds will be divided pro rata between taxing bodies and the holders of special assessment bonds. The county and the village objected to the prices paid at a foreclosure sale, alleging that some lots were sold as low as $2 each. Judge Brothers quoted recent decisions holding that inadequacy of bids was no reason for setting aside such sales and that there had been no showing of fraud or irregularity. Much of the property has been tax delinquent for 10 years or more.
